

GOOD news! Reports of black rust put up the price of wheat, and everybody is happy. The destruction of wealth makes for the increase of riches. But bad news! The boll weevil is so far conquered that there may be a good cotton crop. The only encouragement is the Mississippi flood. That may save the cotton market by destroying much of the cotton. Decreasing production of oil is good news, but a couple of new gushers are discouraging. The oil producers are suffering because they produce too much oil. Rains-growing Fresno would leap to prosperity if some pest would eat up half the vineyards. And the chief hope of the corn farmers is the European corn borer, which is happily destroying the crop of wide areas. Verily, it is a topsy-turvy system.

A FEDERAL grand jury has indicted "Dr." Kojko Pearce, a negro voodoo magician, who sold "tie-em-down" powders for $25.00, guaranteed to keep mildly erring husbands at home, and "bring-back" powders for $50.00 for desperate cases.

Doubtless this particular offender, being black and dealing with an African instead of an American superstition, will be convicted. But why should he? He represents one sect of medico-religion, whose dogmas are as confidently believed by its adherents as are others which the law recognizes. We have healers who cure diseases by mystic incantations out of a book which nobody can understand, and others of the spiritistic and logopulic schools, which have no more science and less faith behind them than the Voodooists. The "bring-back" powder would be quite as likely to restore a wandering husband to the bosom of his family as the electrotonic apparatus would be to vibrate him out of a disease which he did not have, or somebody's magic magnetic belt to shock him into health. If there is no such thing as science, if it is all a matter of sectarian faith, why except the certainly sincere and historically ancient faith of the voodoo witch doctors?

EARL CARROLL was too sick to go to prison. So he got worse in the hospital, where the attention of his friends kept him constantly worried, and rapidly improved as soon as he was given the quiet and protection of the penitentiary. Sooner or later he will be able to work. Then he will be given a real job, which is the best cure of all. By the time he gets back to New York, after a year in the wholesome physical and social surroundings of the Atlanta prison, he will wonder how he ever endured anything as hectic as the night life of Broadway. In fact, he will find little of it left. Other New Yorkers, without the air of prison, are finding out the same thing, and even the "big butter and egg" men and out-of-town buyers from the supposedly benighted regions are getting on to themselves. So the night clubs are going broke, for lack of patronage. You can still get bootleg booze, of varying degrees of lethal potency, but it took the jazz clubs to make the booze endurable and the booze to make the jazz possible. The bringing of the combination is bad for both these laudable devices for enlivening the monotony of metropolitan life. It will be a grayer, safer, soberer Broadway that Carroll comes back to. After a year of gray and safe sobriety in Atlanta, he will doubtless like it better. There are some things that are only funny when you are drunk, and some drunks whose only purpose is to make these things funny. They both look different the morning after.

THE Chicago Tribune, exasperated at the tardy decision of the Supreme Court, declaring the Illinois primary law unconstitutional, prints a cartoon suggesting that all proposed laws have their constitutionality established before being introduced. One of the figures in the cartoon makes the comment: "It's so sensible there must be something wrong with it."

All of which is plain enough, except the puzzle of why it should be a Tribune which said it. Here is the most uncompromising opponent in America of the World Court, and the chief propagandist of the "advisory opinion" bugaboo, to scare us out of the Court. And yet it advocates precisely the most extreme form of advisory opinions for the legislation of its own state—the very form which Elihu Root opposed, in the original statute of the court, and which John Bassett Moore, the American judge in the Court, successfully battled to keep out of its procedure. Eight American states, headed by Massachusetts, do have this extreme form of advisory opinions. Under their laws, the governor or the legislature can call on the Supreme Court of the State for an advance opinion on the probable constitutionality of a law, or executive action, before it is enacted or done. The Tribune would go even further, in Illinois, by having a professional expert, not to Court, certify to the constitutionality of laws even before their introduction, and would give the individual legislator the right and the duty to demand this advice. But when the World Court was authorized to go even a quarter as far, in its procedure, the Tribune shouted with high heaven. It all depends on which side of the case you are looking for "talking points."

Vienna Rioters Fire Courthouse

SHOTS FIRED INTO CROWDS BY OFFICERS

Angry Workmen Lay Down Their Tools and March To City Hall in Body

DESTROY DOCUMENTS

Acquittal of Facists Is Said to Be Reason for Outbreaks Late Today

(By United Press)
VIENNA, July 15.—A leaderless, surging mob rioted near the parliament buildings today, set fire to the courthouse after destroying records of the ministry of justice and inspired revolutionary scenes. Shooting by police broke out at 10:45 p. m. near the Burch theater and city hall. Some shooting had occurred previously.

The mob was panic-stricken. At 2:15 p. m. after leading socialists had been unable to quell the disturbances, police turned machine guns on the rioters.

Many injured men were reported lying on the floor of the city hall, which took on the aspect of a field hospital.

Reports received at police headquarters up to 3 o'clock indicated that six persons had been killed, 17 seriously injured and upwards of 100 slightly injured.

At 2:15 p. m. riot guns were issued to police reserves.

The military, wearing war equipment of steel helmets, placed their machine guns in a street adjacent to parliament and fired into the crowd.

The mob took refuge behind adjoining buildings.

The first outbreak between Socialists and Anti Socialists, who have been at odds ever since the war, came yesterday in a minor clash resulting from the acquittal of three Facists accused of murder.

This morning hundreds of workmen lay down their tools and marched to the city hall. Angry cries of "revenge against the Facists" went up.

The crowd stormed the palace of justice, one of the parliament buildings near the heart of the city, and seized documents which they burned.

They then set fire to the building and prevented firemen from approaching.

Police fired desultorily but the crowd held on and even cut the fire hose to keep the blaze raging in the court house.

Meanwhile, cries of "revolution" were heard in various parts of the city. Police saved one householder from being the victim of a mob.

Leading socialists came before the crowd and pleaded for order.

They were met with cries of: "Traitors! Now our day has come! You have sold them!"

Groups attacked a police station and turned on newspaper offices.

The mob then gathered in front of the city hall.

The rioting took place near the opera, only a block or so away from the imperial hotel, where many American tourists are stopping.

CROWDS FLOCK TO SEE LAGUNA PAINTINGS HERE

Art Body Realizes $3,375 From Sale of Canvases For New Building

Did you ever dream that it would be possible to be so surrounded by beauty that from one coign of vantage, you might survey nature in a multitude of bewitching moods? Nature expressed in a golden-hillside bordered with swaying eucalypts? In a desert dreaming its purple dreams beneath a cloud-flecked sky? In an ocean beating against a rocky cliff or lazily undulating in smooth, oily swells, or a cove where fishing boats are drawn safely up on the sands? Or in a garden, spilling over with flowers or offering a shady sanctuary to a group of chattering housewives?

Dream Comes True
The dream can come true merely by stepping inside the magic easements at St. Ann's Inn, where members of the Laguna Beach Art association have hung a hundred canvases—canvases that express those varying moods of nature almost as eloquently as does that rare old artist himself.

It is an interesting and beautiful thing, this collection of paintings which members of the association have given that their dreams of a suitable gallery at Laguna Beach may be realized. For the pictures on exhibit are not to be sold in an ordinary way. Their mission is greater far than that. They are gifts—generous gifts to the first donors to the new building.

Formal Opening Last Night
The formal opening of the exhibit was last night, when a score of artists from "Our Village" assembled at the Inn to meet their friends and sponsor the first exhibit of gift pictures in the history of the organization. It was a brilliant and beautiful scene. Hundreds of townspeople gathered to examine and admire the varied canvases offered for their inspection, and to greet the members of the art association and their president, William A. Griffith and Mrs. Griffith.

Brief Talks Made
While informality was the keynote of the evening, a few brief talks were made, Griffith introducing in turn, Mrs. Guy Bates post, wife of the playwright and herself a noted actress and patron of the arts; the Rev. Percy W. Clarkson, rector of the Episcopal church at Laguna Beach, and Clyde Downing, president of Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce.

None of them spoke at any length, and each brought a different message regarding the pictures and their creators. Mrs. Post spoke of the soul of the artist and its incorporation into each picture; the Rev. Mr. Clarkson spoke of the moral worth and beauty of such a collection and their proper housing in a permanent gallery at the beach, and Downing commended the artists for their generosity and assured them that the local chamber of commerce would stand back of their efforts to erect the new building.

Unity Maintained
Eager to see the diversified canvases, the large crowd devoted the entire evening to wandering through the dining-room and the foyer of the Inn, where unity had been maintained by framing all the pictures exactly alike. While most of the artists have used oils as their medium, there are a few watercolors, very beautiful indeed, one in the commercial medium, and a wonderfully decorative panel. Striking a strangely poignant note, is a desert scene by Conway Griffith, beloved in Santa Ana, one of his last gifts to the cause of the new building, so dear to his heart. It is the last picture that anyone will be able to purchase from his gifted brush and is a work of art indeed, and one that will grow in value as time goes on. The canvas is a large one and is held at $500. Two other artists have left pictures as legacies to the building fund, William Cahill, whose landscape is valued at $150, and Mary Oliver, whose study of roses is priced at $100.

Griffith at Inn
Griffith, who is remaining at the Inn today to offer his services to art lovers stopping to see the pictures, was gratified at the reception accorded the artists and their work last night, and stated that 14 canvases had been presented to donors to the fund, netting $3,375 to the association.

N. E. Wests Choose First
Mr. and Mrs. N. E. West had the honor of making the first contribution and choosing the first picture, a beautiful thing by Anna A. Hills, "Golden Hillside." They also chose a Benjamin C. Brown, "Early Spring in California." Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thurston, of Laguna Beach, took a William Wendt landscape, "A Summer Day" by

GRAND JURY CALLED FOR NEXT FRIDAY

Judge Homer Ames Issues Call Upon Request of District Attorney West

SUMMONS TO CORONER

Probe of Conditions in County Jail Will Be Made By Investigators

THE ORANGE county grand jury will be called into an organization session next Friday, July 22, preparatory to an investigation of the recent charges against administration of the county jail, it was announced this afternoon by Superior Judge Homer G. Ames.

Judge Ames issued the order for summons to the grand jury after receipt of a formal application for the action from District Attorney Z. B. West Jr. Simultaneously with his request for the grand jury, West issued a public statement, reciting the charges made against the jail and promising a "fair and impartial" presentation of both sides of the case to the grand jury.

The court's order to summon the grand jury will be issued, it is said, to Coroner Charles D. Brown, instead of Sheriff Sam Jernigan, because of the fact that the charges against the jail administration concern the sheriff's office.

Issues Statement
The district attorney's statement indicated that the investigation will cover every phase of the jail charges that have developed or may develop during progress of the inquisition. West disclosed his determination to air the whole matter as thoroughly as possible. His statement was as follows:

"After a discussion of dates with Superior Judge Ames, a special session of the Orange county grand jury has been called for July 22 to take up the investigation of charges against the conduct of the county jail.

"This step has been brought about by the presentation to this office of affidavits and statements of former inmates of the jail and of prisoners now incarcerated there.

"In these affidavits and statements, it has been set forth that unusual and special privileges have been granted certain trustees; that other prisoners have been subjected to brutal treatment; that marijuana and other drugs and liquor has been introduced in the jail; that male prisoners have obtained access to the women's quarters; that property of prisoners left with jailors has been confiscated; that one federal prisoner was allowed to escape; that the food served to prisoners was not fit to eat; that threats have been made by jailors against prisoners who have objected to their treatment and the method of conducting affairs of the jail, and other charges of equally grave nature.

To Determine Truth
"It will be the purpose of this grand jury to determine the probability of truth or falsity of these charges, taking into consideration the motives behind those making the charges, and the true conditions as regards their substantiation in court. It will be the function of the grand jury to return true bills if these charges are sustained by that body. Through the district attorney's office, subpoenas will be issued to bring about the testimony of all persons directly connected with the charges and the extension of every possible aid to the jury in arriving at the facts.

"The length of the jury session can only be determined by the amount of material placed before it.

"I will subpoena every person within reach, who has any information on either side of the present controversy. As far as the attitude of my office is concerned, we feel that it is not proper to have any opinion relative to the truth or falsity of any of the affidavits or their contents, and that all sides of the controversy should be fairly and impartially placed before the grand jury. This office would be glad to hear from any person that has a statement to make on either side of the case, but ask that all communications to this office be made in writing."

POURS ACID ON BRIDE. TRIES TO END OWN LIFE

Los Angeles Man and Wife Expected to Recover From Their Burns

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—While his bride of a month slept, E. Kregel, 50, of 4057 Whittier Boulevard, arose early today, threw acid over the face and body of his wife and then swallowed the remainder of the liquid in an attempt to end his life.

The woman, Mrs. Bena Schwartz Kregel, 40, is in a serious condition at the Casper Kohn hospital suffering from first and second degree burns on her face and neck, arms and body. She is expected to recover, but probably will be disfigured for life.

Kregel was removed to the Home Gardens hospital and is expected to recover.

According to meager information gathered by deputy sheriffs, the couple have quarreled continuously since their marriage last June 12.

Kregel had represented himself as a wealthy man, Mrs. Kregel said, and after their marriage she discovered that he was penniless and without work. She told deputies the marriage took place soon after Kregel's arrival here from New York City.

Mrs. Kregel is proprietor of a small dry goods store.

AVIATORS FREE ON SMUGGLING CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—Emmet Longbrake and John O'Brien, commercial aviators, acquitted last night by a jury on charges of transporting Chinese across the border from Mexico, faced another trial today for violation of the immigration laws.

The jury trying the flyers liberated less than six hours, returning a not guilty verdict on the first of the two counts on which the aviators were indicted by the grand jury.

The pair were arrested April 17 a few minutes after the fatal shooting of Arthur Daugherty, student aviator, by immigration inspectors. The government charged that the airmen were returning from Tia Juana with a cargo of Chinese on the morning of the shooting.

DAVIS AND BRIDE FOUND AT VICTORIA

VICTORIA, B. C., July 15.—Revealing their whereabouts for the first time since leaving New York, Henry Gassaway Davis and his bride, the former Miss Grace Vanderbilt, announced today they would spend the next three months on a honeymoon tour of Vancouver Island.

The couple spent the night in a local hotel instead of going to the home of the bride's brother, Cornelius Vanderbilt, at Sprout lake, as had been expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis declared they "hoped to lose themselves from the rest of the world" on the island tour. They refused to comment on the question as to whether General and Mrs. Vanderbilt would give them blessings on their marriage.

Mother Of Flyer In Night Vigil

HOLLYWOOD, July 15.—An anxious, care-worn mother, who kept an all-night vigil beside a telephone in a rose-covered bungalow here, today awaited news of the fate of her son, lost somewhere out on the wastes of the Pacific off the coast of Hawaii.

Mrs. Emory B. Bronte ar, mother of the navigator of the "City of Oakland," despite a fitful night without rest, was still cheerful today and expressed confidence that her son would be rescued.

"There is little to say at a time like this," she said, after she had anxiously questioned a United Press representative for the latest news of the flight.

"We are receiving telephone reports from Emory's brother in San Francisco," she said with a cheerful note.

JULIAN STOCK PLAN DECISION EXPECTED SOON

(By United Press)
LOS ANGELES, July 15.—Members of the board of governors of the Los Angeles Stock exchange took under consideration today a reconstruction program for the Julian Petroleum corporation. With a decision expected to be made at a meeting with Receivers H. L. Carnahan and Joseph Scott next Tuesday.

While the board members were said to have expressed a desire to co-operate and lend assistance to the rehabilitation plan, which was explained to them yesterday by S. C. Lewis, former head of the oil company, they are withholding definite decision until the plan has been given further consideration.

Under the plan proposed by Lewis, Julian stockholders would receive stock in California Eastern Oil company for their holdings in the Julian corporation. Also $7,500,000 worth of first-mortgage notes would be issued to aid in the financing.

A meeting of Lewis and the receivers with a group of money lenders, who are said to be considering restitution of their profits on Julian loans, has been postponed until Monday.

Illinois Claims Lives Of Three

DEATH CHAMBER, Will County Jail, Joliet, Ill., July 15.—Death claimed its stakes today in the daring gamble three men made to escape the punishment for murder.

At 6:14 a. m., Roberto Torres, Charles Dushchowski and Walter Stalesky were hanged simultaneously from the same gallows, paying the state of Illinois the supreme penalty for murdering Deputy Warden Peter M. Klein in their escape from the state penitentiary in May, 1926.

MANAGE TO REACH LAND BEFORE BEING FORCED DOWN BY LACK OF GAS

Monoplane Crashes Into Clump of Trees But Both Occupants Escape With No Injury to Themselves

REPORTED MISSING FIVE HOURS

(By United Press)

HONOLULU, July 15.—Ernest Smith and Emory Bronte, lost trans-Pacific flyers, have landed safe on Molokai, an island southeast of Oahu, according to advices received here today from Judge MacCorrison of Keawani.

Keawani is a settlement on Molokai. The landing was made at 9:35 a. m. Honolulu time, 12:05 p. m. Pacific time.

Captain Lowell Smith, who was to have commanded the army's Fokker plane "Bird of Paradise," in a search for the lost aviators, confirmed the dispatches received by the United Press from Molokai.

The "City of Oakland," Smith's plane, came down in a group of Kaive trees and was smashed. Neither flyer was hurt.

"Both men are well and are being taken care of at my home," Judge MacCorrison said.

"Tell their folks on the mainland that they are safe and that everything is O. K."

"We never saw the water since we left Oakland," MacCorrison quoted Smith as saying.

"Our radio equipment has been functioning perfectly throughout the flight."

Liner to Rescue
The report came while the Matson liner Wilhelmina was forging through the seas under forced draft to a point 700 miles from Oahu where the aviators last reported by radio that they were being forced down for lack of fuel.

Nothing had been heard from the plane since 5:45 a. m. Honolulu time, 8:15 Pacific time, when the liner Calawall reported receipt of a radio message saying "Am landing in sea. Using rubber lifeboat."

The lapse of over five hours had been taken by anxious observers to mean that the plane had plunged into the ocean and its radio transmission equipment was out of commission.

Tremendous excitement prevailed in Honolulu on the heels of the message from Molokai, the "Teper Island."

Previous reports from masters of passenger liners at sea some hundreds of miles from the island stated without qualification that messages from the "City of Oakland" had been received to the effect that the flyers were being forced down to the ocean.

The plane came down in a growth of small trees and was smashed.

Smith Scratched
Smith, the pilot, was scratched in the crash, but both men were otherwise unhurt.

Both were pale and tired. They were taken to the home of Judge MacCorrison, who sent a radiogram to Honolulu advising of the arrival.

The two aviators sent a message shortly afterward to Captain Lowell Smith at Honolulu, asking his advice as to their next move.

Smith was then fueling the army's tri-motored Fokker plane, which three weeks ago successfully completed the mainland-to-Hawaii flight, for a search over the ocean for the civilian flyers.

While eagerly awaiting further direct word from Smith and Bronte on Molokai, aviators here who were preparing search over the ocean for the lost "City of Oakland" declared their belief that Smith, when he discovered his gasoline supply was dwindling, made a desperate and successful effort to bring his ship down on the nearest land.

Miraculous Escape
Apparently the heroic effort was aided by Smith's discovery that his fuel tanks were not as empty as he had believed, and he and his navigator accomplished a miraculous escape from what seemed certain death in the open ocean.

News of the safe landing of Smith and Bronte came as a bombshell to Honolulu.

Excitement reigned eclipsing even that following the finding of Commander John Rodgers in 1925 after he had drifted nine days following unsuccessful conclusion of his attempted non-stop flight to Hawaii.

General E. M. Lewis immediately ordered two De Havilland planes and a Martin bomber to proceed to Molokai and bring the flyers to Honolulu.

Find Sister's Body In Ditch
FRESNO, July 15.—Stumbling over the inert body of his five-year-old sister on the bottom of an irrigation ditch near here, Conrad Smith, 10, dragged her to the bank and called the fire department rescue squad in a vain attempt to save her life.

The child, Florence Smith, disappeared suddenly while the children were splashing in a shallow ditch yesterday. Apparently she was dead when taken from the water. The rescue squad worked over the child for three hours.

SANTA ROSA, Calif., July 15.—The body of Dr. "Joe" Shaw, personal physician and lifetime friend of Luther Burbank now rests beside that of the great plant wizard.

Dr. Shaw was killed in an automobile mishap, and at the request of Burbank's widow, Shaw's ashes were placed in the concrete crypt with Burbank's, beneath the spreading branches of the Cedar of Lebanon.

After telling of the founding of the association in 1918, the booklet relates the acquirement of this splendid site on the cliffs through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Helsler and the plans for a Spanish mission building, made by the architect, Myron Hunt. The campaign to raise funds for erecting the building, was started two months ago and artist members have contributed $15,000. The plan is to sell for the benefit of the fund. Small gifts, life memberships and the returns from the Peace-pipe pageant given several years ago, have formed the nucleus of $2500 for a fund.

Pictures remaining from the Sarsaparilla exhibit, will be shown on Long Beach and in Riverside the near future.

The minimum wage law for women was adopted in 1914, and the minimum wage for men was set in 1925. The occasion now regulates employment of approximately 160,000 women and minors in California.

That the life of a paleontologist, a collector of fossil bones, is not as simple and monotonous as it might appear has just been demonstrated again by a letter received at the University of California revealing that an expedition of the American Museum of Natural History in New York got out of the interior of China just a few days before the railroad was torn up. The missionaries told to leave and the governor reported dead.

"Apparently, Nelson and I left Yunnan just in time. Two weeks after our departure the conditions had orders to evacuate the province, and we met in Japan one of our missionary friends who had started the twelve-day journey to Yunnan-fu on two horses. The route way has been cut and the difficulty of getting out of the province greatly increased thereby. So, it is reported that the government is dead—no details—but he was young and looked the picture of health when we left him."

The two men were engaged in anti-Japanese propaganda work, and material from the country and, as they had spent 27 months at this occupation, their time of departure is considered fortunate.

HOLLYWOOD, July 15.—A sense of optimism was sounded in motion picture colony today following the first of a series of meetings between producers and the various branches of the industry in connection with salary crisis.

Attended by 20 famous directors and nine leading motion picture producers a meeting was held at the conclusion of which it was announced that a number of constructive suggestions dealing with the proposed program of economy had been made.

The next meeting will be held tonight at which the producers will take up the problem with the writers of the industry.

First word of a $20,000 gift to the University of California for the treatment of needy cancer patients at the University hospital was received in Berkeley last week through the filing of the will of the late Henry T. Scott, former head of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, in probate in Redwood City.

Scott made provisions in his will for the cancer fund under the name of the Elsie H. Scott fund in memory of his wife, who died several years ago.

Scott was a pioneer in the state, and came to California as a young man to work in the Union Iron works for $2 a day. He later became president of the company.

DIVORCE HAS CUPID
ROUTED IN MONTANA

BUTTE, Mont., July 15.—While two couples were applying for marriage licenses during the last two days at the office of the clerk of the court, nine divorce actions made their appearance. Of the nine, five resulted in complete divorce decrees; two were ordered to show cause and one was for the adjustment of alimony. Only one case was dismissed.

An investigation in the office of the clerk of the court which shows that 200 divorce suits have been started since the first of the year with 151 decrees granted. During this time only 378 marriage licenses were issued.

Divorce actions, abnormally numerous in Silver Bow county last year, have been pouring into the local courts in even greater volume this year. During all of last year there were only about 300 suits for divorce filed, or about 50 per cent more than had been filed at the half way mark of 1927. In these cases 253 decrees were granted. Last year there were 690 marriage licenses issued, the rates being about the same as this year.

for the past several years, leads the pack in automobile travel through the park and for June bearing the license plates of the Sunshine state have carried 2845 people through Yellowstone park.

Montana with 910 cars and 2780 passengers is in second place, while Idaho with 393 cars and 1297 passengers and Washington with 327 machines and 595 passengers hold third and fourth places respectively.

Berlin Streets
Will Not Carry
Royal Monikers

BERLIN, July 15.—Nationalistic and semi-monarchistic Germany may wish to immortalize Germany's late for her victory in the war by naming public streets and places after "provinces to be recovered," but the Berlin city fathers are sturdy republicans and have decided otherwise.

After a long debate the Luisenstrasse, named after Queen Luise and its prolongation, eue Wilhelm strasse, were rebaptized Hugo Preuss strasse after the author of the present German constitution, and the city council announced that in the coming renaming of 2400
"streets with the same" in different parts of town, only republican claims will be allowed.

A democratic newspaper offers a hundred possibilities, among them,
"Amor" (love) street, Carnegie, Caruso, George, Brandes, Calderon, Dante, Dehmel, Duse, Galileo, Ko-lumbus (note the K), Marconi, Moliere, Puccini, Quaker (after the American relief people), Spinoza, Shaw and Shakespeare.

Society Islands
Import Owls To War On Rodents

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 15.—Inhabitants of Lord Howe island, one of the Society islands located south of Australia, are awaiting a shipment of owls, which recently departed from this city, to be used in stamping out a rat pest on the island. Attempts made by the islanders to combat the rats by use of cats have proved unsuccessful and owls now are being called into service.

Lord Howe island has a population of 111 persons, whose chief occupation is the production of palm seeds. It is believed that the rats arrived on incoming vessels. They have been depleting the stocks of seeds, which constitute the wealth of the islanders, and since their arrival the rats have multiplied so rapidly that they threaten the industry. The owls which compose the shipment are notorious rodent feeders, subsisting almost entirely on food of this kind.

U. S. Students Are Guests Of Soviet

MOSCOW, July 15.—American students have been the guests for several days of soviet students and the educational authorities, and have been accorded an opportunity to study Russia's educational system. Vice Commissioner of Education Hodorovsky urged the Americans to explain to the nationals the true situation in Russia and to oppose "the press campaign of lies and calumies

FIGHTING AIRPLANE
TO BE GIVEN TEST

NEW YORK, July 15.—A new air fighter equipped with turrets and bristling with machine guns will undergo flying tests at Mitchel field soon in the presence of Gen.
James E. Fechet, assistant chief of the United States air corps, and a group of officers from McCook field, Dayton, O.

The new bomber is a Curtiss bi-plane, equipped with two 600 horsepower Curtiss motors.

The fighting equipment consists of six machine guns, situated in four armored turrets. In the forward turret are two. A similar turret in the after part of the fuselage carries two more. The two turrets, situated outboard on the wing behind the motors on either side, are armed each with a machine gun.

The plane, which is known as a Condor, has provisions for 2400 pounds of high explosive bombs. It will be manned by a crew of six men.

The plane is designed to have a cruising radius of 700 miles at a speed of 105 miles an hour. The bomber will be equipped with radio and photographic apparatus.
Lieut. Eugene Batten of McCook field, is to be pilot.

Pastor Plans To Visit His Parish
In An Airplane

SYDNEY, July 15.—With a parish as big as England, the Rev.
L. Daniels of New South Wales, will use an airplane in the furtherance of his duties. He has been driving an automobile but believes that an airplane will be especially fitted for trips to scattered sheep ranches and isolated homesteads. The Colonial church has approved his plan and he expects to obtain a plane in England at once.

His parish is in the remote northwestern corner of New South Wales and 100 miles from a railroad. Mr. Daniels was a pilot in the Royal Air force during the World war.

Botanist Finds
Edelweiss To Be Native Of Asia

VIENNA, July 15.—The edelweiss, the one Swiss flower with which travelers are sure to become acquainted, is not of Swiss ancestry at all, not even of European.
According to Dr. Heinrich Handel-Mazzetti of the Vienna museum of natural history, it is immigrant from Asia, where the human race itself came from. The Austrian botanist's researches on the distribution of the living and fossil relatives of the edelweiss have revealed across the near east, through the Himalayas, down into Indo-China and north across China into Japan.

Royal Reception
Given Newlyweds

LONDON, July 15.—Ancient customs were followed in the welcoming home of Sir Stewart-Stewart Clark and his bride when they returned recently to the Dundas castle, South Queensberry, Scotland, after a honeymoon at Cannes and Cairo.
The bridal couple were met outside the castle gate by officials, employees, and citizens, who pulled their car through a triumphal arch, decorated with evergreens, flags, and welcoming signs.
After being welcomed in a speech by a public official, Sir Stewart carried his bride from the car over the threshold, where a cake of shortbread was broken.
In the evening guests and employees were entertained by a huge bonfire and a display of fireworks.
Dundas castle is one of the largest and best preserved of the old baronial fortresses in Scotland and dates back to 1124.

Tree 175 Years Old Still Bears

BRISTOL, Conn., July 15.—A pear tree at Bristol is now 175 years old and has been owned by six generations of one family.
The tree, now in the possession of Edward Pierce, was originally planted in 1752 by Josiah Lewis, an ancestor, and has borne fruit every year. Family tradition says that Josiah Lewis came to Bristol from Southington by horseback, bringing the pear tree with him.
At the time of his daughter's marriage to a settler, Mr. Lewis presented her the pear tree.

COLORADO HATCHERY
GETS 640,000 EGGS

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Colo.,
July 15.—The Steamboat Springs fish hatchery is now operating at capacity. Every available inch of space in the troughs is filled with little fish or new eggs and the outside ponds are filled to the brim with young salmon, young rainbows and brook trout, which outgrow their quarters in the troughs, last week a shipment of 640,000 native trout eggs was received from Trappers lake. They are in good condition and will be hatched out during this month.

More efforts are being made to provide retaining ponds, so that the fish may reach a size to take care of themselves before being turned into the streams. Use of the old Yampa river channel at Craig, cut off from the main river by changes when the new steel bridge was constructed, as a retaining pond for trout, is a plan evolved by Craig sportsmen. If the plan materializes, the old river channel will be made a refuge for wild fowl, as well as fish.

Movie Chatterbox

HOLLYWOOD.—Screen vampires are more popular with feminine fans than with men.

Wrong as this statement may seem, it is the true belief of Maria Corda, Hungarian film star who recently came to this country to appear in pictures.

"Women want to know just what makes a vampire's watch tick," Miss Corda declares. "They may not want to use vampire wiles to win favor with the opposite sex, but they do want the security of knowing the vampire's tricks in case they get into a tight place, and that is why I believe screen vampires will always be popular with women."

say that every normal woman has a vampire complex of a greater or lesser degree, depending on her moral stamina and emotional range. It is that trait which makes them interesting, not only to men, but to other women.

"For centuries women have had to sit back modestly and wait for men to select them as mates or wives. Unlike men, they have not had the privilege of seeking, but have been forced to select from the small or large aggregation of men who have deigned to smile upon them."

"As a result of their position women have had to make the best of the weapons they possessed—beauty, charm, wit and personality—according to the actress.
"Even the most kind-hearted women will toy with the hearts of men," Miss Corda continues. "Until they marry, they will not relinquish their holds on other men.
This sounds callous, deliberate and cold, but it is true."

"That is why women flock to theaters to see vampires exercise their wiles on the screen. From these sirens they learn little tricks that make men happy.
Then, too, they are interested in the clothes the movie vamps wear."

Two eights of women recently raced over the Thames course from Putney to Mortlake. This is the first time women's crews have rowed the course made famous by the annual Oxford-Cambridge varsity race. The winning crew of

CHARTER NIGHT IS CELEBRATED BY ELKS' LODGE

Fortified by a steak dinner served in the basement of the club house and exhilarated by a social hour in which old friendships were renewed, 19 of the 28 living charter members of Santa Ana lodge No. 784, B. P. O. E., last night marched into the lodge room of the order as sprightly as they did when they were initiated into the mysteries of Elkdom 25 years ago on occasion of institution of the lodge by the Riverside lodge.

The "quarter century" Elks were greeted with a tremendous roar of applause as they were ushered into the lodge room and introduced by W. H. McClain, first secretary of the organization.

It was 25 years ago last night that the Santa Ana lodge of "Best People on Earth" was instituted with 48 members, and the event was made the occasion for an anniversary celebration, featured by the "home coming" of many members who had not visited the lodge room in many moons.

The charter member group and some past exalted rulers were guests at a dinner prior to the regular lodge session, and it was at the dinner that the "old timers" prepared themselves for running the gamut of good natured joshing and rousing congratulations by throngs of younger men who have since become identified with the organization.

Charter members present were Dr. R. A. Cushman, J. P. Greeley, W. H. McClain, Fred A. Ross, B. Uttley, P. S. Roper, Clyde Walker, G. A. Edgar, Dr. P. R. Reynolds, Burt Ostot, E. B. McKnight, J. W. Tubbs, Ike Fields, Mit Phillips, V. V. Tubbs, George E. Peters, J. R. Porter, Perry Lewis and Dr. J. P. Boyd.

Past exalted rulers present at the dinner were P. S. Roper, Fred A. Ross, H. J. Lowe, M. A. Patton, H. A. Gardner, W. F. Diers, R. C. Peterson, J. Fred Parsons, P. G. Beisel, V. A. Rossiter and W. R. Gordon.

Gordon presided during the "good of the order hour," and after filling the chairs with past exalted rulers, called on each of the "quarter century" men for remarks. The old timers were brief in their talks, but they revealed points that indicated that initiation degrees in the early days of the local lodge were of a rather strenuous order. Gordon announced that plans were under consideration for a reproduction in the near future of some of the stunts used in initiation, with the charter members putting on the work.

It was disclosed that at the time of the institution of Santa Ana lodge, Ostot and McClain were the "goats" and were put through the stunts while the other charter members sat on the sidelines and enjoyed themselves.

Reading by McClain of the minutes of the first meeting was an interesting incident of the evening. Roper recounted some of the history of the organization, and commented on the fact that the institution services were held in Odd Fellows' hall, then located in the old Spurgeon building, replaced a few years ago by the present Spurgeon building, on the corner of Fourth and Sycamore streets.

Pointing out that 100 members of the Riverside lodge coming to Santa Ana to institute the lodge were met at the depot by the charter members, Roper said "they brought a carload of the wickedest looking lot of paraphernalia you ever saw, and when Brother Ike Fields drove down the line with his truck piled high with saw mills, weird looking hoops and contraptions of canvas, believe me we were a scared lot of people, as we had been fed a lot of dope as to what the Elks initiation was. At that time only one or two knew that Bill McClain and Burt Ostot were to be the victims for the initiation. And they were victims. It has been my pleasure to witness some strong work in initiating candidates into the Elks lodge, but I never have been anything that was equal to what those two boys got that night."

Roper recounted that only five of the charter members have been called to the great beyond—W. L. Tubbs, J. D. Wilder, Ben E. Turner, J. D. Thomas and H. E. Keeler, while 15 have dropped their membership by joining other lodges or taking absolute demits. He said that at the time the Santa Ana lodge was organized there were only seven lodges in Southern California, Santa Ana being the eighth, while there are in the same territory today 28 lodges.

W. L. Tubbs, father of J. W. Tubbs and J. W. Tubbs, of this city, as the first exalted ruler, and J. W. Tubbs was the youngest member of the charter group, having attained his majority just in time to be listed in the charter. Prior to presentation to the lodge of the charter members, 50 members of the San Bernardino lodge came in unannounced, the San Bernardino group coming down to announce to the "wide, wide world" that the lodge there would repeat in June, 1928, the big Elks stampede, which is becoming an annual classic among Elks in the Southland.

Following adjournment of the lodge, an entertainment program of excellent caliber was carried out by a group of professional entertainers from Los Angeles, the entertainment having been arranged by L. J. Schlessinger, chairman of the entertainment committee. A lunch at midnight concluded the quarter century anniversary celebration.

COLORADO ANGLERS RESTOCK STREAMS

PUEBLO, Colo., July 15.—In order that the San Isabel forest territory and other districts near Pueblo may in the near future justly lay claim to the title of a fisherman's paradise, members of the Isaac Walton league and Pueblo Fin and Feather club are putting in much effort and hard work in keeping the streams well stocked with fish.

Retention ponds have been constructed and provision has been made for feeding and caring for the young fish until they are large enough to be placed in the streams. Last week, 30,000 more young fish were received from the state hatcheries and were taken to Middle creek and Ophir creek. To date more than 100,000 young fish have been received by local organizations from the state hatcheries and placed in nearby streams, or in the special retention ponds from which they will be later placed in streams.

P., political secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, received a pledge at the annual conference of the union held here. Thefts from railway cars the last year amounted to one and one-quarter million dollars.

CHARMING GARDEN SETTING FOR OWENS-HOWARD WEDDING

Picture a garden whose artistic arrangement of shrubbery casts mysterious shadows in the moonlight; a garden whose wealth of flowers yields great heavy-headed dahlias pink as roses and white as lilies; a garden across whose velvety turf extends two great ropes of asparagus fern swinging from dahlia standard to dahlia standard and leading to a soaring archway of ferns and Cecil Brunner rosebuds, flanked by tall baskets of pink and white blossoms and graceful lamps gleaming through the foliage, and you may have some conception of the loveliness of the setting when Miss Kathleen Owens last night became the bride of Dr. Horace J. Howard, at a garden wedding at the Ira J. Owens home, 128 Owens Drive.

It was a most romantic scene, with the walnut trees casting shadows on the grass, and a great golden moon, a veritable honey moon, putting the artificial lights to shame. To add to the romance, from the adjoining library, floated the strains of appropriate love songs, when Maurice Phillips sang "Calm as the Night" and Holly Lash Visel sang "Ich Liebe Dich," with Miss Ruth Armstrong accompanying each number.

Mrs. Bruce Switzer took her place at the piano for the wedding march, and as the strains of Lohengrin sounded, the Rev. V. L. H. Benton, rector of the Church of the Messiah, where the bride has been a member of the choir for two years, paced from the house, followed by Dr. Howard and his best man, M. R. Purington of San Bernardino.

Bridal Party Appears

As they took their places at the archway, Miss Jean Galen of Long Beach, a friend since childhood days of the bride, came from the front of the house, crossed the wide porch, and moved down the floral aisle. She was gowning in soft green chiffon taffeta, fashioned with close fitting bodice and full brief skirt which had panels of sheer lace ruffles in pale pink to match the corsage adornment. Her flowers were sweet peas, a great arm cluster of them, tied with long garlands of tulle.

She was followed by the matron of honor, Mrs. Frances J. Cox, sister of the bride, formerly Miss Roberta Owens. She had chosen chiffon taffeta in peach tints for her costume, fashioned along lines similar to that worn by Miss Galen, and with oddly shaped little panels of soft green on the skirt, and long ribbons of the same color falling from the neckline in the back. She too carried a huge cluster of sweet peas.

Tiny Kathleen Cox, daughter of the honor matron and small namesake of the bride, was flower maiden, and wore a cunning ruffled frock of pale rose georgette. Her great eyes were shining with excitement as she preceded the bride down the grassy path.

Dark Haired Bride

Miss Owens was on the arm of her father, and was a picture of what a lovely bride should be. She was in white from the pearls of her corset to slender satin slippers. Her gown of ivory satin, made with extreme simplicity, its softly draped skirt shirred lightly at the waistline, depended upon its beauty of material and line for smartness. Over it floated a long veil of tulle, rising in a narrow frill at the back of her black hair, and with a wreath of pearls and orange blossoms which encircled her head. Her flowers were bride roses and lilies of the valley with floating tulle knotted with sprays of the lilies.

Dr. Benton read the double ring marriage service very effectively with Mr. Owens giving his daughter in marriage. A long white satin pillow had been placed at the altar for the happy pair to kneel upon. As they turned to cross the grass to the house where the reception was to be staged, all formality disappeared, and led by Miss Mary Jane Owens, younger sister of the bride, friends crowded close to offer their good wishes, while the newly wedded pair were still in the garden.

Reception Indoors

Later everyone entered the house where refreshments were served and where the beautiful gifts were on display. A huge tiered wedding cake was arranged on a tea-wagon, waiting for the new Mrs. Howard to cut out the first slice. Her place was then taken by her mother, Mrs. Owens, who finished cutting the cake ready to be served. Mrs. Owens wore a charming gown of orchid georgette. Assisting her in entertaining the wedding guests, was the remaining one of the trio of wedded daughters, Mrs. Maurice Enderle (Harriet Owens) wearing a beautifully beaded, pale green georgette frock.

The three younger daughters, the Misses Mary Jane, Clara Kate and Ruth Owens, in filmy pastel frocks, and their one brother, Master Claude Owens, served the molded ices, bride's cake, rich fruit cake (for the groom) and coffee, and had the assistance of Miss Juanita James and two young men, Messrs. Gordon Harding, very smart in his West Point uniform, and Fraser Stewart.

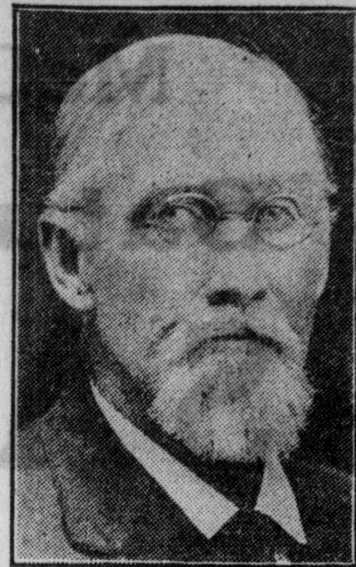

Dr. and Mrs. Howard bade their friends goodbye, and left in a shower of rice, for a northern automobile honeymoon, and before leaving, the bride tossed her bouquet from the stairway, according to time-honored custom. It was caught by Miss Janey Wilde, who was thus designated the next bride, a prophecy at which her closer friends smiled very knowingly.

For traveling, Mrs. Howard chose an ensemble costume of beige and dark blue georgette with a smart little close-fitting hat to correspond. Upon their return from the north, Dr. and Mrs. Howard will occupy an apartment on West Walnut street, where a wealth of handsome wedding and shower gifts will find attractive setting.

Grandparents Present

Occupying the center of interest among the guests assembled for the wedding, were Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wallace of Hollywood, grandparents of the bride. Other out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Purington of San Bernardino;

Happy Celebration of Eightieth Birthday In White Home

J. P. THOMPSON WHOSE EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY WAS CELEBRATED AT THE HOME OF HIS SON-IN-LAW AND DAUGHTER, MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE WHITE, IS A CIVIL WAR VETERAN WHO ENLISTED WHEN A YOUTH OF 16, IN THE SIXTY-FOURTH O. V. I.

Reaching his eightieth birthday this month, J. P. Thompson of 820 East Fourth street, found that the event was made the occasion of a general family celebration, staged at the nearby home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence White, 822 East Fourth street.

It was fitting that the national colors of red, white and blue should be used for the July birthday party for Mr. Thompson, when a lad barely sixteen years old, enlisted in the Sixty-fourth Ohio Volunteer Infantry and fought for the Union during the Civil War. So the tricolors were apparent in floral decorations and later in the evening were glimpsed in the appointments for serving refreshments which include ice cream and a towering birthday cake. The latter bore eight gleaming candles, one for each decade.

In 1875, Mr. Thompson came to Santa Ana with his bride, formerly Miss Jennie Torrens, the young people making the trip their honeymoon. He has lived here ever since, and their six children were born here. All but one of the children were present to enjoy the birthday celebration, Mrs. Lela Matthews of Colton being unable to be there, to the great disappointment of her parents and family. An interesting feature in connection with the family, is that Mrs. Matthews and Mrs. White, the hostess, are twin sisters, and have the honor of being the first twins ever born in the city of Santa Ana.

Mrs. White was assisted in all details of entertaining, by her sister, Mrs. T. H. Sherrill, and they had planned an informal musical program to which their brother, Elmer Thompson, a well-known soloist, contributed many songs, and in compliment to his father's Civil War record, led in many old time war songs.

The sons and daughters had planned a unique birthday gift to their octogenarian father, and one which he and Mrs. Thompson are now enjoying, a trip to San Diego and a visit there with all expenses paid.

Sons and daughters present with their families, included in addition to Mr. and Mrs. White and their son Willard, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. S. Thompson and daughter Rachel of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Thompson and son Delbert, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sherrill. Close relatives and friends joining in the celebration, were Scott Thompson, a brother of the honored guest, and Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Borland, and James Albert Smith of this city, Mr. and Mrs. William Beatty of Whittier and Mrs. Laura Bowen of Orange.

Modern Methods Used By Rangers In Fighting Fire

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., July 15.—National Park rangers are prepared to fight forest fires in a modern manner and a recent test made by the fire fighting crew of the ranger force demonstrated that fire protection is on a par with that maintained in many larger cities.

The apparatus features two motor driven pumps, both of aluminum construction and weighing about seventy pounds. These pumps are so constructed that they may be carried on a pack harness by one man and the weight is no greater than the average army pack. As was demonstrated in a recent drill, a pump of this type may be set up on the bank of any stream and started within a few minutes.

A crew of six men on the last test run had two pumps operating and a hose line of 250 feet laid within six minutes after its arrival on the scene.

ANIMATING JOBOT

A green georgette dress is fashioned with a triple-tiered skirt and a double jabot which flows from each shoulder into the top skirt tier.

MID-SUMMER COATS

Coats of georgette and crepe de chine for mid-summer wear employ decorative cordings and tucking in sun-burst and other designs for trimming.

Evening Bridge Party Staged on Birthday Of Hostess

When Miss Justine Hoffman entertained a group of friends last night at her home, 422 South Flower street, none were aware that the party celebrated her birthday until the evening's entertainment of bridge, was crowned with the enjoyable supper hour, and the secret was divulged with the serving of a candied birthday cake.

The merry young girls formed a group that has enjoyed high school and junior college together, and welcomed the return of Miss Louise Turner from Berkeley. All enjoyed the dainty pink and blue color scheme which Miss Hoffman emphasized with gladioli and cornflowers, and also with bridge tables.

At the close of the card contest, Miss Jeanne Morris, with high score, was presented with a beautiful brooch in Italian mosaic, while a clever little rubber swimming cap consoled Miss Helen Westering for low score.

Embrodered linens were soon substituted for card table covers, and the small tables arranged with mounds of pink and blue flowers, for serving a two-course supper, in which Miss Hoffman was assisted by her mother, Mrs. W. Hoffman and Mrs. D. W. Koser. The second course was signalled by the great birthday cake with eighteen glittering pink candles, which gave the guests their first knowledge that their hostess was celebrating her birthday. Pink and white ice cream in artistic molds, was served with the cake.

Enjoying the happy affair, and voicing birthday congratulations and good wishes for their hostess, were the Misses Louise Turner, Josephine Sawley, Marie McDonald, Jeanne Morris, Helen Drake, Eva Turton, Clarice Mitchell, Helen Sawley, Edna Backs, Helen Westering, Catherine Best and Florence Hoffman.

Evening Bridge Club Is Entertained by Two Hostesses

Members of the Pleasure Eve Bridge club were delightfully entertained Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Harriet Mitchell, 922 West Camille street.

Midsummer's richly tinted flowers were used to adorn the rooms where card tables were placed for the evening's play. Mrs. Mabel Thatcher was successful in scoring while Mrs. Beryl Horton was low. Each received an attractive gift. While these were being admired, the hostesses were replacing the card table covers with dainty linens, and using orchid and yellow decorations on each table, for serving refreshments. Home-made ice cream, cake, coffee and salted almonds were served.

The club scores superstitious ideas, and boasts thirteen members, all of whom were present. They were Mesdames Thresa Akin, Lillian Snyder, Beryl Horton, Marie Ehlen, Olive Hunter, Gertrude Waldron, Ruth Mitchell, Mabel Thatcher, Hazel Turton, Olive Ludlow, Helen Stowe and Isabel Getty.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Calumet Auxiliary No. 39, U. S. W. V., is making final arrangements for a public card party and dance to be held at K. P. hall, Fifth and Broadway, Friday evening, July 22, at 8 p. m. The committee for the entertainment consists of Mesdames Ethel Chapman, Margaret Donovan and Laura Du Bois. No effort is being spared by them to make the evening an enjoyable one for all. Five hundred will be played, and there will be prizes for winners in the card contests.

Weather May Be Made To Order Predicts Lodge

LONDON, July 15.—Fine weather may be made to order, just like any commodity, is the prediction of Sir Oliver Lodge, noted British scientist.

"The advance of science since the days when I was a student has been portentous," he said. "Sooner or later we shall be exercising control over the weather. I do not see why we should put up with bad weather if we do not want it."

S. A. POST WILL BACK GETTY AS STATE LEADER

Amid enthusiasm and without a dissenting vote, the Santa Ana post of the American Legion last night endorsed the candidacy of Wilbur K. Getty, former post commander and present fifth area commander, for state commander of the Legion, the election to be held at the convention at Santa Barbara, August 2, 3 and 4.

At the same time the Santa Ana delegates to the convention were instructed to vote for Getty and to fight for his election as long as his name appeared before the convention and to render every assistance in electing the Santa Ana member as head of the state Legionnaires.

The motion, made by Bill Welland, was received on the floor of the post last night amid cheers and there was a large number of seconds.

The meeting was attended by some 150 members of the post who gathered for a dinner served by the post auxiliary and which was followed by the regular monthly business session of the post.

Nomination of officers for the coming Legion year, which will start in September, was one of the chief items of business and more than 20 names were placed on the ballot. Nominations will remain open for several weeks, closing at the last meeting before the election of officers.

Carl Edgar, present first vice commander of the post, was nominated for commander, as was Charles Van Wyk, chairman of the bugle and drum corps committee, the activity of which recently has attracted much attention in the post. Jack Beatty nominated Van Wyk after an eloquent address in which he pointed out that Van Wyk's work in the post during the past year had been as large as any one member.

During the past several years the post each year has raised the first vice commander to the office of commander, in many cases without opposition, and the nomination of Edgar was in accordance with this unwritten law. Edgar, too, has been a leader in post affairs during the past several years and has charge of the Boy Scout activities in the post. He was nominated by A. B. Berry.

For first vice commander, Franklin G. West, second vice commander this year, and R. H. McCalla were nominated.

The office of second vice commander drew a number of nominations. O. A. Jacobs, Hunter Leach, William Welland, Charles Van Wyk and Carl Edgar were nominated.

Charles De Temple, head of the Salvation Army here, was nominated as chaplain and Grover Fultz and Robert Sandon were nominated for the office of sergeant-at-arms.

Elmer Schaniel, present adjutant, was nominated for re-election and found opposition in the nomination of Gene Douglas.

With five members of the post's executive committee to be elected, 10 members were nominated. Keen competition is seen in this race this year, in that it is expected that at least five or six others will be nominated before the nominations are closed the latter part of next month, it was said. Those nominated were Kolbe, Sandon, Connett, Murphy, Bolden, Fisher, McFadden, Grouard, Beatty and Berry. With the exception of Berry none of those nominated are at the present time members of the executive committee.

Preceding the nomination of officers, the post, after a spirited debate led by Joe Plank, R. H. McCalla and Charles Van Wyk, voted to borrow $1500 for the purchase of uniforms for the post's bugle and drum corps.

The uniforms are being made by a Santa Ana tailor at the present time and will be completed in time for the corps to wear them to the Santa Barbara convention. The uniforms will cost $45 each and they are expected to be of service to the post for several years.

Opposition to the plan was met by members on the ground that the post was unable to pay for the uniforms at the present time and that they did not know where the money was to be derived for the debt.

The plan carried overwhelmingly, however, following speeches made by the leaders for the movement.

Santa Ana post members who are going to the convention will wear orange colored shirts, white trousers, the American Legion cap, which is blue and tan shoes, according to announcement made by Franklin Grouard, who exhibited the uniform last night. All Orange county members who go to Santa Barbara will parade in these uniforms, it was said, and an appeal was made for each member of the post to purchase his uniform as soon as possible.

Entertainment last night was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stearns of the West Coast-Walker theater. Stearns is a song composer and wrote "What's Become of Sally," "Big Bad Bill" is Sweet William Now" and numerous other song hits. He and Mrs. Stearns gave a number of selections.

Two rounds of boxing completed the entertainment program.

Police News

Charged with turning his machine in the center of a business block, Roy Shipp was fined $2 in police court yesterday.

Frank H. Manning, charged with a misdemeanor, was released from the county jail today when he made bail for $200. He was arrested at Fullerton yesterday by Officers Winters and Goodwin.

R. E. Kileo, 33, La Vida, charged with possession of intoxicating liquor, and R. H. Haley, 32, charged with possession and being drunk, each were returned to the county jail last night from Brea to serve a term of 50 days or pay a fine of $200. R. L. Haley, charged with being drunk, was released on bail of $50.

TWO INJURED IN FALLS FROM LAGUNA PLANKS

Walking the plank used to be bad enough on a pirate ship, but some persons in Laguna Beach declare that the practice is just as dangerous today.

Theodore Kuban was walking a plank across a ravine on the ocean front this morning, when he lost his balance and plunged 15 feet to the rocks below. He received a broken right ankle, a sprained left wrist and numerous bruises.

Miss Alma M. Karlsson, nurse for County Aid Commissioner Gregg, who is vacationing at Laguna Beach, was walking another plank stretched across a ditch near some paving work. She lost her balance and fell two feet, breaking her left ankle.

Both persons were treated at the Laguna Beach hospital.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, July 15.—With China, Nicaragua and Mexico pretty well off his mind, Secretary of State Kellogg is allowing himself more and more humor at his press conferences. Kellogg, as has been remarked, is an ardent golfer. Those who know how nervous he is marvel that he can hit the ball the fact is that he plays a fine game for a man of his age.

Golf is often mentioned at the Kellogg press conference. "Going to play eighteen holes, Mr. Secretary?" one correspondent asked the other day.

"Well, may I can do thirty-six," replied Kellogg, meaning just what he said.

It was raining cats and dogs outside and someone called attention to the fact.

"Young man," said Kellogg, "nothing ever spoils golf!"

When the Honorable Pedro Guevara, resident commissioner from the Philippines, read the assertions of Governor General Leonard Wood, on arrival in this country, that the Filipinos were prosperous, happy and well paid for their labor, his reply was brief and to the point. It was made through your correspondent, because few others pay much attention to the non-voting Filipinos.

"There are 135,000,000 pesos in circulation in the islands and there are 12,000,000 people there," said Guevara. "The peso is worth fifty cents. That means that each person has $5.50 to his name, on an average. But the 135,000,000 pesos include all the money in banks, 65,000,000 pesos a year for government expenses, and all money that counted away. This means that any money, and even the poorest Igorrote in the most uncivilized section needs some money to buy a loin-cloth."

Native newspapers from Manila, printed in Spanish, tell a story all their own through Page One cartoons in which General Leonard Wood is given the worst of it. The cartoons also indicate that Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana and Congressman Carew, leader of the Tammany delegation here, have become national heroes.

It seems that Wheeler and Carew were lured to a Chamber of Commerce banquet at Manila which turned out to be a sort of an American demonstration against Filipino independence. Wheeler and Carew boiled over with wrath and when their turns came to speak they ruined a perfect evening for their fellow countrymen by forceful expression of their sentiments.

Wheeler is said to be coming back here loaded for bear, and if you hear some loud explosions during the next session of the senate, it probably will be Wheeler. Carew may start something in the house, too. Filipino nationalists are said to be elated over the fact that Senator Hiram Bingham, who is now an expert on everything in the Encyclopedia Britannica, has also been gathering information in the islands and will doubtless appoint himself exponent of the administration's attitude against independence.

Household Hints

SOFTENED SHOES
When drying wet shoes, be sure to put shoe trees in them, wipe off all dirt and rub with one of the soft creams as they are drying.

TEA CAKES
A thin spice cake dough, with raisins and nuts added, can be baked in individual tea cake tins and made much more appealing to the family.

FLUFFY ICING
To make white frosting fluffy like marshmallow, stand the dish in which you have beaten it, in boiling water and cook over fire for a few seconds.

NEW FLAVOR
Soak thin slices of lemon peel in a little fruit juice and sugar and add to punch just before serving. It will give a newtwang which is delightful.

FRIED MUSH
Old-fashioned popular fried mush may be approximated by frying any cold sliced breakfast cereal and serving with Vermont maple syrup.

CLOGGED DRAINS
A spoonful of lye should be placed directly over the drain in the sink about once a week and then washed down by boiling water to prevent clogging.

WESTMINSTER

DIAMONDS ARE LOST, FOUND AS COPS NOTIFIED

Diamonds valued at $1775 were reported to Santa Ana officers last night as stolen from a home on South Main street, but before officers could start their investigation, the woman who reported the theft called up and announced that the gems had been found in a place where she had put them.

Visions of diamond robbers, gangs of gem thieves and clever crooks operating in Santa Ana were shattered when the call came, but it was with a sigh of relief, according to Claude Rogers, chief of police.

The diamonds reported taken consisted of a dinner ring valued at $250; a one and one-half karat solitaire, valued at $1000; a one karat solitaire in white gold setting, valued at $400 and a half karat solitaire valued at $125.

The rings were found in the house where they had been secreted when the owner went into the bathroom to take a bath, according to the report filed in connection with the case.

Chief Rogers declined to reveal the name of the owner of the diamonds.

PAPER NAPKINS

Paper napkins save time and energy in summertime. Use them in the kitchen too to wipe greasy pans before washing, to clean drain board and to shine gas stove.

FOX HUNTS A DOG

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 15.—Arising at dawn one morning, a farmer saw a large red fox chasing his chickens. He got his gun, called his dog and started after the marauder. The dog took the scent but fled to his master a few minutes later with the fox hard on his heels. The farmer shot the fox.

WALLOPS WAVES

William A. Erickson, of New York, battled and triumphed over rough seas in a 15-mile ocean marathon at Atlantic City, N. J. Out of 60 starters, he was the only one to finish, as pictured here. It took him 13 hours and 36 minutes.

GAS COMPANY WILL ASSIST RANGE OWNERS

With the view to bettering its service in local homes and to enable the housewife to get the most service from her gas range, the Southern Counties Gas company has established a new department, called the department of home service, it was announced here today by C. E. Rutledge, local manager.

Through its representative, Miss Margaret Hannah, an expert in home economics, the company seeks to co-operate with the local housewife in bettering the service of her gas range, thereby saving her time and labor in her own kitchen.

"The company appreciates the fact that such a service will enable the housewife to speed up the work in her kitchen," Rutledge said. "Where a woman is unable to get the most satisfactory results in baking she will refuse to bake in an oven only when it is absolutely necessary. The same conditions holds true in respect to the broiler. If the woman is unable to broil meat as deliciously as her neighbor, she becomes skeptical about her broiler."

"Realizing that the problems of housekeeping and homemaking are centered in the kitchen and further realizing that the gas range is one of the prime factors in the kitchen, the company is anxious to have each consumer get 100 per cent efficiency from the gas range. The representatives of the Southern Counties Gas company's home service department will go into the heart of the housewife's problems into her kitchen, where she will adjust the old gas range properly with the view to helping the consumer. She will demonstrate the oven heat control method, various economies in the use of gas, and will show the housewife where she can conserve both time and her strength in systematically preparing her meals."

"As a representative of the home service department of the local gas company, Miss Hannah will go into any home by appointment, where the housewife has purchased a new range, whether from the gas company or from a dealer, and will see that the range is properly adjusted for the best service. She will bake a cake, muffins or the like, in different ingredients furnished by the housewife, and while so doing will demonstrate the mechanism and adjustment of various parts of the gas range, the heat control, and the many ways of effecting various economies. Her extensive training in the use of various oven heat controls has been thorough and she, therefore, is qualified as an expert in operating any oven heat control."

"The Southern Counties Gas company has found it to be true that where a housewife is not obtaining proper results in the use of her gas appliances, she is considerably handicapped. Where such is the case, the unsatisfactory condition can often be corrected without any expense to the housewife and with little effort on the part of Miss Hannah. A local housewife may now call upon the company's home service department to solve her kitchen problems."

"Local women's clubs and societies, in presenting any program or in the study of any problems wherein Miss Hannah's services may be valuable, are urged to call on her. She is in Santa Ana to co-operate with them or with any individual consumer. Housewives are urged to get in touch with Miss Hannah by calling the local Southern Counties Gas company office or dealer from whom a gas range was purchased."

ENGLISH SCHOLARS ORGANIZE COUNCIL

LONDON, July 14.—With the expert aid of George Bernard Shaw, both as philologist and business man, the joint conference of English and American scholars has launched the new International Council of English. This is a courageous attempt toward fixing an approximate standard of correctness in the usage of English for the peoples of Great Britain, the Dominions and the United States. The task is obviously difficult, and Shaw was probably speaking common sense when he said that there is no such thing as correct English and that the most that can be done was to "fix some range within which English should be considered to be correct."

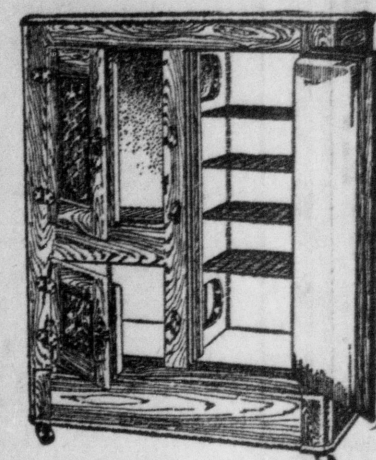

There are differences of view as to what should be aimed at. The American speakers apparently hope to influence accepted speech and writing through editors, broadcasters and others in touch with the populace. Some of the eminent English scholars are against trying to set up a court of reference or jury to decide disputed points of grammar and pronunciation, their ambition being to publish pamphlets on general questions of usage. J. C. Squire suggested that it is no use trying to alter the lingual habits of the man in the street, and that the more modest aim should be to influence the vocabulary—the accepted form of new words, and so on.

The differences of phrase and pronunciation as between the American and the English speakers at the conference, illustrate the complexity of the job that has been undertaken. If the council should compile a comparative list of English and American words and their meanings, they will have their hands full for some time.

CITY RECORDER EXPLAINS LAW ON COMPLAINTS

Many persons seeking legal complaints against other persons know little about where to find them, according to Judge J. F. Talbott, city recorder, who almost daily acts as a director for persons who have grievances, he said today.

Most persons appeal to the police, which is proper in a way, because the police are ready at all times to aid, but a vast number come to him for warrants and most of them want to tell their stories to him before any action is taken whatsoever.

"I can't listen to these stories, so I quiet them and then tell them I don't want to hear what they have to say at this time. Then I direct them to the city attorney, the man who first should be approached," Judge Talbott said.

Judge Talbott pointed out the fact that it is necessary for the city attorney to know the facts of the case first, so he can determine whether or not the person has a case and whether a complaint should be issued.

Once the complaint is issued, then the city recorder can issue the warrant and turn it over to the police for service. After the person against whom the complaint is issued is arrested, and brought into court, then the city recorder can hear the stories of both the prosecuting witness and the defendant—and he does not want to hear them until that time.

City Recorder Talbott said today that it was his experience that most persons seeking complaints were mad when they came into his office and that many times these persons had "cooled off" somewhat by the time the case came into his court.

In connection with the advice given out by Judge Talbott, he wants the people to know that the city attorney is the man to issue the complaints and that he should be consulted first. To take the matter to the police first, however, is feasible, but to the city recorder—never.

DRIVERS ESCAPE INJURY IN CRASH

Drivers of two automobiles which collided at the intersection of Third and Shelton streets at 8:15 o'clock last night escaped injury, according to an investigation conducted by the police.

One car was driven by Miss Elizabeth Gonzales, 615 Daisy street, and was traveling east on Third street. The other machine was operated by William Noble and was headed north on Shelton street, police reported.

Neither machine was badly damaged.

TYPEWRITER STOLEN FROM S. A. CHURCH

Thieves stole a $60 portable typewriter from the office of the Spurgeon Memorial church, Broadway and Church streets, some time during the past several days, it was reported to the police today.

The machine was taken from the office of the Rev. Moffat Rhodes, and was not missed until today, he reported.

Broom Plants

The Genista family now appears on the alphabetical list which has been followed intermittently for some time.

A lot of confusion centers around this interesting group. While I hope to be able to help some of you readers in straightening out the list I realize that is difficult by description. Once you actually see them it is much clearer.

Nurserymen themselves are sometimes confused and are at times misleading. One point upon which all nurseries seem to agree, and this is, not to argue that the commonly known "Scotch Broom" is "Spanish Broom." The majority of the gardening public think of them as "Scotch" and to try and dissuade them from this classification is nothing short of your reputation. I shall take them up later in this article and describe and classify each at long range.

White Broom

Although not the only member of the Broom family bearing white flowers the Genista Alba bears this common name. It may also be known as Portugal Broom.

The shrub is of upright growth with delicate slender branches. Each stem is many sided, giving a withered appearance. Like many brooms there are not many leaves.

Flowers are borne in heavy clusters and are pure white, the shape of sweet-peas. Because of its lack of adaptability to our climatic conditions it is not highly recommended.

Canariensis

This is one of a few of the group which possess a great many leaves. The growth is fast and upright. Each long branch bears numerous small green leaves. During the spring months they are covered with bright yellow sweet pea shaped flowers. In fact this shape is characteristic of all Genista.

Fragrans

Very much like the Canariensis when small, the fragrans is more spreading. This one characteristic is the chief one in which they vary. The foliage and flowers are practically the same, except for the de-

HOT SPRINGS ROAD OPENED TO TRAFFIC

A new 25-foot graded and oiled road stretching 10 of the 12 miles from San Juan Capistrano to San Juan Hot Springs was opened yesterday. It was announced here today. The work was done on the road by the county road department. The San Juan Hot Springs road is now said to be in the best condition ever. Five miles of the road was reconditioned this year. Five miles of the road was rebuilt last year and the remaining two-mile stretch is paved out of San Juan Capistrano, it is reported.

LITTLE KITTEN PROVES SKUNK: COPS RETREAT

A tender hearted traffic cop and a skunk which had not long to live make up this story.

It happened when two Orange county officers were patrolling their beats south of Santa Ana. Driving along at a lazy gait, one of the officers noticed a small black "kitten" crossing the road in front of the car.

After passing the place the officer began thinking. That kitten might get killed running over the highway like that. Maybe it had been lost from an automobile and was out there alone in the world with nothing to eat or drink. He thought on and on.

Finally, his thoughts turned to words and he persuaded the other officer to return to the scene so he could pick up the cat and give it a home.

But Fate had intervened. When they reached the place a strong odor was prevalent and in the center of the road lay the "little kitten," another victim of traffic.

REDONDO SPONSORS INDIAN POW-WOW

The attention of many Santa Anans was attracted to a parade of Redondo Beach automobiles, which passed through the city yesterday. The parade was advertising the Indian Chief meeting to be held in Redondo Beach Sunday, July 17. The affair is being promoted by the Redondo Beach Boosters' association and by the city of Redondo Beach.

It is expected that more than 40 Indian chiefs will attend the pow-wow. The water front at Redondo Beach is to be converted into a regular Indian village with teepees, camp fires and all the characteristics of a native Indian village.

Chief Standing Bear, who recently returned from the Shrine convention at Atlantic City, will be in charge of the ceremonies. The boosters' association and the city are sponsoring several shows in connection with the event, chief among which will be native Indian dances.

BIG OFFICE—NO PHONE

WASHINGTON, July 15 — The claims division of the general government accounting office has 500 employees and not a single telephone. S. B. Tulloss, chief of the division, says its business is best transacted by correspondence, but his policy has drawn fire from many who criticize the slow methods employed.

olded fragrance of the latter variety.

Confusion always results from the selection of these two in small plants. The fragrans is the best for practical purposes, but to tell whether or not you are receiving it is the question. There is one point to observe however, that will guide you in your selection. The fragrans is a spreading type and manifests the characteristic early. When 12 to 18 inches high the plants present an arching effect, whereas the canariensis will usually appear quite straight and upright. This fact often makes it hard to convince a customer to select the fragrans because the plant is not as nice and straight.

Spanish Broom

Genista hispanica or Spartium Junceum is another source of public discussion. It is a tall upright grower with practically no leaves. The branchlets are perfectly round and smooth. During the summer large yellow blossoms appear, which have a very pleasing fragrance.

It is this plant that is widely misnamed "Scotch Broom." The chief difference between the two is that the stems of "Spanish Broom" are smooth, while those of "Scotch" are ribbed.

Scotch Broom

Genista Scoparius (Spartium Scoparius) is the genuine Scotch Broom. Because it is not very profitable under local conditions it is not advisable to plant it.

Andreana

Throughout Northern California the Genista Scoparius Andreana is very satisfactory. Fair success is obtained in Southern California.

The plant is very much the same as Scotch Broom. The flower is sweet pea shaped and golden yellow with a bronze splash at the base of each blossom.

Bridal Veil

Genista Monosperma pendula is a beautiful White Broom. The plant is practically leafless with a mass of long slender branches. These are of a grayish cast and their drooping habit is quite effective.

DOG LICENSE OFFICER SAYS MOST OWNERS OBSERVE LAW

McClure Learns, However, Some Canine Possessors Are Far From Gentle

FEW ANIMALS STAY IN POUND FOR LONG

Between 800 and 1000 Licenses Issued Each Year By Municipality

With a dogged look, A. H. McClure is going about the city determined that every dog-gone dog shall have his dog license before the dog days dawn.

Mr. McClure has been appointed by the city authorities to dog the footsteps of every dog in the city with an unpaid license fee or take the delinquent dog to the city pound, which has few occupants this season.

Dogs do not remain in the dog pound long, says Mr. McClure. If they are not claimed by their owners, they are usually given to some one who wants them and if no one wants them they are painlessly escorted into the dog realms beyond.

Strangely enough the most of them are wanted, most people liking dogs. Some people dislike them and telephone complaints against their habit at barking at the moon or tipping over the garbage can in search of a juicy tid-bit that may be lurking in among the lettuce leaves and melon rinds.

No matter how dogmatic Mr. McClure may be in regard to the obtaining of dog licenses by dog owners, he meets with opposition ever and anon. Hearing that a Santa Ana woman was the owner of five unlicensed dogs, he knocked gently at her door.

Growls of protest met his summons. Barks and yippings followed. The owner of the dogs appeared. "Dog licenses!" She called on the high heavens to witness her astonishment that such an antiquated thing as a dog license should exist in a city supposedly up-to-date.

"The war is over, young man," she informed Mr. McClure. "Noah and his ark have been gone quite a while."

Mr. McClure agreed with her politely but insisted on the licenses. Then the slender little woman to his surprise went back on her own statement that "war was over" and landed him a "sock on the jaw" in a most war-like manner.

She followed up her forward pass by a command to "get out of the yard" and proceeded to assist him. The dogs barked their encouragement. Mr. McClure, not

NEW PASTOR

The Rev. I. C. Mathis, who succeeds the Rev. E. M. Hutchens as pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, at Fifth and Parton streets.

REV. HUTCHENS TAKES POST IN EAST PASADENA

The Rev. I. C. Mathis has come to Santa Ana to accept the pastorate of the Church of the Nazarene, at Fifth and Parton streets, succeeding the Rev. E. M. Hutchens, who has been pastor for the past two years. It was announced today.

The Rev. Mr. Mathis comes from East San Diego, where he was pastor of the church of his denomination for four years and where he built a new church building and was responsible for the building up of a large congregation. It was said.

A new church building, under the leadership of the Rev. Mr. Mathis is included in the plans of the new pastor. The new building would accommodate several hundred persons.

Educated in the Pasadena college, the Rev. Mr. Mathis comes to Santa Ana with a reputation of being one of the most aggressive men of his denomination in Southern California.

Mrs. Mathis is especially interested in young people's work and will assist her husband in this line of endeavor. They are now residing at the parsonage at 414 South Birch street.

The Rev. Mr. Hutchens surrendered his post here to accept the pulpit of the Church of the Nazarene at East Pasadena. He already has taken over his new charge, it was said.

CAN'T KILL CATS

ROUND LAKE, N. Y., July 15.—All cats found at large in Round Lake village have been officially condemned to death, but no one can be found to carry out the sentence. Even men brought from other towns have given up the job when adults and children followed them all day with cat-calls and hoots.

WORK AND PLAY CALL OFFICIALS AT COURTHOUSE

Reporter Finds Vacations Unknown Among Many Orange County Heads

They work at the courthouse. But where do they play?

These county officials. Not speaking of poker or golf, where do they spend their vacations, if any? "If any" seems to be a well chosen phrase in this instance. Some of the county "offish" do and some don't, speaking of vacations again.

A survey of vacation plans at the old red pile and its newer neighbors today revealed that county officials are just children grown up, after all. They like to play in the big outdoors or gaze at tall buildings or go wading in the creek or step on the gas, just like any kid.

Some of them like to do, all of 'em. Some of them are all "lit up" over the prospect of what's ahead, some are smiling contentedly over vacations just completed and some are pulling long faces over vacations that got lost in the shuffle. The inquisitive reporter, attempting to learn vacation plans of various officials, had a hectic day. Some doors received him with open arms and a lot of talk about road maps and camping equipment. From other doorways he emerged suddenly with startled glances behind him and his fingers poked in his spreading ears.

For example:

Inquisitive reporter: "Mornin' Jim. How's tricks? By the way, Jim, where are you going on your vacation? I'm getting up a little story."

Assessor Sleeper: "That's the talk I like to hear. I was just thinking about that. Oh boy, I certainly need one and I am going to have one. They've been running me to death all spring, with all these new assessments around the oil fields. Now the rush is beginning to clear up, so I can see my way clear to a little rest. The missus and I are going to drive up the Redwood highway—oh boy—to Eureka, and attend the assessors' convention—combine business with pleasure you see. Then we'll drive around the northern part of the state and maybe over into Oregon. We'll be gone about two weeks. You know I—etc. etc. etc."

Next scene:

I. R.: "Morning Bill. How's tricks? By the way, Bill, where are you going on your vacation? I'm getting up a little—"

Auditor Jerome: "Huh. Never mind the sarcasm. fellow. Run along quietly. You know just as well as I do that I haven't had a vacation since 1919. On your way." (Exit I. R.)

Next:

I. R.: "Morning Dick. How's tricks? By the way, Dick, where are you going on your vacation? I'm getting up—"

Superintendent of Schools Mitchell: "Why bring that up? With all these blankety blank state reports to get up and all this other blankety blank truck to look after Oil Company To Sell Mission Play Tickets Half Rate

Through the courtesy of the Associated oil company, the people of Southern California will have the opportunity of seeing the world famous Mission play of San Gabriel, at half the usual admission rate.

Every station handling Associated products will distribute to any one requesting same, whether a purchaser of supplies or not, a free coupon. This, when presented at the San Gabriel Mission play, will entitle the holder to obtain a ticket at half the regular price.

This dramatic historical representation of the early days of California, a story of the golden and romantic days of the early Spanish settlers and padres, is one of the outstanding attractions of Southern California and has made its author, John Steven McGroarty famous. The plot centers around the activities of Frey Junipero Serra, who probably did more than any other man to settle the one time barren and sun baked land of California.

San Gabriel was the location of one of the original missions founded by Frey Junipero Serra, and was chosen as the setting for the presentation of the play.

MANY FAMOUS ANTIQUES TO BE EXHIBITED

Many famous historical pieces, including articles of antiquity relating to early national and California history, are now being gathered for extensive showing at the Orange county fair, September 5 to 10. R. L. Bisby of Santa Ana, chairman of the historical and antiquities section of the fair, said today.

The priceless John Foster collection and the Aguilera collection, at San Juan Capistrano, and others of this section that are emblematic of pioneer days of various stages of California, and especially early Orange county history, will contribute a valuable section for this division of the fair, he said.

This department, created by the fair board to stimulate interest in preserving valuable historical pieces, has at the present time, enough interesting objects located about the county to fill any allotted space at the fair, Chairman Bisby said. Through the efforts of San Juan Capistrano, descendants of Captain Don Juan Forster, whose wife, Isidora Pico, was a sister of Pico Pico, Spanish governor of California, many fine articles have been obtained.

A silver cup will be given for the best collection of Orange county relics. The best and most complete collection of antiques will also be awarded a silver cup, and a silver cup and honorable mention go to the oldest article of early national life.

BURNED OFF QUILLS

SARANAC LAKE, July 15.—John Kays, state fire observer on Goodnow mountain, found a porcupine that had been struck by lightning. A strip three inches wide, from head to tail, had been cleared of every quill. The animal had not been killed, but was stunned.

MARYS REMAIN ABSENT FROM BRIDES' LIST

Margarets Are Numerous Among Those Securing Licenses, Records Show

The good old name of Mary was conspicuously absent from the list of Orange county brides recorded at the court house from the first of June, the bride's own month, to the present date. Not a single Mary, Mary Jane or Mary Ann took nuptial vows during this period.

To be sure there were two Marys, which is considered by many to be a contraction of Mary but the Margarets won the honors of having the most brides of that name, when four of them signed the application for their marriage license with that name.

Of the 89 brides, not including the brides of Spanish extraction, there were three bearing the name of Martha and three of Florence and three of Gladys, Elizabeth, a name once heard often, had but one claimant; Betty fared better with two, as did Evelyn, Grace, Velma, Monna, Ethel, Ruth and Lillian.

The rest of those to assume the estate of a matron bore names that ranged from Alma to Xenia. Zelda and Jovita were, perhaps, among the most unusual listed.

The bridegrooms proved in a striking way that they considered old names the best, when five of them presented their brides with the title of "Mrs. John So-and-so" to be used on their brand new visiting cards. Among the grooms other sterling names were equally popular. Charles and Edward headed second places, with four each. There were two Earls, two Theodores, two Franks, two Harrys, two Leonards, two Chesters, two Arthurs, two Howards, two Pauls, two Georges, two Roberts and two Leland and two Cliffords.

The average age of those marrying at this time was between 20 and 28 and large number of the contracting parties were of the same age. In only three cases were the brides older than their mates.

The youngest bride was 16 years old, the oldest 48, the later marrying a man her exact age. The youngest bridegroom was 20 years old, the oldest 73. As the age at marriage passed beyond 20, a greater distance in years grew between the man and woman.

There were but two of the 16 year old brides, a few more 17 year old ones, more at 18, an increasing number at 19 and the greater number between the ages of 21 and 22.

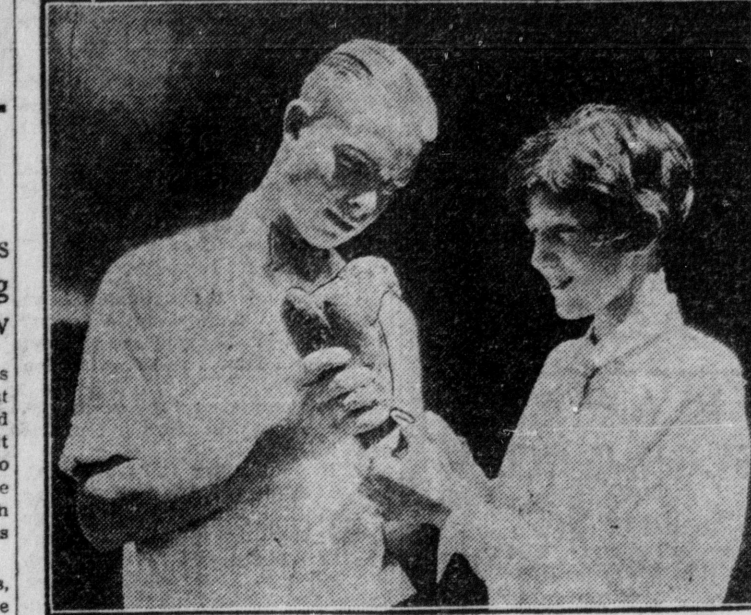

The greatest difference between the ages of those pledging eternal constancy was found in the pair where the bride was 29 and the man who won her, 73.

LARGEST HORSE DIES

BATTLE CREEK, Neb., July 15.—A few days after a $5000 insurance policy on him had run out, Lubber, largest horse in the world, contracted pneumonia and died here. Lubber weighed 3120 pounds, stood 21 hands high, and was 6 years old. He was a cross between Percheron, broncho, Shire and Belgian.

LOVE ALWAYS FINDS A WAY

A new twist has been given the old methods of exchanging notes. Santa Ana high school students learned to hand them across the aisle. Now the boys at Camp Osceola, Y. M. C. A. summer retreat in the San Bernardino mountains, are sending notes to their girls by homing pigeons. Here is Miss Margaret Gaebbe taking a note addressed to her by Herbert Prior. The pigeon is being held by Ed Wood, to whose loft it returned with the note attached to its leg.

COMMITTEE TO INSPECT CITY CAMPING SITE

With the purpose of making plans for the improvement of the 11-acre camping site at Forest Home recently granted to the city of Santa Ana by the national government, a committee appointed by Mayor Frank Purinton, and composed of C. H. Chapman, former councilman; W. S. Decker, city building inspector; C. L. Jenken, city engineer, and W. G. Knox, of the city council, motored today to Forest Home.

"We should spend every effort to keep and improve this tract for the city," W. G. Knox said today in announcing the trip. "It is beautiful, easily accessible, and the road is paved all the way."

The tract lies a mile from the Forest Home hotel at the upper end of the Big Pine tract. The committee will confer with forest supervisor S. A. Nash Bouldin, of San Bernardino, and forest ranger, J. H. Sanborn of that district with the idea of complying with government regulations in caring for and improving the camp site. The city will erect a permanent building there, which will provide all the desired accommodations to which modern camps are accustomed, including cooking facilities. Tentative plans for this structure will be developed by the committee today.

Clearing the roads and removing fire hazards by cutting the underbrush will be the first work to be initiated by the committee.

During the present year the camp grounds have not had many visitors due partly to the fact that the improvements have not been made. But the city is fortunate, commented Knox, to have such a beautiful location for its campers to use. During next season it is expected that large numbers of Santa Ana people will avail themselves of the privilege of using the site.

Knox, whose family is vacationing at Forest Home, and W. S. Decker, plan to remain in the mountains until Monday. Chapman, who plans to make repairs on his cabin at Forest Home, also will return to Santa Ana on Monday.

Carrier Pigeons Bring Notes from Camp to S. A. Girls

"Here is your air mail." The regular United States post-office service was not fast enough for the youths at Camp Osceola, Y. M. C. A. summer resort, so they are sending notes to their girls via pigeon express.

Three of the birds returned Tuesday and the other came in yesterday.

The first two birds to arrive came through the trap at Ed Wood's pigeon loft, 601 Lacy street. On the leg of each was a note one addressed to Miss Margaret "Feggy" Gaebbe from Herbert Prior and the other addressed to Miss Dorothy Stiff from Howard Bear.

As though with the wings of love, the pigeons had made record time in their flight from the camp back to Santa Ana. The air messengers had been released at 7:30 o'clock and they entered the home loft at 8:50 o'clock. The distance by air line is estimated to be 70 miles. At that rate, the pigeons sped home at a speed of 50 miles an hour.

The first "news" from the camp was brought by the pigeon which flew home to the loft kept by Howard Bear, 1401 East First street. The note was headed "The Pigeon Express News."

This is what the note contained: "Arrived safely Saturday about 1 p. m. Each tent with its bear went on a short hike Sunday afternoon. Everyone in camp went to big meadows Monday afternoon. All are well and happy."

"A boy from each tent makes up the council. These boys were elected Sunday night. They are as follows: Edward Gaebbe (also major of camp) from tent 1; Nell Tomlinson, from tent 2; Joe Knox, from tent 3; Edward Glick, from tent 4; Francis Grist, from tent 5; Charles Beach, from tent 6, and Ray Price from tent 7."

"Ted Stephenson is editor-in-chief of the camp paper, Howard Bear assistant editor and Royce Prior editor. Bugler, Howard Bear."

"All day hike is being planned on Wednesday. The fellows will take their lunches and hike to Jinx lake, another Y. M. C. A. camp. Jinx lake is about three miles from Camp Osceola."

"Three short talks have been given the fellows at camp fire. Bob Linhardt gave the talk Sunday night, and McArthur Monday night. Coleman Kickey started the camp going Saturday night. Signed 'The Osceola paper staff.'"

Although the pigeon express is faster it is not always entirely dependable. Sometimes the birds are shot. None have suffered that fate among those taken to camp, however. Severe penalties are enforced for shooting pigeons but it is done. The birds too, may loiter on the way home. Three more birds returned to Bear's loft Wednesday and Thursday. They had all been released, evidently, at the same time. Two flew directly home but the third remained out over night and came home the next day.

According to the notes attached to the legs of these birds "all in camp" are not well. Two of the boys have been afflicted with homesickness. One of the unwritten laws of camp is that no boy shall return home because of homesickness.

The seven camp tents each morning must undergo inspection. Ted Stephenson's tent No. 1 stands the highest, according to one of the notes. Every morning but one, his tent has won or tied for the inspection honors.

Camp Osceola, in the San Bernardino mountains, is the annual resort for the Y. M. C. A. youths of Orange county. The camp now in session is being attended by about 50 boys. T. P. McKee, boys secretary of Santa Ana, is in charge. The program for each day includes Bible study, devotionals, hikes, swimming, recreational periods, leaders meetings and camp fire discussions.

DIMPLES DISAPPEARING LONDON, July 15.—Women's faces are becoming harder and harder. Beauty specialists agree that the craze for slowness is putting a strain on the body that is reflected in the face. Dimples, they say, are disappearing so rapidly that really pretty ones now are extremely rare.

2250 GALLONS FLOWING FROM NEW S. A. WELL EACH MINUTE

All Danger of Shortage of Water Has Vanished, Superintendent Declares

MACHINERY BEST MONEY CAN BUY

Frequent Tests Indicate That City's Supply Is Entirely Free of Germs

With the city's new well and pumping plant at the end of North Bristol street forcing 2250 gallons of water per minute into the mains, today all possibility of a water shortage for the summer had vanished, according to Walter Wray, city water superintendent.

The pumps at the plant are working 16 hours a day, giving the city an additional 300,000 gallons of water daily and removing the necessity of taking water from the reservoir at Sixth and Olive streets which has, until now, been used as an emergency source of supply.

Running at full capacity the new plant is capable of meeting almost any necessity that might arise. Only in case of a large fire, in the opinion of Wray, would it become necessary to fall back on the reservoir at Sixth and Olive.

Plant Is Modern The machinery at the new plant is the best that money can buy, which, says the water superintendent, is the best economy in the end. A 120-horse-power Western Machinery company natural gas engine supplies the power which enables a Lynne Bowler pump to lift the water from the 1050-foot well. A 200,000 gallon concrete tank, which is roofed and amply ventilated, receives the water from the well. A 150-horse-power engine of the same type operates two Fairbanks Morse ball bearing pumps which draw the water from the reservoir and force it through the city's mains at the rate of 2250 gallons per minute. Both engines are started by compressed air and are automatically oiled. An oil filter purifies the oil after it is used and sends it back through the motors.

Water Found Pure The water from this well has been tested by the state health department, Wray stated, and found to be pure, so pure in fact that there is absolutely no need of chemical purification by means of chlorination.

"We want to give the people of Santa Ana the best and purest water supply possible," he said.

Tests reveal the fact that it is not necessary to resort to chemical purification of the water from any of the city's other wells and the citizens of Santa Ana are getting absolutely pure water that has not been tampered with in any way.

"The only times when we do chlorinate any of the water," said Wray, "occur when we have to use water from the dirt reservoir at Sixth and Olive streets. That has happened only four or five times during the summer. And with the supply of water from the new well, we will not have to resort to using water from the old reservoir at all."

In order to remove any possibility of impure water reaching the homes, the city health department conducts tests each week which reveal any condition of impurity that might exist. Records on file at the health department office show, however, that the water supply is

LONDON, July 15.—Sweet cakes and other eatables no longer accompany the Englishwoman's 5 o'clock cup of tea.

Years ago when it first became fashionable to take tea in the afternoon, no food was served, but during the reign of Queen Victoria the royal family set the example of serving rather a substantial meal with many kinds of sandwiches.

The "tea without milk" habit is also growing. Until recently tea without milk was only favored by Russians, who flavor it with a slice of lemon.

wishing to be rude to a lady, sadly went his way.
On the other hand, says Mr. McClure, almost all dog owners are polite and wish to conform to the city regulation. Many licenses have been bought by children who bring in a heap of pennies and dimes and nickels that they have earned or saved themselves.

The greater number of dogs here seem to be fox terriers and Boston bulls, with police dogs coming next. But a few greyhounds are to be found in spite of their present popularity.
Between 800 and 1000 dogs are licensed here each year. According to Mr. McClure the greater number of dogs are to be found in the best residential districts. "Laddie Boy" and "Spot" and "Spotty" are among the most popular names. Flido, once so popular, is seen but a few times on the records at the city hall. One shepherd dog on East Chestnut street has attained the age of 18 years.

AT THE THEATERS

Way Watts, former band leader and master of ceremonies at the West Coast-Walker theater, tonight as headliner on a Fanchon and Marco vaudeville bill.

YOST BROADWAY THEATER

A story of the race track world, intensely interesting and human, and strikingly lacking in the thread bare plot and situations which generally grace pictures of this locale, will open its engagement here at the Yost Broadway theater tonight.

It is "The Sunset Derby."

Utterly absent is the banal plot of the "fixed race," the doped horse, or the kidnaped jockey. There is no forcing the heroine into marriage or driving the old Kentucky colonel into bankruptcy. It is a story, instead, of a jockey—and, of course, a girl as well—who agrees to ride a small trainer's only horse as a favor, is injured in an accident, recovers only to find the accident has caused him to lose his nerve for riding.

From that point the story progresses to a climax full of drama and thrills and the grand "wind-up" comes of course in a race that is as perfectly staged as any event on the screen, with a thrill almost as real as if one were really watching from the grandstands with a bookmaker's ticket on the hero's horse.

Mary Astor and William Collier, Jr., make an ideal team as the girl for whom the jockey offers to enter the race, Mary Astor's personality and beauty have never been seen to better advantage. Collier's performance as the jockey is wholly convincing and he is excellent in his more dramatic scenes.

WEST COAST-WALKER

One of the best known and most popular musicians ever in Santa Ana is featured on the Fanchon and Marco program at the West Coast-Walker theater tonight and Saturday. Way Watts, who was the versatile band leader and master of ceremonies here for some six months will be on the local stage for two days only.

Watts has a way of making himself liked by his audiences and during his stay here he was a big hit. He has been touring the Fanchon-Marco circuit the last few months, being featured in presentations, and is steadily getting ahead. We're glad to see him back here for a while.

Others in the act are Joe Carlsen, Mabel Holles, Grace Hamilton, and Jack Stern and band.
On the screen is Rin Tin Tin's latest thriller, "Tracked by the Police," a rattling good melodrama of the old west. The reclamation of the Arizona desert, by the building of the huge Laguna Dam for irrigation purposes, figures in the story. The scenes taken of the dam itself and picturesque features of the vicinity give historic value to a story which would carry itself by its own impetus.

Jason Robards is the rough-neck hero, Virginia Browne Faire the rough-neck hero's imperiled lady, and big Tom Santschi, a villain of villains.
But it is Rin Tin Tin that runs away with the show. He has never in his eventful career had a part that gives more scope to his amazing abilities. All of which means that show is well worth seeing.

Investigations Told
In explaining the relation of the water supply to disease, Dr. K. H. Sutherland, of the county health department, stated yesterday that the only disease germ which is likely to be carried by water is the typhoid microbe. Tests for what is known scientifically as the coliform bacillus reveal the presence or absence of the typhoid germ. Investigations carried on week after week in Santa Ana show that there is no coliform bacillus present in the water supply except for an occasional faint trace, which is so small as to be of no importance. The water for the tests is taken from reservoirs, hydrants, fountains, wells—in fact at every possible point.

Phone Calls Frequent

Telephone calls have come to the health department frequently during the spring and early summer. Dr. Sutherland said, asking about the water supply. These calls arose, he said because of cases of intestinal trouble generally called intestinal flu. These cases have been few and are on the decrease. There are but two cases of typhoid in the county, both of which are on the road to recovery. In one case the disease was contracted outside the county.

Warns of Ditch Water

In discussing the means to avoid typhoid Dr. Sutherland warned against drinking water from irrigation ditches and streams. These are likely to carry the typhoid germ. Contrary to the prevalent belief, running water is not always pure. Aeration of the water as it flows does not make the water so pure that one can risk drinking it. But that citizens of Santa Ana need have no fear either of scarcity or impurity of their city water is the unanimous opinion of the authorities.

MONEY IS A PROBLEM

PEKING, July 15.—Travelers in China have found the numbers of coins and the rates of exchange an almost unsolvable problem. There are more than 200 different kinds of money, worth different amounts in different provinces. At one time there were 17 mints in the country working 24 hours a day.

With the Santa Ana unit, Company F, 160th Infantry, N. G. C., recruited to full peace time strength, plans were being made today by Captain Donald L. Winans to take the company, to the annual summer encampment to be held at El Monte, August 14 to 29. Six new members of the company were recruited last night, bringing the company strength to 62 members, which is full strength, it was said. The new men are Peter Capo Jr., John Hudkins, Edward Kelghtley, Roy O. King, Harry E. Senn and Frank E. Miles Jr. Captain Winans and First Lt. S. J. Watters and Second Lt. H. K. Osborne are busy drilling the men and making the necessary arrangements for the camp, gathering the necessary supplies and arms, and the headquarters of the company in the American Legion home is humming with activity. Approximately 5,000 members of which is 90 per cent of all the guard in the state, will be in camp this summer at various times. Just prior to the time when the 160th Infantry goes to camp, the 143rd field artillery, the 40th signal corps and the 40th tank corps will be at El Monte, vacating the camp on August 13. Prior to that the other two infantry regiments in the state, the 159th and the 184th, will be at El Monte, it was said.

COLORADO TOWN IS JUNKING TROLLEYS

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., July 14.—Western Colorado's only street car system, the system in this city, is being junked by the Public Service company. Bus service replaced street car service recently after permission for the change had been given by the city council. It was shown that the street cars were operated at a loss. Tracks are being torn up on Tenth, Gunnison and Fourth streets. The tracks in other parts of the city will be left for use of interurban cars and freight trains. The street car system was installed and placed in service in 1909.

Freak Fish Has Six Horns, Five Toes, Four Feet

DONIPHAN, Neb., July 15.—A fish resembling a catfish in shape and size, but having four feet with five toes on each foot and six horns, three on each side of the head, was caught with a pall in sandpit at Doniphan. Zoologists are of the opinion that the fish belongs to the salamander family, though they say that they have never before seen a specimen just like it.

PYTHIANS WILL FINISH HEALTH CAMP BUILDING

Placing the finishing touches on the administration building at the county health camp in Santiago canyon, members of the Tustin Knights of Pythias will spend the day at the camp wielding hammer and saw on July 17, Mrs. D. L. McCharles, of the Tustin Pythian Sisters, announced today.

The Pythian Sisters will serve a pot-luck dinner to the hungry laborers at noon. All Knights of Pythias families are asked to attend even though the women members of the family may not belong to the Pythian Sisters. Each woman is requested to bring a hot dish and salad or a hot dish and two pies. The Pythian Sisters will serve coffee and rolls free. Tables have been reserved at the tennis courts.

The camp was opened on June 15, sponsored by the Orange County Tuberculosis association and has been in charge of Mrs. Amelia Meagher, tuberculosis nurse of the county health department. The administration building was built by the voluntary work of the Anaheim Knights of Pythias.

'Badly Painted' Held Insult To Women In Paris

PARIS, July 15.—"Badly Painted," when addressed to a woman, is a reproach punishable by law, in the provincial courts at least. Since a woman powders, rouges and otherwise decorates her face to increase what beauty she has, to belittle her talent is a reflection on her good looks, said one judge. "Badly Painted," therefore, was held to be an insult. Damages were fixed at five francs.

MISSSES OUT ON DINNER GIVEN FOR AVIATORS

Harry Brackett, Santa Ana representative of the Remington-Rand corporation, is back in the city today after attending what he at first thought was the well-coming dinner given to Lt. Mattland and Lt. Hagenberger, Hawaiian flyers in San Francisco, Tuesday night, at the Commercial club.

As things turned out, all Brackett or his party saw of the dinner was the renowned fliers going to their seats. The party of which Brackett was a member, followed and took their seats, preparing to hear the addresses to be made by the governor and the mayor together with other San Francisco officials.

"Then we suddenly learned that we were in another dining room altogether and not at the welcoming dinner at all," Brackett said today. "Guess that's a horse on me," he added.

FISTIC PHENOM IS PRODUCT OF REGULAR ARMY

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—Jack Sharkey is the sailor's fistic idol. Gene Tunney the marine's, with Sergeant Sammy Baker making the other angle as a "regular army man."

Baker, regarded as the foremost challenger for the welterweight championship held by Joe Dundee, sprang into fame by "taming" Ace Hudkins, the "Nebraska wildcat," in seven rounds and more recently by a knockout victory over Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight champion, in nine rounds. Hudkins will attempt to erase the technical knockout when he meets Baker in a return match at Wrigley field here July 25. Sergeant Sammy arrives here tomorrow afternoon to begin training for the Hudkins bout.

Before starting his present "hitch" with the army air service at Mitchell field, New York, Baker served with the 21st infantry at Schofield barracks, near Honolulu, Hawaii. Here, in the regimental gym, he first took up the padded mitt pastime. A natural dexterity and a potential wallop, soon gave Baker favored billets instead of routine guard mounts, parades and formations.

A natural welterweight, Baker never has sacrificed strength in pruning natural poundage. Straight punching and ability to smother his opponent's blows brought him the welterweight championship of the "Rock," as the Hawaiian sector is nicknamed. Established as the best of battlers weighing from 142 to 147 pounds out of a total of some 20,000 enlisted men, Sergeant Sammy returned to the mainland, where he entered the professional ranks.

CHOLERA IN BOMBAY

BOMBAY, July 15.—The latest returns of the cholera epidemic in the southern division of the Bombay presidency show that there have been 22,568 attacks and 9315 deaths. About 10,000 inoculations are recorded. The situation is apparently well in hand, and it is hoped that the disease in this division will be stamped out within the next two or three weeks. The epidemic is traceable to pilgrims who came from the Madras presidency last February.

JAPAN OPENS HIGHWAYS

KOBE, Japan, July 15.—Modern highways, built with the latest machinery, are being opened in many sections of Japan. A 90-foot roadway from Kobe to Osaka, built for 20,000,000 yen, recently was opened with elaborate religious ceremonies and the accompaniment of ancient Shinto music.

PACKING OF PIMIENTOS BY SANTA ANA PLANT TO START ON SEPT. 1 OFFICIALS SAY

Opening their campaign a month later than in previous years, the officials of the California Packing corporation has set September first, or a date very near this time, to begin the season's pack of pimientos at their plant at the Santa Fe tracks on East First street.

CITY LICENSE TAXES MUST BE PAID BY TODAY

Persons who do not pay their city license taxes today will be declared delinquent tonight and a 10 per cent penalty will be added the first thing tomorrow morning, Ed Vegely, city clerk, said today as a final warning to business men of the city.

During the past several days the clerk's office has been swamped with persons procuring their licenses for the third quarter of the year, but, according to Earl Lentz, city license inspector, there are a number who have not as yet responded. A delinquent list will be made tomorrow with the penalty added for persons who have not renewed licenses, he said.

CREAMERY BUYS TWO FINE BULLS

Southern California's livestock industry received added strength and impetus this week with the arrival in Los Angeles of what are reputed to be the two finest bulls in America.

Purchase of the animals was made by W. C. DeLapp, field supervisor for the Crescent Creamery company, who returned yesterday from a tour of the east and the middle west, during which he attended the National Ormsby sale at Minneapolis, Minn., and visited all the leading Holstein herds in the country.

Of the thousands of animals he inspected, his choice fell on Trilune Ormsby Piebe 65th, and King Piebe Stillwood, the first 20 months old and the second only 15 months. Both were bought from Hargrove and Arnolds, at Norwalk, Iowa, declared by DeLapp to be the most outstanding Holstein breeding establishment in the United States today. DeLapp refused to quote the price paid, but it is understood to be one of the highest on record for bulls of this age.

SUBWAY PARK AT YORBA LINDA BEGINS IN FALL

An extension of time to September 1 has been granted to the county of Orange by the state railroad commission for the filing of an agreement between the county and the Pacific Electric railway regarding the construction of a subway crossing at Orchard avenue, near Stern station, south of Yorba Linda.

There has been delay, it was made known today, in completing arrangements for dividing the cost of the $15,000 structure between the county and the railroad. It is now stated that the railroad has agreed to pay half of the cost of a structure 20 feet long, but would not share in the cost of making the crossing 24 feet long, as desired by the county. So the county, it is said, has agreed to divide the cost of 20 feet of construction and pay the entire cost of the additional four feet.

The Orchard avenue subway crossing will replace the old timbered structure that is located some distance north of the new site.

FIRST CONCERT OF CITY BAND PLEASES 2000

Over 2000 music lovers of Santa Ana and nearby communities gathered in Birch park last evening, in honor of the opening program of the series of summer concerts now being presented weekly by Santa Ana Municipal band, with D. C. Clanton as director. Exceptionally well-chosen selections, pleasingly varied, and replete with brilliant contrasts, effectively displayed the recent improvement of the organization under Director Clanton's energetic leadership and careful painstaking training. Especially noteworthy is the manner in which the men respond to their director, thoroughly attuned with him in sympathy and musical understanding.

An agreeable march, "Up the Street" (Morse), characterized by grace and restraint, was followed by the Suppe overture, "Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna," in which the appeal of delicate passages-work contrasted well with gradually increasing crescendo of the second movement, displaying fine artistry and careful shading. The next number, "Musical Moment," a trio composed by the director, and one of the high lights of the program, was especially beautiful, with its soft appealing melody, being followed by an encore, "A Perfect Day." Clanton's trombone work is always especially effective, and received enthusiastic response from an appreciative audience.

The soft dreamy grace and lightness of the old favorite "Blue Danube Waltz," of Strauss, seemed at its best in this open-air presentation, its delicate and intriguing waltz-melody investing the night with romance and soft allurements. This was followed by a brief talk by Harry Hanson, president and manager of the band, who outlined plans for improvement of seating accommodations and the orchestra shell, also speaking of the band's future plans for the summer series.

Always in his element in operatic selections, the brilliant number from "Ernani," presented by Director Clanton and his men, was especially worthy of mention, delicate passages contrasting vividly with sudden flashes of fire, and an especially effective closing. The "Hungarian Dances" of Brahms, ever a favorite, its many sweet melodies woven into spirited and tantalizing effects, was interpreted with spirit and appreciation.

Enthusiastic applause greeted the appearance of Robert Bradford, popular singer, whose winning personality and grace of manner, as well as marked talent, endears him to the hearts of the community. The brilliant Barcarolle song from "La Gioconda" (Ponchielli), was especially adaptable for open-air presentation, being followed by two favorite encores, "Left," by Clarence Gustin, and "La Paloma."

In two short encore numbers offered by the band, the dreamy, romantic strains of "Siletta" contrasted well with "Funiculi-Funicula," spirited, full of the sheer joy of living. The dash and spirited vigor with which the closing march, "Fidelity" (Blankenburg), was presented by the band, made effective ending to an especially enjoyable program, in which both band members and their director lived up to their usual high standards of musical interpretation.

OFFICERS HUNTING CHICKEN THIEVES LAND NEGRO AFTER FAST RACE—BUT NO CHICKS

"We were out looking for a chicken thief and we brought in a colored man. No, you guessed wrong. He was speeding." The arrest of E. B. Whitworth, 28, dusky drug store employee, of Long Beach, was thus described today by Traffic Officers Floyd Yoder and Ole Buer, who ran Whitworth to earth in a Long Beach traffic jam after a furious chase from Los Alamitos.

According to the traffic cops, the colored man couldn't have been making any more speed if he had been getting away with chickens or in flight from a ghost. In their own fleet roadster, a twin of the machine driven by Whitworth, they were unable to head him off until he was blocked at a busy street corner. His speed, combined with an asserted odor of liquor on his breath, brought a reckless-driving charge upon Whitworth.

Yoder and Buer had attended a meeting of the peace officers association at Fullerton in the evening and were cruising the highways afterward, on the lookout for chicken thieves. At Los Alamitos they heard a distant roar that rapidly grew louder and nearer. Then Whitworth flashed past at a rate of speed higher than the officers could count.

"Here he comes," said Buer. "There he goes," said Yoder.

Thinking of chicken thieves, the officers pursued the colored man hopefully. Turning on Ocean avenue, he fled toward Long Beach. At the turn, the officers' car narrowly escaped the ditch but they managed to straighten it out and then the chase began in earnest. Going better than a mile a minute, the two cars raced on. At each fresh twist of the winding shore, the negro jumped in his seat and seemed to be pushing on the steering wheel. But luck was against him as he came into thick traffic and finally was halted at an intersection. Yoder and Buer colored him then.

Their suspicion of Whitworth's unusual speed was not lessened when he told them that he had been to Santa Ana, whereas it was patent that he had come either from Artesia or Anaheim.

But they couldn't find a single feather in his car.

WINTERSBURG

WINTERSBURG, July 15.—The church picnic which was planned by the combined Sunday school, Bible school and Home Missionary society members was held Wednesday at Anaheim Landing.

Guests Wednesday at the M. C. Hazard home included Mr. and Mrs. Forgie, friends from Taft, and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Burk, of Long Beach. In the evening, Mrs. Hazard, Mr. and Mrs. Burk, Mr. and Mrs. Forgie and Mrs. Eva Hicks attended the Moose lodge meeting at Huntington Beach. The Henry Snadell was hostess Wednesday afternoon to the members of the Willing Workers society of Wintersburg. A quilt was completed by the workers during the afternoon and at the business meeting which was held, final plans were made for financing a small local boy for a period at the Trabuco health camp. The Willing Workers voted to discontinue their meetings for a month or six weeks following the next meeting, which will be held in the home of Mrs. George Hickman in two weeks.

Present at Wednesday's meeting were Mrs. E. C. Anderson, Mrs. George Hickman, Mrs. A. Anderson, Mrs. Ray McCormack, Mrs. W. A. Irvin, Mrs. R. S. Moore, Mrs. E. P. Nichols, Mrs. M. M. Wright, Mrs. M. A. Bailey, Mrs. Sarah Hodgins, Mrs. Mills Cowling, Mrs. Harriette Dowdy, Mrs. Cameron, Mrs. F. King, Mrs. Frank Ingersoll and the hostess, Mrs. Snadell.

Mr. and Mrs. DeBusk and family left the first of the week for Ventura to remain for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Ranney and children motored to Long Beach to visit the Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Swift, former Nevada, Mo., friends. The marriage of Miss Helen Hardin, a granddaughter of Mrs. Harriette Dowdy, of this place, and Joseph Axton, of Huntington Beach, is a recent event of interest to local friends.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ranney were Tuesday evening dinner guests in the Huntington Beach home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hill. Mr. Ranney and Mr. Hill are both connected with the schools of Huntington Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips, who have been camping down the coast the past two weeks in company with Mr. and Mrs. P. S. White, friends from Los Angeles, returned home Thursday.

Mrs. Harriette Dowdy and son, Cecil Dowdy, were delighted to have as their guests one day this week three former school friends of Cecil Dowdy's from Baxter Springs, Kas. The visitors were Hugh Campbell, John Willis Cameron and Mrs. Jessie Cameron. Their meetings are in progress in the Cameron tract, a tent having been pitched here Wednesday by a company of the Brethren faith from Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Avent, of the Stockton tract, have returned from a three weeks' vacation trip which they made to the state of Washington.

Eight books requested by patrons of the Wintersburg county branch library, were brought to the library this week by the county librarian, Miss Margaret Livingston.

On Wednesday evening, Mrs. Frank Lane and Mrs. Will Weeks were entertained in the Dowdy home, and on Tuesday Mrs. Mark Kootz of Montebello, and her sister, Mrs. Pearl Clint, of Whittier, were entertained at dinner.

TRADE STUDIES BEING MADE AT CALIFORNIA U

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—More than 50 different trades are now being studied by teachers who expect to go out and instruct vocational students. This is the statement of Benjamin W. Johnson, assistant director, division of vocational education, University of California at Los Angeles, in the last issue of the Vocational Education News Notes.

The beginning of organized training for the teachers of trade and industrial subjects dates from the winter of 1917-18, less than a year after the passing of the Smith-Hughes act granting federal aid to the states for the promotion of vocational education, he says, in tracing its history.

Two centers were established for the training of trade and industrial teachers for California, one in the Bay region in Oakland, in co-operation with the University of California, and the other in Los Angeles, in cooperation with the University of California at Los Angeles.

At the present time, Dr. Edwin A. Lee of the University of California is director of the division of vocational education, and Benjamin W. Johnson is assistant director of the division in the south.

The quality of the candidates for training has made possible a continued upgrading and raising of the standards for teachers. Two years of high school are now necessary and additional work must now be done for a long-term credential, according to Johnson.

Tests to determine the craftsmanship ability are also given, as well as mental test examinations. Each trainee is required to make a complete analysis of a trade as a requirement of completing the course.

Trade-analysis work was established through the research and service center at the University of California, under the direction of Miss Emily Palmer. Bulletins on the analysis of the different trades have been published since and are in great demand.

The future of the teacher training work is very promising, says Johnson. It is now recognized that professional training is necessary for instructors of trade and industrial subjects. Further courses soon will be offered.

3 UNION OIL WELLS PLACED ON PRODUCTION

ATWOOD, July 15.—Honors this week go to the Union Oil company for its three new producers. Thompson and Goodwin No. 9, located in the center of the field, on Van Buren street, came in with an initial production of 500 barrels of 22.5 degree gravity oil. The next well to come in was Stern No. 8, also on Van Buren street, but further south on the edge of the field. This well was drilled to a depth of 4567 feet and is making 300 barrels a day, which seems to be the standard amount of production for this location. One location to the north, Stern No. 4 came in a little later and was put on the beam, making about 65 barrels in eight hours.

The Union Oil company is the largest operator in the field at present and has several more wells about ready to come in.

The Chanlor-Canfield-Midway's two wells, Richfield No. 7 and Richfield No. 8, on Van Buren street, are about ready to come in. No. 7 is nearly ready for the 8 1/4 inch oil string, having only 500 feet more to drill. No. 8 has 900 feet to drill and the oil string will be 6 1/4 inch casing. Both wells will be finished at 4600 feet.

Outside of the field at Olinda, these two wells are the only ones in this section being drilled by the C. C. M., the company concentrating all new development operations in the Ventura district.

Several new wells have been spudded in, the Standard Oil having two, Vejar No. 2 and Anaheim Union Water company No. 3, both on the bluff by the lake, while at the west edge of the field Petroleum Securities spudded in on Wright No. 1.

In this same section Sam Herndon, who is drilling part of the Lemke lease on contract for the General Petroleum, has Wallop No. 1 down 3600 feet and Lemke No. 2, which is on the lease he has sub-let from the Chiksan, is down 2450 feet in shale and sand, while the rig is completed for Lemke No. 3.

Herndon is now the whole of the firm, having purchased the interest of his former partner, Hunter.

The Chiksan has the rig up for Basten No. 2 and Robertson No. 1 is down to 5450 feet. No information is given out as to prospects. Mathis No. 1 is down 8710 feet.

On the south of Placentia the Shell Oil company's test well, Allec No. 1 is down 1430 feet. Corling has been started but no results will be given out.

In the Yorba Linda district the Swain No. 1 drilled by George Johnson, is down 3350 feet and Nugent's Damon No. 2 is down 2970 feet.

The Holly Development company's "mystery well" has at last been completed and is making around 150 barrels. It is not a deep sand well having been brought in at 2625 feet.

Berry and Todd's Thurston No. 1 is drilling ahead after a fishing job and is down 4000 feet. The well failed to be a commercial producer at 3550 feet because of water and is being drilled to a deeper sand.

J. Delaney has definitely decided to abandon Hayton No. 1, which was drilled to 5005 feet in a fault zone.

BULB FIRM BUYS 10-ACRE TRACT

ANAHEIM, July 15.—Plans for the immediate purchase of a 10-acre tract of land that will practically double the present planting area of the Highway Bulb Gardens, and a change in personnel of the board of directors, were announced this morning by C. R. Hannah, president-manager of the concern.

The land purchased is planted to walnuts and is located on Orangewood avenue about two miles west of the present site of the enterprise, which faces the state highway about two miles south of this city.

With the 14 acres included in the state highway site and the additional land, the concern now has available for bulb cultivation 24 acres of land and, according to Hannah, expects to have between 30 and 35 acres under cultivation before fall.

The change in directorate reported is the retirement from the business of L. T. Clem, who has sold his share in the business to Mr. Hannah. A. Mott, another shareholder, has been elected to the board in Mr. Clem's place and will serve as secretary-treasurer.

Buena Park Church To Build Soon

BUENA PARK, July 15.—The present Congregational church in Buena Park will be replaced by a building to cost $20,000 or more, according to a decision reached by the board of trustees last night. The plans have been under consideration for some time but an agreement had not been reached until this week. The contract will be let within 60 days.

DEAN OF LAW SCHOOL TO GIVE NEWPORT TALK

NWPORT BEACH, July 15.—Roland L. McNitt, dean of the law school of Southwestern University, of Los Angeles, will speak before the local Exchange club at the regular meeting next Wednesday at the Southern Seas club. It was announced today by G. C. Macleod, secretary.

McNitt is said to be a playground expert and he is booked to reveal to the club some facts regarding playgrounds as they apply to this community.

At the last meeting of the club, the high school district question was discussed at length with the result that a committee was named to draft a form letter to all residents of Newport Beach, Costa Mesa and Palmdale, asking the co-operation in obtaining the new district.

That a sum of money totaling approximately $1500 must be raised in the communities involved to proceed with legal action in an effort to gain the school district, was the assertion of several speakers who have been in close touch with the committee.

The committee appointed included C. H. Way, chairman; Hal Will Smith, J. A. Gant, Judge W. A. Leonard and W. L. Jordan.

HIGH TIDES WASH OUT JETTY TRACKS

NEWPORT BEACH, July 15.—Three hundred feet of track of the Hauser Construction company, contractors on the west jetty, was washed out by high tides early yesterday morning and replaced by night in order to protect the remainder of the track and also to keep the high tides scheduled for the remainder of the week from washing on to the peninsula.

An extra crew of men was kept busy all day yesterday in repairing the damage done by seven-foot tides. Although the work of dumping rock for the jetty was thrown behind a day, according to "Hard-rock" Bill Arndt, foreman, the company is so far ahead of schedule that the delay is of no importance.

Name Of Main Newport Street May Be Changed

NEWPORT BEACH, July 15.—Shall the name of Newport Beach's principal thoroughfare be changed from Central avenue, to El Toro avenue, Balboa boulevard, or some other name?

G. C. Macleod, secretary of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce, has received suggestions that the name be changed and other suggestions as to what substitute should be used.

Edwin Potter, Los Angeles capitalist and extensive owner of local property, suggested that the name of the avenue be changed, and another found which would be more appropriate. Potter pointed out that in certain other cities where the name Central avenue is used, the district through which it runs is not desirable for residence.

Macleod urges that persons who have suggestions, send them in now while the city trustees are considering a change.

Start Erection Of Westminster School Building

WESTMINSTER, July 15.—Work has begun on the new Westminster school building, which is being built to relieve the congestion of the main building.

The building will be of stucco construction and will be 22 by 62 feet. There will be two rooms. The school will be used to house the Mexican pupils.
The building was originally planned to be built on the street running north and south by the railroad, but as this would interfere with the children's playground, this plan was abandoned and it will be located directly in the rear of the large building. The foundation is all in and the school will be completed in ample time for the opening of school.

RETRACTION BY FORD FAILS TO IMPRESS RABBI

LAGUNA BEACH, July 15.—Rabbi Julius A. Liebert, of Long Beach, who is spending two months in Laguna Beach, has issued a statement in which he says he is untouched by Henry Ford's retraction regarding the Jews.

Rabbi Liebert is one of the best educated clergymen in America. His statement reads:

"The indictment of the entire Jewish people by one man—though he be a billionaire—has never perturbed my equanimity. And consequently I am emotionally untouched by his belated retraction."

"I have always suspected that Henry Ford set out to build up Jewish detractors as a means of selling his own tractors. And his belated retraction only confirms my suspicion."

"Several questions rise in my mind: Is it possible that for seven long years Henry Ford knew nothing of the poison his paper was pouring into the American soul? Is it likely that for seven long years he lived in a vacuum into which not one of the millions of protests voiced alike by outraged Jew and indignant Gentile, could penetrate?"

"Is it not reasonable to believe that Henry Ford recoiled not at the insistence of a suddenly awakened conscience, but because the impending trial between himself and Aaron Sapiro would soon expose him as a baseless slanderer, a dangerous demagogue, and, without a tragic dupe, controlled and regulated by a coterie of malicious underlings?"

"Ah, if Henry Ford had only recanted at the time when the so-called 'Jewish Problem' was a vital issue, when millions eagerly read his attacks, when millions actually believed him, and when millions, prejudice-poisoned, turned to persecute the Jew!"

"But to retract now, when both the Dearborn Independent and the Jewish issue are as dead as Tut-Ank-Amen, who, I ask, will benefit by it?"

"Henry Ford ought to realize that scandal has a greater radius than praise. He ought to know that his apology won't travel as far as his accusations. He ought to know that his 'excuse me' won't retrieve the loss in life and property the Jews have sustained through his canard."

"I am glad for the sake of truth that Mr. Ford has finally beheld it. But I believe that a wrongdoer must first make restitution, adequate restitution, before he can be forgiven."

"Mr. Ford, we are awaiting the restitution."

APARTMENTS, GARAGE AND SERVICE STATION WILL BE BUILT IN LAGUNA DISTRICT

LAGUNA BEACH, July 15.—A store and apartment building is to be erected by the Coast Industries company at Dana Point. Of a distinct Spanish type, the building will depend for much of its beauty on the clever arched effect on the street and the unique roof lines. A wrought iron balcony above the arches will have gay Spanish curtains hanging over it.

Lights, doors, windows and coloring will all add their bit of old Spain. Fay Spangler is the architect.

Service stations and garages nowadays can be made to look as interesting as houses, and the one which Spangler has designed for J. E. Seeman at Arch Beach is as charming in its Spanish atmosphere as any bit of architectural loveliness built here. Walls of white stucco, with tree shadows thrown on them; flat roof lines with old beams sticking out of the side walls as one finds them in old adobe houses; an arched colonnade; beautifully proportioned doors and windows and quaint lamps which seem to belong to the building—all these things have been given to the garage. The service station is also Spanish, but more modern. The roof lines are not flat and the red-tiled roof gives more color.

Both buildings have been designed with a keen sense of artistic value. They will be creditable to Laguna Beach, a city of highly artistic sensibilities. The geographical position of these buildings gives a splendid view of the Pacific as they are situated on the ocean side of the boulevard, on a lot 100 by 100 feet, which has been owned by the Seemans for many years.

The garage will cost about $5000 and the filling station $5000.

2 FULLERTON AVIATORS WILL GET WELCOME

FULLERTON, July 15.—Plans were laid yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the board of directors of the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce for extending a cordial welcome to two Fullerton aviators who will arrive in Fullerton next week from the east.

William Dowling and one of his students from the Fullerton municipal airport went to Troy, Ohio, recently in order to bring back two new Waco planes from the factory at that city.

If plans of the directors work out, a special committee from the various service clubs in the city as well as from the chamber of commerce and from the city council will greet the flyers on their return.

The board of directors expressed much interest in the air field and are behind all the improvements which are to be made in the near future. Howard Krause, chairman of the committee on aeronautics, reported on the progress of the field to date.

The Rev. S. Fraser Langford, pastor of the First Baptist church, reported on the results accomplished in the model yacht contest which was held recently among the boys of the daily vacation Bible school. A permanent model yacht organization is to be started according to the Rev. Mr. Langford.

Ingram, manager of the West Coast-California theater here since its erection in 1921, left with his family yesterday for Klamath Falls, Ore., to take possession of a large camping ground which he secured in a trade for the Ingram apartments on West Broadway, this city. The deal is said to have involved approximately $55,000.

Though Mr. Ingram has severed his active connection with the Anaheim theater, he states that he still retains a financial interest in the business.

The camp site purchased by Mr. Ingram comprises 90 modern cabins and is reputed to be one of the best known in the northern part of the state.

WATER PARADE ROUTE GIVEN BY J. A. BECK

NEWPORT BEACH, July 15.—The course which the tournament of lights carnival parade will follow on the bay on the night of July 30 was outlined today by J. A. Beck, general chairman of the annual event. The course, as outlined by Beck, will be marked by 20 floats, now in course of construction, with the red and green sailing lanterns usually found on water craft attached to masts.

The formation point for the floats, barges, yachts and smaller craft which will participate in the parade will be the turning basin between the pavilion at Balboa and Balboa island. The parade will wind its way down the bay toward the entrance on the south side, turning at the Southland sailing club and returning along the northern channel to a point just west of Collins island.

From Collins island the parade will move south past the Bay Island to a point in front of the Newport Harbor Yacht club. It will then proceed west to the Newport turning basin opposite Nineteenth street. It will double back from there along the south shore of the bay to the starting point in front of the pavilion.

Advertisements to be placed on trains and busses and in store windows throughout the Southland are being prepared for distribution, according to Beck.

NURSERY SCHOOL FOR LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, July 15.—Arrangements have been completed for a nursery school in Laguna Beach to run for the next two months, and longer if the plan is found feasible. There have been two pre-school circles here, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association, and the nursery school has been brought about by the interest aroused through these groups of women. Mrs. N. E. West is the president of the pre-school circles here, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association, and the nursery school has been brought about by the interest aroused through these groups of women.

Mrs. N. E. West is the president of the Pre-School Circle No. 2 and has been instrumental in making the plans for the nursery school. Miss Elsie Davis, a teacher trained at the University of California at Los Angeles under Miss Barbara Greenwood, has been engaged.

A petition is before the board of directors of the Woman's club asking that permission be given to hold the nursery school in the clubhouse. The extensive grounds of the club would be available all so if the petition is granted.

Equipment will be secured at once and it is expected to have the school in actual operation inside of a week.

The nursery school idea was fostered by a visit to the several nursery schools of Los Angeles at the invitation of Mrs. West when about 20 Laguna Beach citizens availed themselves of the opportunity of seeing what the nursery schools are really doing for small children.

Williams, had a narrow escape from death Wednesday evening, when the seat on a stripped car which he was driving unceremoniously left the body, throwing him near a stone culvert. WIDENING OF NEWPORT ROAD IS PROJECTED NEWPORT BEACH, July 15.—Widening of Newport road 10 feet more than its present width will probably take place in the fall after the summer beach traffic has abated, according to word received by G. C. Macleod, secretary of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce, from George Jeffrey, supervisor for the fifth district, which includes Newport Beach.

That he has had the matter of widening the highway before him for consideration for at least six months and would have widened it now except for the heavy traffic is the statement credited to Jeffrey.

It is understood that a two-foot strip on each side would be added, and a shoulder applied in addition, to make up a total of five feet more width from the center on each side.

Jeffrey also assured Macleod that instruction has been given Dr. F. W. Slabaugh, county purchasing agent, to obtain an electric safety device for installation at the intersection of Newport road and Coast highway at the Arches. That the device would be installed shortly was his statement, according to Macleod.

During the day this is thrown open to the public. While dances are in progress either end of the promenade is closed for use of patrons. In addition to decorations, a large electric suction fan has been installed to provide the best ventilation possible for the dance floor.

PINCHED

Nerves cause the weakness that is responsible for most all bodily disorders. The above statement is not idle thought, but is fact proven conclusively day after day in the offices of every competent Chiropractor, for it is by removing the pressure from these pinched nerves that health has been so painlessly yet surely restored to countless hundreds who have suffered every kind of distress. Are you in pain? Is your body weakened and run down? If so, why not give it the attention it needs? Allow it a chance to do its work properly. It will not fail you.

NEWS FROM ORANGE AND SURROUNDING DISTRICT

LOT EXCHANGE WILL BE VOTED ON IN ORANGE

ORANGE, July 15.—A mass meeting of the electors of the Orange high school district will be held in the high school auditorium this evening at 8 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting is to give the school board authority to proceed with the proposed exchange of school property.

Before the meeting the high school board will hold a business session to open bids on the exchange of the property, which is necessary in legal proceedings.

After the deal is entirely outlined to the electors, a vote will be called for opinion on the matter. The exchange calls for six school lots situated on North Orange street between Sycamore and Walnut avenues to be traded for six lots adjoining the school property. These would be used for a new girls' athletic grounds.

The dwelling now occupying the property would be moved at the cost of the school and would cost about $10,000, according to Principal Henderson. In order to avoid a bond election for that purpose this money has been provided for in the next year's budget.

BIBLE PUPILS TO CONDUCT SERVICE

ORANGE, July 15.—At the regular union meeting of the churches Sunday evening students of the Vacation Bible school will have charge of the services. There will be no preaching and the whole program will be conducted by the members of the school. The services will be held in the Presbyterian church.

An exhibit of the work done in the school during the summer will be shown and various members of the school will give musical numbers.

A special effort will be made to show what the Bible school has accomplished during the few weeks of its session. Besides the exhibit there will be readings and selections taken from the Bible as taught in the school. Many pieces of handwork which have been made by the children will be shown on the platform.

Orange Ready To Conduct Campaign On Stray Canines

ORANGE, July 15.—The annual drive on unlicensed dogs that persist in straying away from the home domicile will be launched within a few days by Orange police, according to a warning sounded today by City Marshal B. F. Richards.

The city marshal stated that dog licenses become due July 1 and that dog owners who have not as yet procured the tags will only be given a short period of grace before the campaign against wandering canines gets under way.

All unlicensed dogs found exploring city streets are to be taken into tow by Joe Johnson, deputy dog-catcher, and committed to the city dog pound. If the animals are unredeemed within a certain prescribed time they will suddenly lose all interest in the dog kingdom, according to Richards.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

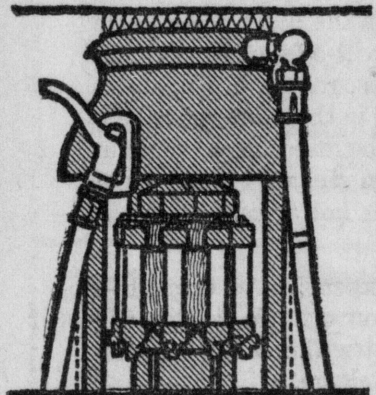

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. DAUGHERTY, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

DEATH RATE ON PACIFIC COAST STILL LOWEST

NEW YORK CITY, July 15.—The cities of the Pacific coast continue to lead the country in having the lowest baby death rates.

This is one of the conclusions from the annual report on infant mortality for 1926 just issued from the New York city office by the American Child Health association, of which Herbert Hoover is president. The figures are based on preliminary records received from the U. S. census bureau and from state and local officials.

The 38 cities of over 10,000 population of the three west coast states, Washington, Oregon and California, have a combined rate for 1926, of 54, which represent the number of deaths under one year of age per thousand births. The west north central states stands second with a rate of 64. This area is represented by 33 cities from the states of Nebraska, Kansas and Minnesota. The middle Atlantic section is third with a rate of 73. This represents 174 cities of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Here's the comparison. Comparison of the reductions in infant mortality during the last five years indicate that the cities of the Pacific group declined 8 points, or from 62 in 1922 to 54 in 1926. The west north central cities dropped 3 points or from 67 to 64. The middle Atlantic cities fell from 81 to 73, also a decline of 8 points. In this comparison certain cities are omitted which were not in the birth registration area in 1922.

A significant statement is made in the report to the effect that "in the effort to preserve infant life all cities do not start from the same base line. Until the various influences, hereditary and environmental are identified and their importance weighed, it is not possible to utilize infant mortality rates as dependable comparative indices of public health activity."

Among the largest cities, those over 250,000 population, Portland, Ore., had the lowest rate, 39. Seattle, Wn., was second with a rate of 47, and San Francisco third with 50.

The three cities in the population group 100,000 to 250,000 (1920 census) were New Haven, Conn., 64, St. Paul, Minn., and Cambridge, Mass., each with 66.

Low rates among smaller cities were those reported from Oak Park, Ill., 35, Pasadena and Berkeley, Calif., 36 and 37 respectively, and Everett, Mass., 38.

The American baby is apparently as safe in the large as in the small city judging by the averages, for the lowest rate was that for cities of over 250,000 population, namely 71.7. The population group 25,000-50,000 stood second with a rate of 73.2. The highest average was 76.3 for the cities of 10,000 to 25,000 population.

"The infant mortality rate for 1926 in 613 of the 644 cities of the Birth Registration Area is 72.7," the report states. "This represents an increase instead of a reduction over the previous year. The rate for 632 cities in 1925 was 72.6. The lowest rate so far attained was 72.3 for 629 cities in 1924."

The annual reports on infant mortality in titles of the United States have been issued by the American Child Health association each year since 1919, with the object of interesting the entire country in the reduction of infant mortality and the necessity for complete birth registration. In 1926 there were but 25 of the 48 states and the District of Columbia whose records were of sufficient accuracy to admit them to the Birth Registration Area. The Association strongly supports the government's efforts to have the entire country within the Birth Registration Area by 1930.

Man Is Distrustful Person WOMAN HAS DOCUMENT PRINTED IN 1776.

S: A. Girl Is Movie Double

SEE-SAWING Up and Down FOURTH STREET

By The Rambler

You may have read a lot of sentimental claptrap about human nature and rugged honesty and the open door but after all man is a hard-shelled, crafty, miserly, churlish, pennywise and unwelcome creature and at heart, is distrustful and suspicious of the other fellow.

For confirmation and corroboration we refer you to the banks which provide enormous, burglar-proof vaults in which man may deposit his gold and his accumulations and in this particular instance to what remains of the old Bank of Italy, located until its recent merger with the Orange County Trust and Savings bank, at the southwest corner of Fourth and Broadway.

The gold, the valuable documents, the records have been moved, by the way, under heavy guard. The president's swivel chair, the teller's stool and the stenographer's desk all have been taken away. Even the calendar, publicizing the bank's enormous growth, has been shunted to make way for a corner drug store.

But mute evidence of man's distrust of his neighbor still remains in the form of the old vaults and safes which to remove will require a week's hard labor on the part of an entire staff of brawny drillers and "blowers" in order that alteration work may be undertaken by drug store carpenters.

Powerful pressure is being brought to bear on the concrete and steel walls and iron rods that once protected thousands of treasures and while progress is slow, the old underground hiding place of man's wealth and the evidence of his coldly calculating nature eventually will be destroyed.

Mrs. Mary F. Hutchins, 627 North Birch street, has a family heirloom of which she is justly proud and which she intends shortly to put in the safekeeping of some museum where it may be properly exhibited.

The instrument is a handbill that was printed in 1776, bearing the date of November 1 of that year. It is a published appeal of sort for 30 days. Those going will be Ethel Kuenzli, Victoris Reed, Jerry Woodward, Florence Reynolds, Nondys Smith, Margaret Culp, Myrna Mannis, Ruby White, Artha Ball, Kathryn Mitchell, Zella Hill and Ruth Livingston.

Mrs. George Marshall has gone to Encinitas, where she is in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hortense Krug. Mrs. Krug is reported quite ill and is soon to undergo a major operation.

Elsie Warfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Warfield, residing two miles east of Brea, was married on Wednesday evening to Carl Green, of Fullerton. The simple ring ceremony was used with the Rev. J. J. Bell, pastor of the Baptist church of Brea, officiating in the presence of about 40 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Green will reside on North Yale street, Fullerton.

Mrs. Earl Templeman, accompanied by her mother-in-law, Mrs. B. H. Templeman, motored yesterday over to Glendale, where they were luncheon guests in the home of Mrs. W. C. Ritter, an old friend of the Templeman family.

E. A. Schakow, who last week submitted to an operation at the Fullerton hospital, was brought to his home here Wednesday. Mr. Schakow is said to be greatly improved.

Members of the Baptist Ladies' Aid society met at the home of Mrs. A. D. Clayton at Stewart station, yesterday, for an all-day session. A pot-luck dinner was served at noon. The morning and afternoon was devoted to the making of comforts.

Funeral services are being held this afternoon for Mrs. Helen Hey, who passed away Wednesday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Harry Alger, on the Stearns lease of the Union Oil company. Mrs. Hey is survived by another daughter, Mrs. George Alger, also a resident of the same lease. Services were held from the chapel of McAlay-Suters with the Rev. J. G. Schmelzter, pastor of the German Lutheran church, Anaheim, officiating. Interment was made in Loma Vista. Mrs. Hey, who was 54 years old, was the victim of heart trouble.

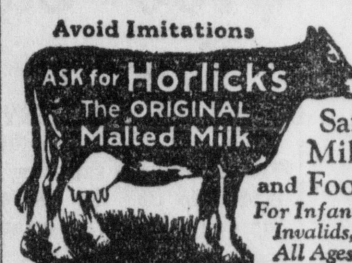

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bethel, of Los Angeles, were all-day visitors Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Sinclair.

Mr. and Mrs. Oren Ober and family left this week for Kansas, where they will settle temporarily until Mr. Ober makes new business connections. The Obers recently sold their grocery store here to Fred Boling, of Santa Ana, who has already taken possession.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Senn, long time residents of Brea until about a year ago, are returning this week to their home on South Walnut after having lived for some months on a small ranch near Costa Mesa. Mr. and Mrs. Senn, who have been occupying the Senn property are moving to the home of L. A. Will on South Orange. Mr. and Mrs. Will are at the same time moving to Fullerton where they will be located in the Arey property on West Amerige, and where Mr. Will has accepted a position with the Fullerton high school engineering department.

M. L. Ward, of the Duro Engineering company, has let to H. M. Massey the contract for a six-room modern house on West Cedar street, construction to begin at once. The house is to be of hollow tile, with a tile roof, and will incorporate the very latest ideas in plumbing and lighting devices.

Mrs. Mable Hunter and four children left yesterday for Gilroy, where they will join Mr. Hunter, who has been employed there for some time with the Continental Oil company. Mrs. Hunter made the trip by automobile. They will probably remain in Gilroy until the well which Mr. Hunter is now working on is completed, when he will return with the family.

CHEYENNE, WYO. IS GIVEN U. S. LANDING FIELD

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 15.—The city of Cheyenne today is the owner of perhaps the best equipped municipal airport in America, excepting only that of Buffalo, N. Y., as the result of the transfer to Cheyenne of nearly all the improvements at the air mail field heretofore owned by the postoffice department.

The only improvements at the landing field, which is ground owned by the city, not turned over to the municipality, are the "wireless" towers and aerial and the "wireless" station. These have been transferred to the department of commerce.

Transfer of the airport plant to the city of Cheyenne is the result of termination of governmental transportation of the transcontinental air mail, which, effective Friday, was taken over by private contractors. Coincidentally with termination of governmental operation of airplane mail carriers the government's lease from the city of Cheyenne on the air mail landing field expired. It is anticipated that the field and plant will be leased by the Boeing Airplane corporation, which has the air mail carrying contract between Chicago and San Francisco.

The property presented to Cheyenne by the postoffice department, with the approval of the president, cost approximately $100,000. It includes the following: Three brick hangar buildings, each 62x86 feet; one brick office building, 30x86 feet; one brick shop building, 62x86 feet, with the equipment thereof; one power house, 16x20 feet; one floodlight, one 24-inch beacon light, one 36-inch beacon light, one 25-KW generator, field boundary lights.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875 the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

Dr. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 83

The prescription for constipation which he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1882 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

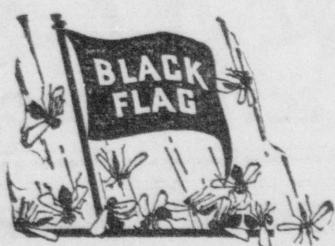

Under successful management this prescription has proved its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and if you will only start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin" Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Kills every fly, mosquito, ant

WHEN you kill bugs—kill them all! Black Flag used in a roomful of flies or mosquitoes gets every one of the pests. It is the deadliest insect-killer made.

Black Flag is the demon destroyer of ants, too! It also rids your home of fleas, bed-bugs, roaches and moths. It contains a secret vegetable ingredient which insects breathe—and die. But it is absolutely harmless to humans and animals. Try Black Flag. Two forms, equally deadly—Liquid and Powder. At drug, grocery, hardware and department stores. Powder 15c up.

SANTA ANA LODGE ACTIVITIES

PYTHIANS AT HEALTH CAMP WILL PICNIC

A picnic dinner will be served the workmen of the Knights of Pythias lodge by the Tustin Pythian Sisters at the Orange county health camp in Santiago canyon next Sunday.

Committee members were appointed to arrange for the dinner at the meeting of the Tustin temple Thursday night of last week. Gladys Perozzi, Alma Schwendeman and Edna Squires are in charge of the arrangements for serving.

Some time ago the Anaheim lodge performed work like that being planned by the Tustin lodges at the camp.

Other business matters were brought before the Tustin Pythian Sisters at the meeting. The plans for the annual labor day celebration held in Orange county park are being outlined. Emma Shearman and Dorothy Padias were appointed on a committee to assist in the arrangements.

WHITE SHRINE AND SCOTS TO PICNIC AUG. 4

The Santa Ana White Shrine chapter will join with the Scots in holding a steak bake and dance at Orange county park August 4, according to action taken at the regular meeting of the order on Thursday evening of last week in the Knights of Pythias hall.

No meetings will be held in the meantime. The Shrine voted that the next two meetings will be "dark" because of summer vacations.

A social program was held following the business meeting. Card games were played and afterwards the Shrine members adjourned to the dining room, where they were served with refreshments. Mrs. Florence Knight was chairman of the committee in charge.

Members Of S. A. Auxiliary Are Guests In Home

Members and friends of Calumet auxiliary No. 29 U. S. W. V. enjoyed the pleasant hospitality of Mrs. Belle Nourse, Mrs. Lulu Chaplain and Mrs. Emma Kellogg, when the hostesses entertained the sewing circle at the Nourse home, 119 Owens drive. The afternoon was entirely a social one and all gathered on the beautiful lawn, where, after friendly conversation, refreshments were served. The refreshments consisted of up-side-down cakes, whipped cream, coffee and doughnuts. Twenty-six guests enjoyed the hospitality of the hostesses.

SOAP MAKERS URGE 'TAKE A BATH WEEK'

CHICAGO, July 15.—Now that the weather appears to be reasonably settled, the newly-formed Cleanliness Institute of America proposes to stage its "take-a-bath week." This is in line with "eat-an-orange-a-day," "clean-up week" and similar campaigns.

The institute was formed by leading soap manufacturers a month ago and the first meeting of the directors has just been concluded here. There will be much research work, and slovenly folk, who have been going on the theory that they can take a bath or leave it, are to be brought to their senses.

"There are still millions of persons in this country who have never advanced beyond the dark ages as far as cleanliness is concerned," said Roscoe D. Edlund, general director of the institute.

"There are families who consider bath tubs as excellent receptacles for coal, firewood, potatoes or old clothing. The bathing season closes with them the day they close their windows against autumn chills. There are still hundreds of children coming to school 'sewed up for the winter.' There are still millions who do not read a newspaper. We will get to them through the motion pictures, health departments, women's clubs and other agencies. We will hammer it into them that bathing is permissible during the winter months, that soap is nothing to be feared and that if they wish to get ahead they must wash behind their ears."

Sheriff Sued For Searching Rooms

BASIN, Wyo., July 15.—Mrs. Katherine Shomo and Miss Mary J. Lynch are preparing to carry their damage suit against Sheriff A. C. Burgess and the National Surety company to the supreme court.

The women ask $21,000, alleging an illegal search of their rooms in the Greybull hotel for liquor. District Judge E. H. Fout recently sustained the defendants' demurrers and the case was thrown out of court.

W. R. C. Picnic To Be Held July 22

Mrs. Julia Cravath, of this city, made application for membership in the Woman's Relief corps at the regular business meeting held on Thursday afternoon at G. A. R. hall. Her application was voted upon favorably.

It was reported that 36 calls had been made upon members who were ill and that 16 bouquets were sent.

Announcement was made of a picnic to be held July 22 at G. A. R. Hall.

OFFICERS OF TOROSA LODGE ARE INSTALLED

Officers of the Torosa Rebekah lodge were installed at the meeting held last Wednesday night in the I. O. O. F. hall with the deputy district president, Mrs. Leotta Allen, and staff in charge of the ceremonies. The hall was decorated for the special occasion.

The other officers were Mrs. Edna Kinsella, vice grand; Mrs. Emma Cochems, treasurer; Mrs. Ida Perkins, recording secretary; Mrs. Carrie Tople, financial secretary; Mrs. Jesse Dawson, wardens; Mrs. Bowers, conductor.

Mrs. Leotta Allen was given the office of right supporter to the past noble grand; Mrs. Ella Mitchell, right supporter to the noble grand; Mrs. Blanche Chandler, right supporter to the vice grand; Miss Lily Farley, left supporter to the vice grand; Mrs. Elmore Pickle, right altar supporter; Mrs. Katherine Adams, left altar supporter.

Members of the finance committee are Mrs. Mary Cooper, Mrs. Irene Mitchell and C. Rathbone. After the installation, talks were made by visitors complimenting Mrs. Allen and the staff on their installation exercises. As a part of the program, a solo was sung by Mrs. Nelson. The meeting was adjourned to serve refreshments in the banquet room with Miss Lily Farley acting as chairman.

JOB'S DAUGHTERS HOLD TEA SOCIAL

A tea social will be held following the initiation ceremony to be conferred tomorrow afternoon by the Job's Daughters in the Masonic temple by arrangements Mrs. Helen Kellogg, Bethel guardian, has made. The meeting has been called at 1 o'clock instead of 2 o'clock, as previously announced.

The Santa Ana Bethel will admit many new candidates, as charter members, at the initiation. Officers and members of the Bethel are to meet early tomorrow in order to practice the degree work under the direction of Harry Garstang, who is in charge of the musical drill.

The parents, guardians, Eastern Star members and Masons have been invited to attend the tea social to be held after the degrees have been given the candidates. The tea will be held in the banquet room of the Masonic temple.

HOOVER WILL LEAVE FOR WEST SATURDAY

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover will leave Saturday for a western trip with the first stop at Kansas City, where a new office of his department is being opened. He then will proceed to Rapid City, S. D., to visit the President.

Hoover will spend nearly a month on the Pacific Coast attending to commerce department activities, including several fish hatchery questions, mostly in the San Francisco area. He will return to New Orleans to start a survey of flood damage September 1.

"I have no time for fishing this year," he said.

CORONA DEL MAR, July 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Childs, Boardman, of Los Angeles, and several friends are spending the week here.

Mrs. N. E. Edwards, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. W. R. Edwards, of Oakland, arrived last Sunday for a week or more in the cottage of William De Santis on Carnation avenue. C. R. Edwards and his son, John, are with them a part of the time.

DAUGHTERS TO STAGE BALBOA EVENT JULY 30

Santa Ana girls will be in charge of the arrangements at the picnic of Job's Daughters from over Southern California, July 30, at Balboa, through the request of Mrs. Mary Hinds, of Los Angeles, president of the Southern California Guardian council.

Several hundred girls of all the Southland Bethels will be present at the event.

Tables are to be provided on the beach to entertain 500 girls and their Masonic friends. The Santa Ana girls will greet the delegations as they arrive. The picnic place is at Adams street on the ocean front. The tables are being provided through the co-operation of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Helen Kellogg, guardian of the Santa Ana Bethel, said that the girls from here will turn out en masse for the event.

Balboa was chosen by the Job's Daughters council because the tournaments of lights spectacle is to be held there. The program for the day includes boat rides, swimming and dancing.

The children of the Masonic home at Covina will be the special guests of the girls. The Masonic children have their summer camp on Balboa island. At the picnic, the girls will serve the Covina boys and girls from their basket lunches, according to arrangement.

Beach sports will be indulged in after the lunch. Prizes will be awarded the winners in contests. A relay races will be held between the various Bethels.

The chapter having the greatest attendance will be given special recognition. The Santa Ana girls are expecting to win this, according to Charlotte Erickson, honored queen. This year is the first time that the outing has been held and it gives promise of becoming an annual event. Special trains are being run from Los Angeles to bring the girls and their friends to Balboa.

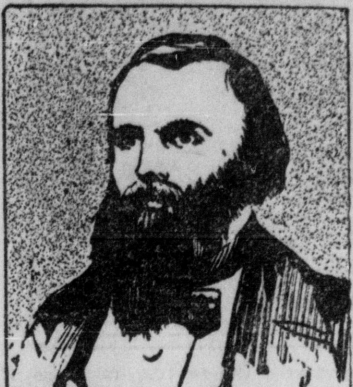

Mapping Australia

By Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-26

Among the brave men who explored Australia's mysterious interior was Captain Charles Sturt. Starting out with a band of convicts, he braved heat so terrible that his baked fingernails snapped like pieces of glass. Struggling over dry plains and through reeds that grew like giant forests he finally discovered the Darling river.

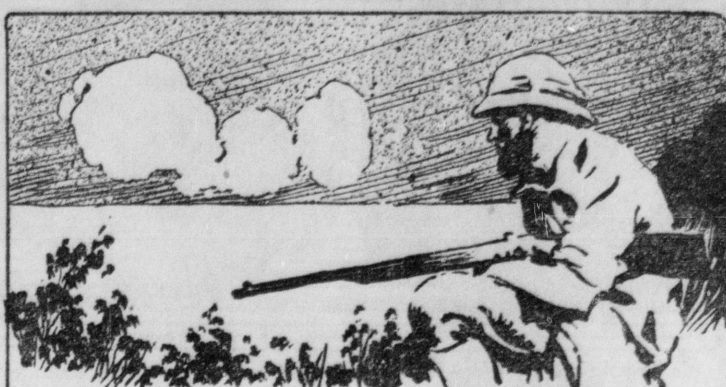

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-26.

Sturt's friend and follower was John Stuart who carried on the work Sturt had begun. Stuart marched across Australia, south to north.

Wherever Stuart went he made maps. Afterward it was by the very path he had taken that telegraph lines were strung across the country.

The hardships of Stuart's march were terrible. Savages attacked his party, a maddened horse trampled his hand, he became ill and his mouth grew so sore he could not swallow. But he kept on and his reward was the sight of the rolling sea, which told him he had spanned Australia.

SKETCHES BY BESSEY
SYNOPSIS BY BRAUCHERYOUTH SAYS HATE CAUSE OF LIBEL

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—Hate bred of mountain feuds that is asserted to have culminated in the desecration of his father's grave, was revealed at the trial here yesterday of Paul B. Bender, 19-year-old seaman, charged with criminal libel of the dead.

From the witness stand the youth admitted that he placed a placard reading: "Good riddance of bad rubbish" on his father's grave Memorial day together with a bouquet of roses.

Bender's defense, according to his attorney, is that his mother's relatives caused him to hold a deep hatred against his father, who left his mother when Bender was two years old and when they were living in the hills of Virginia.

The youth, according to his attorney, was raised in a section of Virginia where hate and feuds were the religion of the people. "I certainly did," was Bender's answer when asked if he had placed the placard on the grave in Belvedere cemetery.

Both prosecution and defense have rested and the court will charge the jury later today.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

When all the crisp was packed and tied, wee Coppy jumped up high and cried, "Oh, look! What's happened to the falls! It's disappeared from sight." And, sure enough, the falls had stopped and no more wondrous syrup dropped.

"Twas natural that he wondered how it things were all right. "Don't worry," said the popcorn man. "I've used, today, all that I can. That's why I stopped the syrup flow. It's much too nice to waste. If you'll come back some day again, I'll welcome all of you, and then I'll start the pretty syrup falls, so you can have a taste."

And then he sharply swung about and said, "Well, I'm all tired out. I've got to go and get my rest, and close my weary eyes. I'm glad that I have met you all. I hope some day again you'll call. And then the Tinies and the man all shouted loud good-byes.

He shortly disappeared from sight and Carpy said, "Say, he's all right, but now that he has gone away, what is there we can do?" The Princess answered him very quick. "I have a plan that's very slick. I'm sure that you'll all like it 'cause it's something that is new."

"Now far from here is Candy Land, where everything around is grand. There're chocolate drops and lollypops and things that you'll all like. If going there appeals to you, that's just the thing that you can do." And Clowny promptly answered, "Fine! But how far must we hike?"

The Princess said, "Oh, not at all. My flying horse I'll gladly call." She clapped her hands. On came the horse, and my but he looked grand! The Tinymites in glee all roared. They waved good-bye and hopped aboard. And, in the next few minutes they were bound for Candy Land.

The WOMAN'S DAY
By ALLENE SUMNER

They talk about hard-boiled, unsentimental, crass youth of today! No moonlight and roses and waves breaking on a distant shore for youth, they say. Youth wants to step on the gas and make it fast, peppy, and loud! Sometimes one wonders if youth's veneer of hard-boiled-ness isn't utter reaction from the too-sugary, the over-sentimentalities of the elders.

ARMY-NAVY WAR

There may not seem too obvious a connection, but take this matter of debunking school histories. For the past few years practically every city has witnessed a war between old army and navy men, historical authorities, those who really know what happened, and school board authorities who insist on using certain text books because they like the stories told therein—he they bunk or not bunk.

ALMIGHTY US!

Those who want a debunking say that mythology is being taught rather than history. A mistaken patriotism, which says that no nation may ever admit that it was licked and that it was not the hero of each and every scrimmage, is failing to teach school kids any essence of such a thing as fair play between nations. The bravery and gallantry of the other side by fact, into cringing cowardice. Our own cowardice are shrouded in glamor until they become great heroics.

INTERRED!

The true happenings of our past become buried in song and legend. Take the battles of Lexington and Concord, for instance. Longfellow wrote beating, rhythmic words about the midnight gallop of Paul Revere, and the lines "here the embattled farmer stood and fired the shot heard around the world" have done much to make both Young and Old America forget the real facts of that day when our country was young.

DEBUNK 'EM!

But we are living in a debunking age an age of youth which insists on seeing straight even if such sight does give one a view of gray crags rather than green and gold woodlands. The myths will go. History will dare be synonymous with truth, as it must be if it means anything. And we will admit that a race of youngsters subjected to real history with fair play for the other fellow is a race far superior to those taught that self is always right and great and pre-eminent.

Beauty and Health

LONG LASHES

There are not so many ways of making the eyelashes longer and thicker. You cannot use the method you use on your head if you want better hair, for most of the hair tonic ingredients would hurt the eyes. You must remember that whatever you use on the eyelashes, cream of lotion, spreads down each individual hair and is absorbed into the skin of the eyelids, which is a very thin covering over the eyes themselves. Therefore anything used on the lashes must be so harmless that it could not hurt the eyes even if it got directly into them.

Most any kind of grease is good, because grease is good for the hair. Just the cold cream you use on your face is good, that's oil and sometimes lanolin, which happens to be fine for making hair grow (incidentally, it won't encourage the ordinary fuzz on the face enough to matter). But don't use creams or lotions with their growing ingredients in them—there are other ways, slow but sure and safe.

I have no better suggestion than lanolin cold cream. To make sure you have the right stuff, buy half an ounce of lanolin, and melt it with half an ounce of olive oil; this gives you a perfectly good ointment to rub into the lashes at night. With this treatment, cut back the eyelashes. It does make them thicker and longer, if they are given treatments at the same time. Use your curved blade manicure scissors, points away from the face, and snip off only the ends of the hairs. They'll grow in again soon.

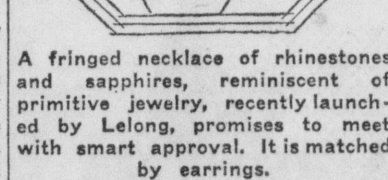

Petroleum mixed with soot, as the "Beauty" pamphlet suggests, makes a really wonderful black cream, quite harmless, for making the lashes dark, and therefore making them seem more prominent than they are. This washes off but is easily put on whenever you want it. And it is invisible, that is a great advantage. It merely makes the lashes dark their full length.

Facts About Telephone

The new Stevens Hotel in Chicago has a switchboard sufficient for a city of 15,000 inhabitants.

It is estimated that well over 800,000 people have money invested in the telephone companies of the United States.

Over 1,000,000 miles of copper wire are used to carry the daily telephone conversations in the city of Rochester, N. Y.

Less than 20 years ago El Paso had but four telephone operators. Now 175 girls are needed to take care of the city's telephone calls.

In Arabic, when you give a telephone number, you don't say, for example "24-56." Instead, the usual method is to say "4 and 20; 6 and 50."

The London correspondent of the Danish newspaper "Politiken" recently completed the first telephone call between London and Copenhagen, when he spoke to his head office.

Just Folks

ENVYING THE LUCKY MAN

Had I worked as hard as he
Just as Rich I now might be.
I had books I could have read
But I chose to play instead.
When in school I couldn't see
What my lessons meant to me,
But I wish I'd studied now
When the sweat is on my brow.

I could never rest content
Till my money all was spent.
Had I saved the same as he
Just as rich I now might be.
He went plodding on his way
Working hard from day to day.
Now I wish, as he rides by
That as nicely fixed were I.

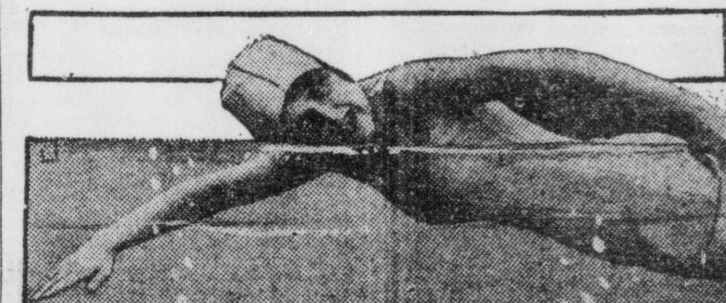

It is useless to complain,
And to envy him is vain
For the self-same chance which he Found on earth was given to me.
What he studied hard to learn
I refused that way to earn.
Now it's very plainly seen
What he is, I might have been.

Call him lucky? Well, it's true,
Luck was ready for me, too.
But back then I couldn't see
Just what work would do for me.
Had I made it my concern
All I could in life to learn,
Had I worked and saved, then I Might have caught luck's smiling eye.

SWIMMING SIMPLIFIED
LEARN TO FLOAT ON WATER IN STARTING TO SWIM

BY JAMES A. LEE

Athletic Director Cleveland (Ohio) Athletic Club

We will now take up breathing in the crawl stroke form of swimming. When you are able to take a few double-arm strokes without a let-up, proceed to practice breathing exercise given you in the first lesson.

First, try a few more strokes and find out on which side it is easier for you to roll, as that will be your natural side for inhaling. Follow the customary procedure, push off, stretch out, set the legs in motion by rapid thrashing, sweep down and back with the arm on the side you have chosen for inhaling. When this arm nears the thigh apply pressure with the other arm, immediately twisting the head and rolling the body toward the first arm, now emerging from the water.

As the first arm moves forward above the surface, take a quick, deep breath. Then, as the second arm completes its drive, press down with the first, twist the head back to normal position, roll back flat, and exhale through the nostrils under the water, holding the head straight, while the arms glide forward in recovery.

To help you in breathing look upward while rolled on the side. That will help raise the mouth clear of the water. Practice this faithfully so as to have little difficulty in the breathing.

TOMORROW: Arm action in the crawl.

Young Parents
Fear Bringing Up Of Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Talking about having children! I have found among young matrons a very distinct fear, not of the physical part of child bearing, but a real fear of possession and of not knowing how to do the right thing for a baby after it is born.

One young married woman wrote to me recently, "What on earth I'll do with a baby, I haven't the least idea, but I'm sure it couldn't enter into more welcoming arms."

There you have it! Well, the world is pretty odd, according to Scripture, and some odd thousands of years since Adam and Eve and Eden. According to Hendrick Van Loon, Will Durant, and some of our famous archaeologists, some hundreds of millions of years have elapsed since its beginning. And the human race has been having babies at least part of that time.

It is reasonable to suppose that during the time previous to 1927, young mothers—potential mothers I mean—have said the same thing that modern mothers are saying. Up somewhere among the far stars there sound never ends, we are told, rings the distant chorus centuries old, "We wouldn't know how to take care of a baby if we had one."

But babies have been born and have become statesmen, presidents, prime ministers, generals and heroes, of every variety and kind, in spite of the fact that their young mothers had had no special training for motherhood before they came into the world.

And it is easier now than ever it was, with experts on babies, baby care and baby food all around us to give advice and tell us just what to do. To watch a baby grow and learn, and develop—and later to blossom into young manhood or womanhood—is the greatest and keenest joy in life. It isn't a sacrifice, save the world, for absolutely nothing can take its place. Parenthood? Why make it a bugaboo?

THE ANSWERS
1. Pay and then get the driver's name, license number and company's name and address. Take it up with the company later.
2. He may, if she refuses, let her pay.
3. A smile, nod or courteous "Thank you."

JUST A JING
"The past three days," the tramp announced,
"I've eaten grass. That's all."
The kind old lady showed him where
The grass grew very tall.

A black and white photograph showing a biplane in flight. The aircraft is positioned in the upper center of the frame, flying towards the viewer. It has a high-wing configuration and a tail with a horizontal stabilizer. The sky is filled with large, textured clouds. Below the horizon line, which is roughly in the middle of the image, is a body of water with visible ripples and small waves. On the right side, a dark, rocky shoreline or island is partially visible. The overall image has a grainy, historical quality.

A large, detailed black and white illustration of a bulldog standing on a decorative base, framed by a thick black border. The bulldog is depicted in a three-quarter view, facing slightly to the right. It has a broad, wrinkled face, a large nose, and a thick, muscular body. The base it stands on is ornate, with a central rectangular section and decorative elements on the sides. The background is a dark, textured grey. The entire illustration is enclosed within a thick black rectangular border.

A black and white portrait of a woman with dark, wavy hair, smiling. She is wearing a dark dress with a prominent, light-colored, scalloped lace collar. The portrait is set within a rectangular frame.A black and white portrait of a woman with short, dark, wavy hair, smiling. She is wearing a dark, high-collared dress. The portrait is set within a rectangular frame with rounded corners.

A black and white photograph of a man in a suit speaking at a podium to a large crowd, framed by a map of Georgia. The man is standing at a podium, gesturing with his right hand. He is facing a large, dense crowd of people seated in bleachers or a large hall. The entire photograph is enclosed within a white outline of the state of Georgia. In the bottom left corner of the photograph, there is a small logo that reads "MZA".

A black and white photograph of a man standing full-length. He is wearing a heavy, dark parka with a thick fur collar and cuffs, cinched at the waist with a wide belt. He also wears a fur hat with a visor. His pants are dark and appear to have a textured or quilted pattern. He is wearing dark, possibly rubber, boots. The background consists of a light-colored wall with a dark, dotted pattern on the left side.

It takes no close study with a microscope to tell what's wrong with this photograph. In fact it's easy. Really no trouble at all. The girls are two Hollywood bathing girls, Ethlyne Clair (left) and Barbara Worth. The wrong thing about it is that they're in the water.

DRIVER CLEARED OF DEATH BLAME

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—Betty Peck, 181-year-old driver of the death car that claimed the lives of three high school boys in an automobile crash here early Wednesday, was absolved of responsibility by a coroner's jury here yesterday.

Following the testimony of Norman Brill, 16, one of the party of seven youths in the crash, who miraculously escaped injury, the jury returned a verdict that "The accident was unavoidable under the circumstances."

Brill testified that none of the party had been drinking and that Miss Peck was an expert driver but became confused when an oncoming machine swerved in front of the heavy sedan in which the young people were riding, causing her to lose control.

The witness testified that they had lost their way after driving to San Pedro and were in a hurry to get home.

NEW INVENTION STOPS AIRSHIP IN FEW FEET

WASHINGTON, July 15.—A propeller-reversing device which it is announced, will permit an airplane to be brought to a stop within twice its own length after it touches the ground, has been evolved by C. Francis Jenkins of Washington.

Announcing his new invention, for which a patent has been issued, Mr. Jenkins said today that it would now be possible to establish air fields directly in cities and on the roofs of large buildings and eliminate the "slow and costly hauling of mail, express, and passengers from suburban fields to their real destination."

Other benefits of the new device were outlined thus: "The general use of airplanes for suburb to city passenger service is brought nearer. Easier and Safer Landing. "It is now possible to bring a seaplane to rest in the lee of a battleship, saving both plane and pilot under storm conditions. "Planes can approach landing fields at a greater rate of speed than before has been possible. "Tragedies like the wrecking of the giant Sikorsky plane, which failed to rise in its attempted flight to Paris, will be safeguarded against. With the new device, the aviator, when he realizes his take-off is a failure, can stop the plane."

Frenchmen Claim German Fortune

PARIS, July 15.—A fortune of 12 million francs is sought by two French families named Brunswick who have been assured they are descendants of the German duke, Charles of Brunswick, who left his fortune to the city of Geneva in 1873.

The relationship has been a tradition in the family, but only since the war have members of the present generation sought to establish their claim.

Legal proceedings, the family says, will be started soon, now that it is felt proof enough has been gathered to make the claim a serious one.

CHICAGO SHOWS GAIN IN RETAIL TRADE IN JUNE

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The volume of retail trade throughout the United States in the month of June this year showed an increase in department store, chain stores and mail order houses over the same month in 1926, the federal reserve board announced today.

Sales of 552 departments and other retail stores were about 1 per cent larger than June of last year and those of mail order houses were 3.3 higher.

Chicago led all cities of the country in the amount of sales increase shown during the month. The percentage of increase over June, 1926, was 5.5 per cent for Chicago retail firms. Most of the increase, however, was registered by relatively few firms as the statistics show that of 45 firms reporting, 19 showed an increase and 26 reported a decrease.

New York City registered an increase of 5.2 per cent, Boston 3.6 per cent, and San Francisco 1 per cent. St. Louis, Kansas City, Dallas, Philadelphia and Atlanta were cities reporting decreased sales.

Sales of five and ten cent chain stores showed an increase of 11 per cent, but this in part is attributed to a growth in the number of stores operated by chains. Of the total number of firms reporting directly to the federal reserve banks, 228 showed larger sales than in June of last year and 268 showed decreases.

BLIGHT-KILLED CHESTNUTS TO BE REPLACED

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Side lights on one of the greatest catastrophes that American forests ever have suffered—the probable extinction within a few decades of a tree species—are given in a new circular just published by the forest service of the United States department of agriculture—"The Natural Replacement of Blight Killed Chestnut," miscellaneous circular 100M.

Until a few years ago chestnut, which furnishes a greater variety of valuable wood products than any other eastern hardwood, constituted nearly half of the hardwood forests of New England, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, as well as a large proportion of the hardwoods of the Appalachian mountains. Now, because of the ravages of the chestnut blight, it is a doomed tree, if no unforeseen circumstances check the disease.

Foresters, unable to save the chestnut, are seeking to learn what will take its place. It was at first thought that the destruction of the chestnut would leave large gaps in the forests, requiring extensive replanting, but the results of recent investigations by C. P. Korstian and Paul W. Stickley, joint authors of the circulars just published, indicate that a much more hopeful view may be taken.

These forest service investigators have found that the blanks caused by the dead or salvaged chestnut are rapidly being filled by such valuable trees as the oaks, hickories, and white ash which can in many respects take the place of chestnut in the manufacture of wood products. The forests are still far from being fully productive, and will continue to be much below normal for a number of years after the blight has done its work, though progress toward complete recovery is nearly everywhere satisfactory.

BIBLE 1000 YEARS OLD AUCTIONED OFF

LONDON, July 15.—No early manuscript as magnificent as the 1000-year-old Anhalt gospels, at auction in London, has come into the market for many years. The work was written in a beautiful hand on 128 leaves of vellum in Saxony or Thuringia in the tenth century and has been in the library of the dukes of Anhalt-Desau since the sixteenth century. Notable features are pages containing the canons, which are placed within columns painted to resemble marble. Some pages have fine marginal drawings; others are written in uncial in gold on a purple ground.

There are wonderful full-page miniatures of the four evangelists within frames. St. Matthew and St. John are represented writing their versions of the gospel. St. Matthew is in a white under robe, with a purple upper robe; St. Mark is in a robe of gold. Enthroned, St. Luke has his feet on the terrestrial globe. In one hand he is holding an orb and in the other a palm branch.

The volume is bound in the original wooden boards and the lower cover is decorated with a gilt copper plate engraved with the crucifixion and emblematic figures.

Convict Labor Is Opposed In Fresno

FRESNO, Calif., July 15.—A proposal for utilizing convict labor on county roads was rejected in a heated session of the Fresno county board of supervisors.

Replying to the proposal of Earle J. Church, city justice, that county convicts be put to work, the supervisors declared such an action would be subsidizing crime and keeping "honest to God" men out of work.

BOBBY JONES WINS BRITISH OPEN TOURNEY

MINUTE MOVIES

(All rights protected by The George M. S. Adam Ser. — Trade Mar. — reg. U. S. Patent Office)

By ED. WHEELAN

ATLANTAN BREAKS STROKE RECORD FOR ALL TIME IN REPEATING 1926 TRIUMPH

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 15.—Bobby Jones today won the British Open golf championship for the second successive year with the lowest 72-hole score ever set in a tournament. The record-breaking figure was 285, seven strokes under par for the tricky St. Andrews old course.

His total card for the three days of sensational golf follows: 82-73-73-72-285.

Among final scores were Walter Kennett, United States, 306; E. R. Whitecombe, England, 293; B. Hodgson, Wales, 297; Joe Kirkwood, United States, 293; Fred Robson, England, 291; Jim Barnes, United States, 301.

Jones' victory was virtually assured when he completed the fourth round but it was necessary to wait until others out on the course had shown that even by a run of superhuman golf they could not overtake the leader before it became known definitely that Jones had conquered.

But the gallery was so large that the champion's every drive was made between two jammed rows of spectators. They took it for granted that Bobby had won.

Twenty-five thousand persons were gathered at the 18th green to show him that the British are not so phlegmatic after all.

KING OF LINKS

HELEN REVEALS AMBITIONS ON RETURN HOME

NEW YORK, July 15 — Helen Wills returned on the liner Berengaria today from her triumphant European tennis season nursing three ambitions.

She wants first, she said, to win the national championship at Forest Hills.

Then, she said, she wants to win the Wimbledon championship.

Finally, she said, she wants to win the U.S. National championship.

Wills' return to this time she was rated little more than a good Boston heavyweight who did most of his fighting around home but when he challenged Wills, the boys started looking up his record.

The record wasn't good enough looking to warrant his bravado and it was recalled that in one fight in New York against Sailor Eddie Huffman his work was questioned and he was called before the commission and told there was a fight that always will be talked about for it exploded the fable of the black menace. Wills had been paraded for years as the greatest heavyweight in the ring and no one would fight him until Sharkey came along.

FAIRWAY GOLF CLUB IS SOLD TO L. A. FIRM

Sale of the Fairway Country club at Villa Park for a consideration of $95,000 has been completed. It was learned here today. A syndicate of Los Angeles men, headed by T. C. Brady and F. G. Hoffine, has posted $27,500 in escrow for the property, it is understood. The remainder of the purchase price represents the indebtedness of the club, which is being assumed by the purchasers.

Immediate construction of a $50,000 clubhouse and an 18-hole grass golf course is planned. Aerial views of the proposed golf course were being taken today, following approval of the course by Norman McBeth, well known golfer and course expert.

William Bell and Max Baer, golf course architects, have been retained to supervise construction work.

The purchasers plan to make the club a family organization to be known as the Valencia Vista Country club. Facilities for the caring of children, including a

BERGMAN'S MYSTERIES WHIP LONG BEACH IN 11 INNINGS; FIREMEN PUT OUT CHANDLERS

Brigade Enjoys Evening at Expense of Earl Jones, Orlyn Robertson

Turning their heaviest hose on Earl Jones and Orlyn Robertson, the Santa Ana Firemen quickly extinguished the Chandler Furniture company, 6 to 3, in last night's City league tussle at Lincoln park, this being the second straight victory for the rejuvenated fire-fighters.

Jones started toiling for the Chandlers but retired under pressure when the Firemen attacked him savagely in the second and third innings. Robertson went the rest of the way and also was hit hard at times. The Firemen picked up 12 base knocks during the course of the proceedings, everybody but Pea breaking into the bee. Nelson, Barker and the Gibson brothers all hit safely twice.

Al Huneke twirled gilt-edge ball for the Firemen, having the boys on his hip from the outset. Matheny and Ed Daley bunched bingles on him in the third to account for one tally and Fred Robertson blasted a homer in the ninth but

Warren Sullivan's Gehrig Slap Breaks Up Duel At Lincoln Park

Warren Sullivan, a carrot-topped Irishman from Santa Ana high school, gave a house full of fans an example of his athletic education when he crashed a clinching home run to deep left in the eleventh inning and gave "Tex" Bergman's Mysteries a hard-earned, 5 to 4 victory over a strong Long Beach team headed by Ivan Belchikov, former Santa Ana, in the nightcap of a twin baseball bill at Lincoln park last night.

Sullivan's potent poke came after two were away in the over-time heat and terminated quite abruptly a great pitching duel between Bergman and Kohler. Bergman got away unsteadily but was in his 1925-6 form thereafter, holding the aliens to one run and four hits in the last 10 frames.

Santa Ana looked to be thoroughly licked after the first half of the tenth when, wit hibe score tied at three-up, Long Beach forged into the lead. Butcher doubling, going to third on an error and scoring on a wild throw. The locals came right back in their half, however, and tier it up again. "Rusty" Sullivan and Bergman singling and Sullivan scoring on an infield out.

HILL-CLIMBERS CAPTURE TENTH STRAIGHT GAME

Reaching one more milestone in their untroubled march to Penningtonville, the United Presbyterian Hill-Climbers made it 10 straight victories in the Santa Ana Twilight league when they vanquished the Julia C. Lathrop junior high school Playgrounds, 8 to 6, at Lincoln park yesterday.

The Playgrounds proved a bit unruly at that, sneaking up on the league-leaders in the fifth and tying the score at 6 to 6 after Rod Smiley's henchmen had pulled into an early and substantial lead. Four runs, made wit hthe assistance of but one safe bingle, had the churchmen somewhat perturbed until they came through in the sixth and touched Leo Gaspar, the Lathrop heaver, for two runs on safeties by Lapham, Mathias and Raitt.

Today's struggle between the Courtthouse and the Post Office with second place at stake was to conclude the week's activity in the late afternoon baseball business but the race will be renewed Monday when the Smart and Finals, after a week's idleness, go against the American Legion Bugle and Drum corps.

TAILOR-MADE LINKS. SPIRIT FAVOR VON ELM

By JIMMY POWERS
NEW YORK, July 15.—Our truculent blond national amateur golf champion, the lad with the face of a swank Prussian hauptmann—oh yes, it is, it's George Von Elm—has what the boys would quantify term a swell chance to repeat.

He will defend his title in the thirty-first competition of the event Aug. 22 to 28 at the Minikahda club, Minneapolis, Minn.

Conceding that a golf championship is always more or less of a lottery, this writer would rather see the name "Von Elm" on his ticket than that of any other contestant save only the incomparable Bobby Jones.

And here's why: The Utah Tiger (who has made Los Angeles his present base of operations) is tickled at the prospect of competing at Minikahda, the 1927 battleground. It was here that a brother westerner, debonair "Chick" Evans of Edgewater, won the national open with the lowest 72 hole aggregate score compiled. This course favors the accurate IRON player rather than the homeric DRIVER.

Hits Irons With Poise
If you can think of a crisper, smarter iron played among the amateurs than "Chick" Evans, it must be George Von Elm. Both hit their irons with a punch and poise usually associated only with crack professionals.

Then again, this champ of ours with the pragmatic jaw (get hep to that one, Mr. Tunney) is a fighter; and fighters, with the exception of one Jess Sweetser, are scarce among the current flock of placid amateurs.

Von Elm's motto is "go get 'em." Like Marshal Poch, he believes in carrying war relentlessly to his enemy. That's how he earned his sobriquet, "Tiger of the Links." Match play is a fighter's game. Brazen nerve is almost as much to be desired as perfection of technique.

And now take a squint at the repeaters in national amateur championships: Walter Travis, Jerry Travers and Chick Evans were cocky, determined fellows. Travis was the dour, grim relentless type. High strung, tautly-keyed Travers was a fighter, too, albeit of a different type.

Qualified By One Stroke
He once sneaked into a championship at Garden City, L. I., qualifying by the bare margin of one stroke, and then went on to win the title. He threw away his woods to do it. All he needed was a stout driving iron, a mashie, a putter and a swig of good Scotch whisky. His fighting spirit did the rest.

Von Elm has been marked for great things on the links. The man is so obviously a golfer. His cocky, self-assertion hasn't made him popular with certain opponents who lack that quality. Some claim he is too aggressive, too domineering in speech and action. But Von Elm has the shots, and, better still, the ability to bring them off under pressure. Weak-kneed opponents usually resent a forceful personality. Timid match players have been frightened by Von Elm's bravado. But experience has mellowed him a trifle without, however, extinguishing the combative flame.

Here is a man who honestly believes he can beat any amateur at match play. That is what carried him to a glorious triumph over Bobby Jones. The man has to be shown.

You cannot trim Von Elm on paper so-for the sake of this story at least—he still will rule as champion.

LIFE OF JACK SHARKEY

HENRY L. FARRELL

Chapter III
NEW YORK, July 15.—Whatever may be said of his tendency to admit that he can lick anyone, Jack Sharkey is no roughneck and he is not a dumbbell. Much like Jack Dempsey, whom he is to meet in the Yankee stadium, July 21, he had no college education, but he had picked up a lot of practical knowledge and he doesn't use "dees and dems" in his conversation.

He had to leave the parochial school in the eighth grade and went to work when he was 14 in the Endicott-Johnson shoe factory hooking soles to uppers. He worked there two years and then went to Bridgeport, Conn., where he threw gravel into a concrete mixer. He went back home shortly after and went to work shoveling coal.

He wanted to enlist during the war but his parents objected on account of his age and he left the paternal roof again and came to New York where he went to work as a day laborer. He then got a job in the Jersey City shipyards and went back home in 1919 to the shoe factory.

Enlisted in Navy
The following year he left home again and came to New York. He didn't have much luck finding a job and when his funds were gone he followed a mob to the Brooklyn Navy Yard and enlisted.

He had to do a hitch of one year on the training ship at Newport before he could go to sea and it was there he had his experience as a singer about the marines and his first fight.

When the time came to go to sea he was assigned to the North Carolina, which was taking the Annapolis midshipmen on their training cruise. During the cruise he had about fifty bouts with boxers on the crew and he finally won the Atlantic Fleet championship on Columbus Day, 1922. He recalls that it was on Columbus Day four years later that he made his great fight against Harry Wills.

That was a fight that always will be talked about for it exploded the fable of the black menace. Wills had been paraded for years as the greatest heavyweight in the ring and no one would fight him until Sharkey came along.

Fans Look Up Record
Previous to this time Sharkey was rated little more than a good Boston heavyweight who did most of his fighting around home but when he challenged Wills, the boys started looking up his record.

The record wasn't good enough looking to warrant his bravado and it was recalled that in one fight in New York against Sailor Eddie Huffman his work was questioned and he was called before the commission and told there

1927 INTERNAL RECEIPTS GAIN IN FISCAL YEAR

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 15.—Internal receipts during the fiscal year 1927, according to an analysis prepared by the internal revenue bureau, increased $29,695,617 over the receipts of the preceding fiscal year. The aggregate collection from all sources during the year ended on June 30, as shown in the bureau's report, was $2,855,695,609, as compared with $2,826,000,000 collected in the previous fiscal year. An increase of $29,695,609 in individual and corporation income tax collections which contributed $2,219,831,014 of the year's revenues, was largely offset by a $216,081,255 slump in the receipts from miscellaneous taxes, including the levies on tobacco, distilled spirits, accessories, amusement tickets and a variety of excise, stamp and special taxes. Miscellaneous tax collections during 1927 totaled $445,564,495, as compared with $661,645,750 in the 1926 fiscal period. Among the states, Illinois, with a total of $217,835,545 in internal revenue collections, ranked third, preceded by New York with a total of $755,003,151, and Pennsylvania with a total of $258,768,862, in first and second places, respectively. Nevada trailed all of its sister states with a total collection of only $53,383. In total amount of individual and corporation income taxes paid into the federal treasury during the fiscal year, Illinois held third place in the list of states, reporting $194,955,546, or an increase of $18,094,297 over the previous fiscal year. As in the total of internal revenue payments, Illinois, however, ranked eighth among the states in the amount of miscellaneous taxes paid, reporting $22,430,998, and being preceded by North Carolina, New York, Virginia, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and California in the order named.

Historical Men Will Be Figures On Vienna Clock

VIENNA, July 15.—A clock without a face is being built into a bridge which connects the upper floors of two modern buildings in the heart of Vienna. The 12 hours will be displayed by historical figures in statuary 10 feet high. The hours which the figure represents will be numbered above the head of the statue. The minutes will be ushered in and out by music from an organ of 1000 pipes. One of the historical figures on the clock will be Marcus Aurelius, Roman emperor who died in Vienna not 100 yards from the location of the timepiece.

Westminster Dean Paints Landscape

LONDON, July 15.—Dr. W. Foxley Norris, dean of Westminster cathedral, is an artist as well as a preacher. He has made many pictures of London from a raft moored in the Thames under Waterloo bridge. "The painting dean" held an exhibition recently which attracted favorable comment. He works chiefly in water colors on landscapes and water scenes. Dean Norris is a descendant of Monro, the eighteenth century artist. His son is art master of Repton. The dean's paintings, however, ranked eighth among the states in the amount of miscellaneous taxes paid, reporting $22,430,998, and being preceded by North Carolina, New York, Virginia, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and California in the order named.

FRATERNITY OF LATIN NATIONS BELIEVED MYTH

MADRID, July 14.—The much-heralded fraternity of the Latin peoples is something of a myth. Religious community is a more powerful bond than the assumed racial community, and even this has its limitations. In Spain, at all events, there is no public support for the alliance with Italy. Sympathy for Italy has been cooling, especially since Mussolini's rise to power. The methods that secured his rise were repugnant to the Spanish character. The Italian dictatorship bears, moreover, the odium of being the assumed origin of the Spanish, and the conviction is universal that the two systems share a common destiny. The reaction of the opponents of the dictatorship to Mussolini's recent speech was what might have been expected; more interesting is the reaction in the governmental camp. A clear idea of this is given by the comments of "El Debate," the organ of Spanish clericalism. With all that the Duce had to say on internal politics, and especially his denunciation of communism, "El Debate" is, of course, enthusiastically in agreement. Not that here in Spain there is any reality behind the Communist bogey that is so often hoisted. Since the collapse of the syndicalist movement the revolutionism of the working masses of Spain has fallen to zero. Probably there are not more than 4000 Spanish Communists in the world, and half of them are either exiles in France or prisoners in Spain. But the bogey is very useful to the government. It has been given fresh life and renewed effectiveness as a government weapon, to the dismay of Spanish liberalism, by the action of the British home secretary. "When a repressive policy is embarked on in England, the cradle of democracy and the idol of our Liberals, it can only be because there is no alternative at the present moment between a strong if reactionary government and Communist revolution and chaos"—this is the argument today of government organs. But on two points the government and the Clerical party cannot follow Mussolini. The Clericals will have nothing to do with the "parchment and paper nationalism of Fascism," as the Spanish Clerical press describes it. This nationalism, says the Clerical press, is summed up in the formula "All to the state, nothing against the state, and based on the false affirmation that only the state gives a people its strength, a formula, says "El Debate," that "leads to Imperialism"—that is, to war. That is the danger, moreover, that the government of Primo de Rivera sees, and which accounts for its significant change of attitude in permitting the Opposition press openly to attack Mussolini's foreign policy, a thing that a few weeks ago would have been impossible. Primo de Rivera wants it to be known abroad that he must in no way be associated with the bellicose projects of the Duce. His interest in the general realization of this is the more justified because of this are many who believe that Italy and Spain have signed a secret military convention.

Marriage Report Shows 1 In 100 Fail In England

LONDON, July 15.—The registrar general has disclosed that one marriage out of every hundred contracted in England fails. Divorce in England, where dissolution of marriage is granted only on grounds of adultery, is becoming more and more common, especially since newspapers were forbidden by law to publish divorce case details. Before the world war the number of persons divorced was about 1000 a year. Since the war the figure has been increased five times. Three of every five divorced persons get married again. The majority of these are men, of whom 79 per cent marry widows, and eight per cent marry divorced women. Of the divorced women who remarry, 70 per cent take back husbands, while 30 per cent prefer widowers. Two out of every three divorced men marry again, but only one-half of the divorced women remarry.

Airbrakes Placed On French Trains

PARIS, July 15.—Thanks to the Dawes plan, French freight trains will have airbrakes instead of the primitive handbrakes. The change will take five years and will cost 64 million dollars.

The necessity for the change has long been recognized. Plans had been drawn up, but owing to the lack of funds they seemed doomed to slumber indefinitely in their pigeon holes until Andre Tardieu, minister of public works, had the idea of using France's rights under the Dawes plan. By the program drawn up by M. Tardieu, a large part of the work will be carried out by German industry under the heading of payment in kind and the rest by French industry.

Heat Results In Death Of Woman

FRESNO, Calif., July 15.—The body of Mrs. Mamie Carvalho, Mendocino club woman, who died yesterday during a meeting of the Sociedade Portuguesa Rainha Santa Isabel, was returned to the northern city today. Mrs. Carvalho was overcome by the heat, death resulting from consequent high blood pressure, physicians said.

Lunar Leaguers Collide Here Tonight

SANTA ANA STARS, LEADING COUNTY LEAGUE RACE, FACE TWO GAMES IN FOUR NIGHTS

Now that they have stuck a mathematical nose out in front of the Orange County Night Baseball league pack, Santa Ana's All-Stars face the necessity of buckling down to their season's most severe assignment—that of meeting two competent opponents within the space of four evenings—and it may rightly be written that their titular compensations virtually hinge on the outcome.

Johnny Wilcox's disciples have an engagement with Claude Potter's in-and-out Orange cavalcade at Lincoln park here tonight, a little tete-a-tete that should not be taken too lightly, but it is not this ruckus that is worrying the All-Stars half so much as their heavy date Monday night at Anaheim in which they will have a finish fight on their hands for the leadership of the procession.

swimming pool and a playground, are to be installed. Other features attractive to the fair sex will be provided.

The membership, which is now 123, will not be allowed to exceed 600, it is said.

The committee which acted for the Fairway club included N. T. Edwards, E. H. Bollinger, W. E. Clement, S. H. Teal and K. E. Watson. The negotiations were approved by the stockholders at a recent meeting. It was immediately following the stockholders meeting that the deal was completed.

est Hills in August; second, to get her degree at the University of California next spring; and third, to become a successful cartoonist. "I will never turn professional," she said. "It requires too much travel. I like to stay at home. Besides, I want to be an artist."

Tennis probably will keep her in the east until October, she said. "I am very happy over winning the Wimbledon tournament, and I think I was very lucky," Miss Wills said.

Jensen or Hitt? Jensen probably will get the nod for deservingly although Gene Hitt, the tall first National bank chucker who has been going great guns in the City league, may get the call. If Jensen works against Orange it is almost a certainty that the home town board of strategy will try Hitt against Anaheim Monday.

Wilcox hasn't said so but it is likely that the Santa Ana inner guard this eve will be composed of Johnny Lutz at first base, "Evvy" Lutz at second, "Memphis" Hill at short and Darwin Scott at third and the outfield of Randolph Bell, Wayne Nelson and either Bill Coe or Horace Snow.

While the All-Stars are working on the Orangemen, Anaheim will endeavor to halt its losing streak.

Bill Cook To Wed On Aug. 8, Plan

Bill Cook, newly appointed Santa Ana junior college football coach, and Miss Kathryn Cravath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. ("Gavvy") Cravath, of Laguna Beach, will be married August 8 in the chapel of St. Frances-by-the-Sea at Laguna Beach, according to information received here today.

Much interest is attached to the forthcoming wedding as both Miss Cravath and Cook have a wide circle of friends in Southern California.

In between the Chandlers were impotent in the pinches.

Nelson's single, Barker's double, Sullivan's error, H. Gibson's single and another error by Sullivan gave the Firemen three in the second. A pass, a fielder's choice and Barker's single produced another in the third and a single by H. Gibson and a double by Shirley increased the growing total one in the fourth. Hits by R. Gibson and Fipps resulted in the final Firemen marker.

FARRELL TELLS LIFE STORY OF JACK SHARKEY

was a suspicion that he had held up his opponent.

"I beat him, didn't I? Have you got a rule that makes a fighter knock out his man?—I thought they called it boxing in New York."

It was at that time that William Muldoon, the veteran commissioner, looked him over and made the rash prediction that he would be the champion some day. Muldoon drove the Dempsey-Turney fight out of New York by sticking stubbornly to the contention that Sharkey was the man to fight Dempsey and it was Muldoon who stuck by Sharkey when everyone was yelling that it would be murder and that Wills would feast on another set up that might ruin the game.

When Sharkey came into the ring he glared right across at Wills. When they were called together for instructions Sharkey looked him over with a sneer and a glare that forced the Negro's eyes to the floor.

A microphone was in the corner and Sharkey was asked to say something to the radio listeners. "I'll knock him out sure as hell," he yelled peering directly at Wills.

He didn't knock him out but he gave Wills the worst beating he ever had taken and forced him to run out on a foul.

Sharkey wept like a child when the referee refused to let them continue. But he was forced to win on a foul.

After winning the Atlantic fleet championship, Sharkey was matched against Biff Crowley, Pacific fleet champion. Crowley was a 220-pounder who boasted he had gone six rounds with Dempsey in a sparring match.

They fought seven rounds and the referee ordered an extra round after which Sharkey's hand was raised.

When the fleet returned to Boston Sharkey's time was up and he asked for his discharge. He was asked if he wouldn't remain in the service awhile and try out with the Navy candidates for the Olympic team.

He said he needed money badly and couldn't afford to waste much time and he decided to give up his chances for the Olympic team and pick up a little money fighting.

Three months after his discharge, he had his first real professional bout and beat Eddie Record.

His real start will be related in the next chapter.

G. G. Angler Leads In Beach Contest

B. G. Bronner, of Garden Grove, bids fair to collect the $10 prize offered weekly by Newport Beach business men for the largest fish caught off the Newport Beach pier with his 19 3-4 pound halibut, hooked yesterday.

Another large halibut, a 15-pound fish, was snagged by C. D. Gates, of Newport Beach, after the 19 3-4 pounder was registered and so was not entered for the prize.

Bay fishing enthusiasts are catching spotfin weighing seven pounds and better and in quantity, according to reports. The bay fishing is especially good in the morning, it is said.

HOLLAND DRAIN PROJECT UNDER WAY AT LAST

THE HAGUE, July 13.—Every visitor to Holland knows the Zuider Zee, the small inner sea near Amsterdam where the island of Marken lies. Trips to Marken, Hoorn, Enkhuizen and Medemblik are favorite excursions for the tourists who visit Holland. These small places are the so-called "dead towns" of the Zuider Zee.

It will not be long before the Zuider Zee disappears. For many years various bills have been presented to the Dutch parliament for the draining of this inland lake, but the idea always remained as a vision of the future. The oldest project for this drainage dates from 1848. Important objections impeded such plans. Mr. Buma, member of parliament from Friesland, who comes of a tenacious race, was aware of the fact that the principal cause of these failures lay in the lack of unity and co-operation, and he founded the Zuider Zee company, whose object was the realization of the project of damming and draining the inland sea.

It was due to the efforts of Dr. Lely, engineer and technical adviser of this company, that the difficult problem was solved. Dr. Lely has served three times as head of the department of public works. In his position as minister he was able to push the scheme of draining the Zuider Zee.

The bill was passed on June 14, 118, and on June 2, 1920, the first load of soil was emptied into the sea.

A dam will be built connecting the provinces of North Holland and Friesland. The parts where the best soil is found will be made into "polders." There will be four, the northwest, northeast, southwest and southeast polders, and only a small part will be reserved for a fresh water lake, the Yesselmeer. Two large locks will be built to insure the drainage and navigation of the Yesselmeer.

The great importance of these enormous works lies in the reclamation of new arable land, an extension of agriculture and a check against unemployment. The draining of the Zuider Zee restores 220,000 hectares of splendid, fertile new soil to Holland.

Thus this gigantic scheme has great economic advantages. Holland has commenced a work that promises fruitful results, and the small country, reclaimed from the sea, will once more astonish the world by demonstrating the dauntless spirit and limitless energy of its citizens in their unceasing struggle against the powers of nature.

SWEET GUMWOOD IS GAINING IN VALUE

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The sweet gum tree has become seventh in importance, federal foresters say. As a veneer wood it leads the market.

Excellent for interior finishing and the manufacture of furniture, fruit baskets, boxes and barrels, sweet gum is exported in large quantities to England, France and Germany. Its rate of consumption here and abroad has trebled in the last 25 years.

Frequently foresters add sweet gum shipped to foreign countries comes back as satin or circassian walnut furniture.

In former years sweet gum was little used because of its tendency to warp. Adequate curing processes have been found, however, and the high finish to which the wood responds makes it popular.

The species is found in the United States along a diagonal line from middle Connecticut to eastern Texas, touching lower Ohio and Indiana and reaching half way down Florida. Principal cutting is done along streams of the Mississippi valley from Indiana on south. The growth reaches 200 miles inland from the east coast, from South Carolina to Georgia.

Sweet gum reforests well, and at marketable size measures from one and a half to three feet in diameter and 80 to 100 feet in height. The present estimated stand is 44 billion feet, 30 billion of which is in the Mississippi valley and 11 billion in the Atlantic coastal region.

Foresters urge swampland production of sweet gum. At prevailing prices an acre of it cut for railway ties will bring a profit of $120, they say.

Hawaiian Isles Vacation Mecca

HONOLULU, July 13.—Hawaii is in the midst of its banner tourist year. Since January 1 nearly 3000 tourists have arrived here, many to spend several months. The new Royal Hawaiian hotel opened just in time to prevent actual congestion. Tourists have been comfortably accommodated, and although the season is not at its peak the hotels are confidently ready for all comers. Hawaiian sports are in full swing. Surfing, surf-boarding and other typical island forms of recreation enroll thousands of followers. The golf courses are crowded, so are the tennis courts.

A noticeable feature is that many people have come here who ordinarily spend their winter in Europe. They say that they will not go again to Europe until there is a diminution of the criticisms which are made against Americans at even some of the best-known resorts. Another large section of Hawaii's first-time visitors is made up of people who for several years have been going to Florida but now are trying Hawaii.

"Y" DIRECTOR GIVES WARNING ON SWIMMING

People seeking the recreational advantages of the "old swimming hole" during the vacation season will do well to exercise care in the manner of their enjoyment, is the warning issued by R. R. Russick, physical director of the local Y. M. C. A. Swimming in itself is a most wholesome and valuable means of recreation and exercise, says Russick, but he points out the dangers that lurk in polluted waters, in dangerous tides and currents, and in swimming too soon after eating, or when the swimmer is not in proper physical trim.

"Many cases of typhoid are traceable to some swimming hole," Russick says. "The water in some irrigation ditch or reservoir may look inviting, and, of course, it may be quite all right, but it is well to remember that even clear, sparkling water may be a roosting place for countless disease germs. Water taken into the mouth, or even allowed to come in contact with cuts or abrasions on the skin may produce disastrous effects for the swimmer. Indoor pools in California are usually safe, being well cared for under the direction of the state board of health. Cases of infection from such pools are rare. Persons with catarrhal affections, or with inflammation of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat, may find themselves suffering from irritations which they call infections, but which are merely the result of contact of the water with the inflamed parts."

Another danger which swimmers should avoid is that of accidental drowning. Most of such tragedies can be prevented by the exercise of reasonable care, Russick declares.

"Going into the water too soon after eating is a cause for many an accident," says Russick. "At least one hour, and better, two hours should elapse after eating before one enters the water. Swimming is hard work, and when the stomach is busy with undigested food, you are simply inviting trouble if you call on your energy to withstand the work and the shock of swimming. Rest after eating before you swim. The same is true about going swimming at any time when one is over-tired, or excessively tired."

"A safe rule is this: Never try to swim when overheated, or when thoroughly tired out. This may seem a hard restriction to some enthusiastic swimmers, but I have noticed that the people who take their pleasures with some sort of intelligence and self restraint are able to enjoy those pleasures much longer than those who rush in without thinking."

Russick suggests the observance of the following familiar rules for swimmers as a means of averting accidents:

Do not swim too soon after eating, or when overheated or very tired.

Do not stay in the water until you become chilled or feel exhausted. A swimmer should feel a sense of exhilaration when coming out of the water.

Do not bathe in polluted waters.

Take no chances with tides or heavy waves. Be especially careful in risking heavy tides on Orange county beaches.

Do not dive unless you know that the water is deep enough for diving.

Never let children go into the water except under adult supervision.

Don't try to be a clown in the water. Ducking, splashing and other exhibitions of poor judgment may make folk laugh, but they are as dangerous as playing with fire.

Don't try to show off. Remember that it is better to be over-cautious than to be thoroughly dead.

Finally, learn to swim expertly, and then learn first aid and life-saving.

"At the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. we teach swimming, life saving and first aid as a regular part of our work. We have a safe, clean, well supervised swimming pool, and are trying to do our part to make the water safe for swimmers," the instructor continued. "Each year we teach some two or three hundred boys and girls and men and women to swim, and a few are willing to take the trouble to learn systematic first aid and life saving. Every season, some of our members find their training useful in saving those who are in distress in the water. The more people we can teach, the more we can help to prevent accidents in the water. But we cannot supply the intelligence and the caution suggested in the rules given above, unless people will take them and use them. By the careful observance of these rules, a great part of the ordinary water accidents can be averted, regardless of the training or ability of the swimmers."

POLITICIANS USE PHONOFILMS NOW

LONDON, July 15.—British politicians are saving their voices and avoiding hecklers by having films address their constituents.

Sir Douglas Hogg, the attorney general, is a pioneer in the movement. One of the phonofilms showed him delivering his speech, reproducing before his constituents all the little mannerisms, such as tugging at the labels of his coat.

Cabinet ministers who find they cannot attend a particular meeting in the country no longer excuse themselves by wire. A tin box containing a speech taken by the new phonofilm process is sent by air.

OIL INDUSTRY IS ANALYZED BY WELLIVER

MACKINAC, Mich., July 15.—“The petroleum industry is not entitled to be criticized or denounced because of the conditions which confront it today.”

“More than anything else it would like to be understood and to have its difficult problems realized by the public. These problems are of real interest to every driver of an automobile or user of petroleum products. Beyond that they concern every business interest in the land, for the attitude of the public toward them will indicate its disposition toward all business in the years that lie immediately ahead of us.”

Thus declared Jason C. Welliver, director of public relations of the American Petroleum Institute, addressing the Michigan Independent Oil Men's association last evening. Proceeding, Mr. Welliver analyzed the current problems and difficulties of the industry.

The oil industry is one of several important ones that are at the moment suffering because of overproduction—their markets cannot absorb all of their output. That is what causes the wheat growers' troubles, the cotton planters' woes, the bituminous coal operators' worries. The manufacturers of textiles and of boots and shoes are in like difficulties. Lumber producers are seeking to broaden their market, which does not call for all they are offering.

Fundamentally, the oil industry is in the same situation as these others—too heavy production has affected the price fabric, and in some cases profits have vanished, or been turned into actual losses. But the oil industry, at least has given the consuming public the benefit. The price statistics of the U. S. Bureau of Labor show that the price of gasoline in 1926 averaged only 18.1 per cent above that of 1913, while the average of all commodity prices in 1926 was 51 per cent above 1913. A study of the whole commodity price tabulation shows gasoline to be cheaper today, in comparison with other articles, and in terms of the general buying power of the dollar than before the war. It stands at the bottom of the price list of commodities widely and extensively used. It is the cheapest great staple. It is so, because the industry has persistently given the consumer the benefit of better methods and constantly improving processes.

“Not only is gasoline, by comparison with the general structure of prices, today the cheapest important commodity in the United States, but it is cheaper in the United States than anywhere else in the world. In this regard it stands well alone, for nearly all commodities command higher prices in the United States than abroad.”

Blue Sunday In Berlin When No Aviators Arrive

BERLIN, July 14.—A Sunday may be counted as lost unless somebody arrives from overseas in an airplane, according to the cartoonist of “Der Blaue Montag” (Blue Monday), the comic section of the “Montag Morgen.”

The cartoonist depicts four men with their families sitting in the grass by an aerodrome and playing cards. The expression on their faces is clearly one of boredom. One of the card sharks breaks the silence by saying disgustedly, “Already this second week, and no new ocean flyer has arrived.” The caption of the cartoon is, “A Quiet Sunday.”

NEW COCKTAILS ARE SOURCE OF RIVIERA FIGHTS

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, July 15.—There is an informal agitation going on among the bartenders of the Riviera for a patent on cocktails. The inventor of a new cocktail, they argue, has as much right to royalties as the inventor of a new jazz tune. Antoine, who presides over Ciro's bar here, has been proudly but somewhat sadly watching his Riviera cocktail, child of his own brain, sweep triumphantly down the coast, simply knocking them over.

The “Riviera” is as popular as “Valencia” was, but does it bring him anything for his old age? Not on your shaker. “Necessity is the mother of cocktails,” observed Antoine, explaining the origin of the “Riviera.” “It's like a Bronx, you see, but one day a gentleman asked for a Bronx and I had no oranges so I thought of using tangerines instead. And now see how they lap it up!”

And over in Vienna they are holding an international cocktail competition. There are 200 entries from ten nations. The prize will be a suitcase of Austrian paper crowns. An industry that is getting up in the world like that will soon be lobbying for legislation.

Dutch To Award Wireless Prize

THE HAGUE—A donation of 100,000 Dutch florins (about $40,000) has been made by the president of the Netherlands Society for Wireless Telegraphy as the nucleus of a fund to provide an annual prize for any Dutch member of the society, who “by an invention of any new method contributes in the widest sense of the word toward the advancement of the science and technique of wireless communication.”

LLOYD GEORGE IN TRIUMPHAL HIGHLAND TOUR

GLASGOW, July 15.—Lloyd George has had a triumphal tour through the Scottish Highlands, and some take this as an augury of a resurrected Liberalism.

Twenty years ago three-fourths of the Scottish M. P.s were Liberals. Labor men or Conservatives who went from Scotland to Westminster could have been packed into one compartment. Today there are less than 40 Liberals from the United Kingdom and less than six from Scotland.

Lloyd George has come from Wales to Scotland to restore the ancient glories of his party. He has had an enthusiastic reception and has revived the spirits of his followers. To those outside his party ranks he has delivered his message, and one cannot tell whether material results will follow to the fortunes of Liberalism.

The tour started from Aberdeen, where Lloyd George wooed the fisher folk. He tried to win them by telling the tale of the destruction of the herring fishery by Baldwin's Russian policy. Hundreds of fishermen used to make a good living by selling fish to the Russians. The trade is gone, and Lloyd George put down the loss to the bungling of the Tory government.

From Aberdeen he traveled along the wonderfully picturesque coastline that stretches through Balmoral to Braemar. At Aboyne, at Balmoral, at Braemar the villagers came out to meet him. He spoke to them in eloquent words, not of politics, but of the beauty of their country. At Balmoral he recalled the visits he had made to the king when he was prime minister.

“If anyone can tell me of a picture more beautiful than a Scottish hillside with the sun shining on it,” he told one of his audiences, “I should like to know where it is and take the next train there.”

The road from Braemar to Blairgowrie is over one of the roughest and most romantic roads in Britain. The Devil's Elbow is an extremely dangerous, sharp curving hill over the Grampians. There was a thunder storm as the Lloyd George party went over to Blairgowrie. But the sun shone as they passed through the crowds that waited for them in that Perthshire village.

The Scottish pipers played the well known Welsh tune, “Men of Harlech,” and the crowd sang “For he's a jolly good fellow.” Then there was a noisy meeting in the market place, and Lloyd George motored away to Perth.

On the afternoon following a great open air demonstration was held on the outskirts of Perth. Liberals traveled from far and wide to hear their leader, and he made a racy and vigorous attack on the policy of the Baldwin government. He began by speaking of the Liberal dog that was supposed to be on the point of death. “They talked of putting him in a dogs' home, and there was a little dispute as to whether he should be in a Tory dogs' home or a Socialist dogs' home. But it is turned out that the dog was only suffering from a little internal trouble. He got over it and returned to his old form. He had killed three Tory kittens already and the fourth escaped his teeth, having lost eleven-twelfths of its fur, and unless I am mistaken, he was going to get the old cat yet.”

Scotland is not being left to chance by the Liberal caucus. The same week that the ex-prime minister was touring the north Sir Herbert Samuel, the new Liberal organization chief, was at Glasgow, Stirling and St. Andrews.

Author's Rights Will Help State

PARIS, July 15.—Government ownership of authors' rights after a certain period is proposed again in France as a new source of revenue. Chambers of commerce oppose the legislation.

The plan, sponsored by Deputy Paul Constant, would give the government royalties on works that are about to become public property. Heirs in France get royalties for 50 years after the writer's or composer's death. At the expiration of the 50 years the proposed law would convey the ownership to the state and fix a royalty of 10 per cent.

Lightning Hits Stay In Corset Woman May Die

CANON CITY, Colo., Mrs. Joseph Calmette Sr., 49 years old, was perhaps fatally burned recently by a lightning bolt that struck one of the steel ribs in her corset during the most severe electrical storm that the mining camp of Ite, Colo., 29 miles southwest of here, has experienced in years.

Mrs. Calmette refused medical aid for several hours, with the result that when a doctor was summoned, her condition was such that she could not be removed to a hospital.

A daughter standing near her, was not injured by the bolt.

Financier Leaves Fortune, No Will

NEW YORK, July 15.—Henry Clay Pierce, financier, oil man and railroad executive of New York and St. Louis, who died June 27 last, left an estate of more than $900,000, but left no will. It became known when Surrogate O'Brien issued letters of administration on the estate to the decedent's son, Clay Arthur Pierce, New York, and fixed his bond at $900,000.

"The girl that makes Desserts and cakes With Alpine—that's my baby!"

"Just give a look That girls some cook And say—I don't mean maybe!"

Good—there's cream in every drop

No dessert? What a disappointment for the little folks—the grown-ups, too—if you leave out this happy ending to a meal.

Give them desserts that are wholesome as well as delicious—puddings, custards and other dainties that call for plenty of milk. And use Alpine in your recipes—for richer flavor, for smoother, creamier consistency.

Alpine is pure, full-cream milk, made doubly rich by removing half the water, then homogenized so that every drop is sure to get an equal share of this double supply of cream.

You'll find that Alpine's creamy richness improves all cooking—adds new flavor and goodness to coffee. And it's so economical—so convenient. Costs less than ordinary milk—saves butter in cooking—keeps pure and sweet indefinitely in its sterilized, airtight container. Get Alpine today.

LINDBERGH IS NOW HAILED AS MONEY SAVER

Habits of thrift have ever characterized the life of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and it was due fundamentally to these sturdy practices that at certain periods of his career, when opportunities for advancement presented themselves, he was ready. It is related that during his school days in Washington he exhibited practical aspects of mind. In his personal habits he was thrifty and industrious. His leanings were scientific, in which he received the encouragement of his parents.

Upon his graduation from the Washington High school, he entered the mechanical engineering school of the University of Wisconsin. How many college boys save money? Yet Lindbergh actually did this during his year and a half at Madison. He built up a savings account which though not large was a demonstration of his appreciation of the value of thrift. It was during these student days at the University of Wisconsin that Lindbergh's mind began to feed on the subject of aerodynamics. He read everything he could find on the subject. He dreamed of becoming an aviator, but, in his modesty, it is doubtful if he ever thought he would become one of the greatest international heroes of all time.

With the small savings he had accumulated in Madison, he bought a motorcycle and rode to the flying field at Lincoln, Neb. There he learned his first lessons as a birdman. And there, too, he continued his habits of thrift. By the time his flying course was completed he had built up a savings account of $250, which was used toward the purchase of a Curtiss plane. This was his first investment in aviation.

But now his ambition was vaulting. He was not satisfied with his limited grasp of aviation. So he enrolled in the Army Flying Service at Brooks Field. He completed the difficult course at Kelly Field and was enrolled in the reserve corps. It was while studying aviation at these fields that he earned the commendatory report which was included in the address delivered by President Coolidge in Washington when Lindbergh was decorated for distinguished service.

Desiring to turn his flying ability to practical use, Lindbergh next joined the air mail service as a pilot flying out of St. Louis. For the first time in his life he was earning a regular salary and he did not forget his savings account. He practiced thrift systematically, banking a certain sum out of each month's pay.

It was about a year ago that he first became interested in the idea of flying from New York to Paris. At that time, Rene Fonck, inventor and aviator, failed to rise from the ground at Roosevelt field in a start for Paris. This mishap registered sharply with Lindbergh's keen mind and he began intensive study and research. Having always been a boy of good habits, it was not difficult for him now to devote all his spare time to these studies.

He worked out not only the details of the type of plane he thought suitable for a New York to Paris hop, but he figured out the financial aspects of the venture. He made tentative plans in minute detail. His estimate of cost was $20,000. This included $6,000 for the plane, $6,000 for the engine and aerial navigation instruments and about $7,000 for miscellaneous expenses.

By the time he had developed his plan to the point where he was satisfied with each detail, his savings account had reached something over $2,000. He went to Major William B. Robertson, President of the Robertson Aircraft company. Robertson was so impressed with his plan that he introduced the youthful air mail pilot to Mr. Harry Hall Knight. Lindbergh answered every question to the satisfaction of these gentlemen. He convinced them of the feasibility of his plans and he added strength to the argument by offering to invest $2,000 of his savings account in the venture. This was accepted and accounted for 10 per cent of the sum raised. The rest of the story is known around the world.

Lindbergh, minus his habits of thrift as a school boy in Washington, as a college boy in Madison, as an air mail pilot, might still have become the Lindbergh we know today. It is not for us to read the secrets of genius. But when Charles A. Lindbergh was saving money he was acquiring the knowledge and developing the physique that made it possible for him on May 20 and 21, 1927, to electrify the world with his adventure through the clouds. No sensible person will, we believe, deny that thrift was an important factor, as accessory before the fact, in the Lindbergh odyssey.

Ripened naturally

That's why Cudahy's Puritan Ham has Finer Flavor

Distinguished in name. Puritan Ham is—"First in the Land," because of its finer flavor and greater tenderness.

Puritan owes this distinction to the special Cudahy method of curing—"ripened naturally."

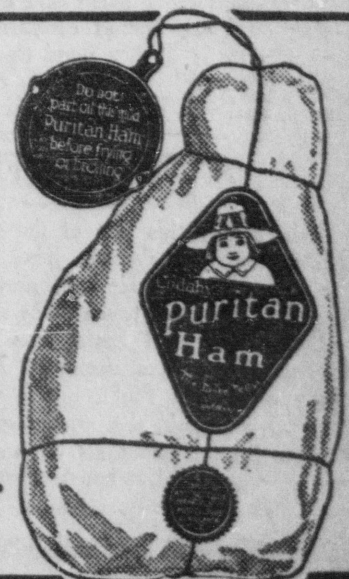

This method naturally diffuses the sweet juices of the young meats selected for Puritan, without forcing or hurrying.

The result is likened to fruit tree-ripened compared to that artificially ripened. You'll thoroughly enjoy Puritan Ham.

EVENING SALUTATION

Here's a motto, just your fit—
Laugh a little bit,
When you think you're trouble hit,
Laugh a little bit,
Look misfortune in the face,
Brave the bedlam's rude grimace;
Toss to one 'twill yield its place,
If you have the wit and grit
Just to laugh a little bit.
—Edmund Vance Cooke.

FOR A NEW ART GALLERY

Orange county as a whole has always loved Laguna Beach, its coves, its rocks, its rugged points, and its artists. As to that, all California has rather taken pride in this beauty spot, this place that is the magnet of painters from far lands. More than any place in the county, Laguna Beach does not belong to itself alone.

For that reason, if for no other—and there are many reasons—the whole county should give its aid to the financial campaign that was launched last night at St. Ann's Inn, in Santa Ana. The purpose of the campaign is to raise a fund for the building of a beautiful art gallery upon one of Laguna Beach's most beautiful sites, overlooking the sea.

Orange county is singularly lacking in buildings that draw visitors as a magnet. We have the mission at San Juan Capistrano, and—what else of magnitude?

Those who are furthering the plan for the gallery at Laguna Beach vision a building and exhibitions that will bring fame to the community of Laguna Beach and to Orange county. It will be the heart of an art colony that has made itself known around the world. Here the charm and glory of the Laguna coast will be idealized and immortalized in the way that can be done only by artists such as Laguna Beach has brought to it and helped develop into their best work.

We have waited many years for the new art gallery. The time is indeed ripe for the campaign. Laguna Beach with its new water system, its new highways and its incorporation is entering into a new era of life. Art, too, at Laguna Beach is entering into new era, not one whit less beautiful and glorious than it has been in the past. The number of men and women who glorify beauty spots by their brushes and paints has increased year by year, and year by year they have spread the fame of Orange county. The number will continue to increase, and just as the day of the water jar at Laguna Beach is past, just so is the day of the little wooden gallery gone by. There is much ahead, at Laguna Beach, and especially in art, for all Orange county, and all Orange county, in appreciation, congratulates the Laguna Beach Art association in undertaking the raising of money for the new gallery.

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY

The gathering of charter members and past exalted rulers of Santa Ana lodge, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, at the club rooms of the lodge in Santa Ana last night was a notable occasion. We pause, with them, and look back upon the deeply interesting and highly useful career of the lodge in Santa Ana. We contemplate the widespread influence the lodge has had in spreading fellowship and understanding among its members, and the influence that the lodge has had upon community life. We call to mind the prominent part the lodge played in war work, in peace time charity, in doing its full share in innumerable projects and efforts. And, doing so, we congratulate these charter members in the good work that they instituted.

In Elksdom, Santa Ana lodge has always stood high. Its efforts always have been toward the maintenance of the high principles of human endeavor and human usefulness upon which the order is founded.

The lodge is to be congratulated upon the occasion of its twenty-fifth anniversary. It is to be congratulated upon its leadership and its membership.

And may it live forever, always an influence for good in the future as it has been in the past.

RAH FOR THE JURY SYSTEM!

The jury system of this country seems to be taking a fresh hold, as it were, and by convicting offenders against the law who ought to be convicted, and in various other ways, is vindicating itself.

A case in point is the verdict of an Amador county jury which tried a case of vast interest to Oakland and the bay region generally.

Stephen Kieffer paid less than $250,000 for 7200 acres of land necessary for the development of a supply of pure mountain water for Oakland, Berkeley and other East Bay cities.

He demanded $15,500,000 from the municipality district for his 7200 acres and its officials refused and fought Mr. Kieffer in the courts.

A jury in Amador county heard the evidence and decided that the price should be no more than the amount Mr. Kieffer paid for the land, plus a reasonable profit. The jury awarded him $337,450.20—and that amount will have to satisfy the gentleman.

Mr. Kieffer bought the land in question after the district had given out its preference for this particular location as the one best fitted for its use. In other words, he bought it with the intention of extorting a huge profit, and a jury of an outside county has blocked his game.

In the improbable event that any of us have been saying anything unkind of juries, or of the jury system, now is a very good time for us to do as Henry Ford did—say that we didn't know it was loaded, and will never do it again.

ANTIPODEAN FLYING

It isn't only this side of the world that can fly. While American aviators have been soaring over the salt seas, to their own great glory, a notable land flight has just taken place in Australia.

Lieut. Kingsford Smith has flown around the continent, making a circuit of 7539 miles. It was not a continuous flight, but it was impressive and record-breaking in the steadiness with which Smith kept on the job and the total time elapsed. He did it in 10 days and five hours, flying every day, spending on an average nearly nine hours in the air out of 24. The difficulties he faced may be guessed from the fact that his gasoline had to be sent to some of the remote north and northwest supply depots by camel transport.

Let it be added that he used no fancy up-to-date plane, but one 15 years old, which "gave him not the slightest trouble."

First thing we know, one of those Australians will be taking off on a flight to San Francisco, stopping casually at Manila and Honolulu for a sandwich and a little more gas.

Another bond of International union Americans in Canada on festival days are surprised and pleased to hear Canadian bands playing "America," and Canadians on this side are equally pleased to hear American bands playing "God Save the King."

Americanization Made a Reality

San Bernardino Sun

Miss Ethel Richardson of Los Angeles, assistant superintendent of schools in California, has been awarded $1,000 and a gold medal offered by the Harmon Foundation of New York "to the individual who has been responsible during the year 1926 for the creation, introduction, or development of a distinctive contribution to the social, civic or industrial welfare of the United States."

The announcement states that California is carrying forward the largest scale project in adult education on this side of the Atlantic, a challenge and model for the other states in the Union. A great number of men and women have collaborated in the adventure of it, but there is a general agreement that Ethel Richardson, assistant state superintendent of public instruction, has been not only the executive in charge but the animating genius of the whole undertaking.

The year 1926 marked the definite expansion of the work of which she is director, from a department of immigration education to a department covering the whole field of adult education. This stage was entered upon at the conclusion of ten years experienced under the Home Teacher Act of 1915, and succeeding statutes. But 1925-26 was the first year in which every city in California with a foreign born population, large enough to operate under a city superintendent of schools, undertook immigrant education. In 23 cities trained supervisors were in charge. In addition 115 union high school districts were carrying on education for foreign born adults, a total of 1145 classes. The official figures gave a total enrollment of 44,000 people. The 1926-27 report will show 50,000 people enrolled and an expenditure of half a million dollars.

California got its inspiration from the early work of the social settlements in dealing with immigrants, but has been the first commonwealth to apply their technique in a state-wide program as part of the public school system. It has turned "Americanization" from a word into a reality. As sensitive to the heritage of the immigrant as to the contribution of America, the home teachers have reached the Spanish-speaking cotton growers of the Imperial valley and orange pickers in La Habra, Japanese on the Ventura ranches and Portuguese dairymen up and down the San Joaquin. They have dealt with German housewives in the Lodi; and Italian sardine fishermen at Monterey, with men and women of all races and vocations and localities.

Newspaper Talk

New York Times

Newspaper workers who labor to present to the public accurate and complete accounts of human happenings may well have found in viewing the crowds recently some justification for their toil. For those millions gathered and cheered a young man for an exploit of which their only knowledge was gained from the press. "Newspaper talk," which so often receives the sneers of the disaffected or cynical, was the sole cause of that vast assemblage.

Recently an oratorical prize was awarded to a young person who attacked the newspapers for inaccuracy, bias and general mendacity. Often statesmen, confronted with the press record of a fact unplesing to them, have announced that they don't believe it; that the only evidence they have had of its occurrence was through the newspapers. And then they have turned haughtily to something else.

Well, did Lindbergh really fly from San Diego to St. Louis without stopping? Did he then fly from St. Louis to New York without stopping? Did he then span the Atlantic and land at Le Bourget in Paris without stopping? Was he mobbed by admiring throngs, did he wear that borrowed suit, did he receive homage and decoration from Kings and Ministers? Was he the center of an amazing demonstration at Washington? Was it really he who was so recently the guest of this hero-worshipping city?

Few who saw that parade and cheered the young paladin had seen him take off from the Long Island field. Still fewer saw him in Europe. Not many had beheld his triumph at Washington. The information which animated these vast throngs came from the press. The press, in general and as usual, reported faithfully these tremendous happenings, and it pursues the same care and devotion in reporting others of far less consequence and much more ephemeral.

Trucks and Highways

San Francisco Chronicle

Commencement of the campaign to enforce the State law against overloaded trucks on the highways comes just in time to remind the truck owners that their traffic is the leading reason why our motor roads cost so much as they do. It is the heavy traffic that requires us to build such expensive highways.

It is only fair that the trucks pay their proportionate share of the taxes for highway building and maintenance. They have been escaping in large part. The weight tax—which the truckmen are now seeking to hold up by referendum—was an effort to get a fair share of highway taxes from them.

In a somewhat similar situation the short line railroads and the motor bus lines were smart enough to get all hands together and settle on a fair tax that they should pay. They knew they would have to pay and should pay their share, and they preferred to get it all settled over the table than their friendly way rather than wait until they were bludgeoned into it, perhaps with disagreeable consequences. The truck operators, or a part of them, it is only fair to say, have taken a different attitude. Their sole effort is to try to upset, or hold up, attempts to tax them.

To such an attitude the public reply is naturally to scrutinize very carefully the operation of trucks on the highways, to hold them to a strict observance of the laws, and to devise some certain plan which will hold the truck operators rigorously to payment of their full share of highway and other taxation. Their trucks cannot be permitted to be overloaded to the detriment of the highways. And as their traffic, even when kept under the legal weight limits imposes a particularly heavy burden on the roads, a way should be found to see that they pay in proportion to highway funds.

Editorial Shorts

Sacramento is quite puffed up over the fact that a moving picture that is supposed to be filmed in China, on the Yangtze river, is being produced on the Sacramento river near the state capital. Sacramento, however, has nothing on Riverside in this regard; the film version of "Lord Jim," a tale of the South Sea Islands, was filmed on the Santa Ana river near this city.—Riverside Press.

He Sure Is a Tough Kid to Wean

Books and Careers

Oakland Tribune

Another instance of the importance of books in shaping one's career is given by Clinton W. Gilbert in one of his recent articles in his "Daily Mirror of Washington" which he writes for the Philadelphia Public Ledger. In it he tells of how General Enoch Crowder, whose name was a household word during the World war, became an expert on conscription.

Crowder after his graduation from West Point was sent out to a lonely fort in South Dakota, an outpost built originally for protection against Indians. It was a lonely place, and its library small, consisting "of a few odd volumes among them some devoted to the draft act and the history of conscription during the Civil war."

"Fate decided Crowder's career at that moment," says Gilbert, "for he studied compulsory military service . . . mastering the books and reading all he could get on the subject."

Crowder's great service to the country in his administration of the Draft act is one still fresh in memory. But the work that preceded this mastery in those far off days at Yankton is little known.

His poring over the dry history of Conscription of the Civil war in those lonely days touches the imagination—just as Lincoln's poring over the Statutes of Indiana as a boy.

Much unsuspected power lies in books—even in some so-called "dry" ones.

Worth While Verse

BEFORE ALL WORLDS

When the first stars come out on summer nights,
And the last sweet-shrill martins are gone home
Out of the sunset's rosy ashen dome,
Weary at last of their ecstatic flights,

The arrowy joy of their swift going and coming
In the pellucid atmosphere of even—
When the first stars come out in June's clear heaven,
My soul gets quit at last of all her roaming,

And she returns to her first sanctities,
To towns that rest beneath an angel's wing,
To bells that in the winds of evening
Modulate all the syllables of peace,

To the mysterious and unchanging God,
Beyond our gropings merciful and wise,
Who, while the starlight steals into the skies,
Blesses the weary flowers that drowse and nod
With infinite pure hands and loving eyes.
—Wilfred Childre in the Commonwealth.

I bin practicing tarning cartwheels and I can tern them pritty good now, and this afternoon Mary Watkins came out and sat on her front steps on 2 cushions and I had a ideer to go over and tern some cartwheels on her payment, wich I went over and started to do as it was just a axidental ideer, and I terned about 5 and stopped, and she didnt say anything, so I terned about 5 more, and she sed, Why do you do that? O, jest for fun, thats nutting, its a cinch for me, I sed.

And I terned about 5 more even better ones, and she sed, Goodness dont you ever get tired, goodness. Not doing this I dont, this is as easy as pie for me, this is as easy as a bean, I sed.

And I terned about 5 more the best yet, and she sed, Goodness, your enuff to make a persin dizzy.

Good nite, I could do this all day without even thinking about getting dizzy, I sed.

And I did some more jest to prove it, and Mary Watkins sed, Im going in the house, if people was suppose to be wheels they would of bin made round in the first place, Im going in.

Which she started to do, me quick saying, Hey, wait a minit, wats a hurry, I got 3 cents and Im going to run around to Mommy Simmings and get 3 cents worth of spice drops and you can help me eat them.

O, izzent that nice, you do have the best ideers, Mary Watkins sed. And so she sat down agen and I ran around to get the spice drops being her favorite kind of candy but not mine.

Proving money is more powerfull than branes.

The Patchwork Quilt

BY ELEANOR YOUNG ELLIOTT
(Have you any patches to add to it?)

THINKING OF YOU
No matter what I'm doing, whether work or what I may play,
No matter what the moment, darkest night or brightest day,
No matter if it's cloudy or the skies are clear and blue,
This little thoughts I'm thinking, must ever turn to you.

Just like a happy river that scurries through the mead
Between the flowers and grasses, yet never gives them heed,
But heedless of the forest, regardless of the lea
And blind to all the shadows, goes singing to the sea.

CHRONICLES OF THE LITTLE GRAY HOUSE

This isn't a chronicle of the Little Gray House at all—instant it is an Office Chronicle and it has to do with a young son of the Big Chief.

Be it explained that the aforesaid Big Chief and his lovely red-headed wife and two sons are leaving immediately for Mammoth Lakes and a vacation fishing trip and the boys are even more excited over the prospect of riding each day than they are over fishing. They have invited two of their pals to take the trip with them, and the four spend happy hours planning what all they will do.

(In passing, I have an idea that Dad and Mother will have very little vacation out of it,—but that, as Kipling would say, is another story.)

Well, this morning young Rodney came into the office and the grin on his face stretched from ear to ear. We all knew that something wonderful had happened. It had. He had written of his camping plans to a fond auntie living in Chicago, and the morning's mail had brought him her reply—couched in terms of a check for $20—all to be expended on vacation outings.

"Twenty dollars worth of rides!" he breathed ecstatically.

It has been a long long time since LITTLE SISTER deemed to write to the Quilt, and we have wondered why we had none of her childish philosophies. However LITTLE SISTER'S BIG SISTER stepped into the breach and as a result we offer you today—

THE PATCHWORK QUILT

By Anne Lloyd

In patchwork is my garden set:
Quilted with rows of misnomerette,
And stitched with colored threads that wear
The merriest haphazard air.

Zinnias crimson, pink and pied Appear like gingham gaily dyed;
And ragged sailors make a show
Like remnants of blue calico.

A score of scarlet poppies spread
Their vividness like Turkey red,
While drifts of pale phlox catch the light
Like linen, soft and snowy white.

Calendulas with orange floss
Embroider monograms across
The grass; and pansies add a line
Of purple edging, fair and fine.

Both sun and rain have helped to sew
These scraps together in a row,
And midnight and the stars have spilt
Their shining magic on this quilt.

So I am sure in her wide bed
Beneath it, Earth is comforted.
(This seemed to me such a coincidence (if any) is so take the place of them, and there's the rub! Will it be kilts, or just plain little skirts, with the necessary "kick pleats" (I'm sure some of them will kick!) or what? Drawing a House

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

THE drawing little people do is really a language based upon the expressive instinct. They delight in making marks, just as they chatter "dada." At first the marks may or may not mean anything, even to the child. Later, a picture is often named or re-named as he sees things suggested in it. At first the pictures are perfectly satisfactory to him, in fact, they please him greatly and he is hurt if any one fails to appreciate them, but later, generally at about nine years of age, he begins to feel the inadequacy of his representations and is reluctant to make attempts at representing objects. After this drawing becomes mechanical imitation instead of a pleasurable means of expression unless he is encouraged to continue his efforts of self expression.

TAKE a nice clean paper

And draw a great big yard

With trees for swings,

A wall to climb

'Most any place,

A time for sand,

Some flowers, and

A dog to act as guard.

And then up in one corner

Stick a house away

Quite thin and tall

Close to the wall.

'Cause, mercy sake,

Most houses take

More room than 's fair,

So I take care

There's plenty yard to play!
